Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	Yes.	On November 2, 2018, the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, a comprehensive overhaul of the Regulations Governing Investments by Authorized Entities, was published in the Official Gazette.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Authorized entities may invest in securities issued in the foreign market up to 25% of the asset administered by the fund, whose proportion may be increased up to 50%, provided it can be demonstrated through technical studies, in accordance with the provisions set forth in "Title II. Governance of Investments" of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, that the limit increase complies with Article 62 of the Law on Worker Protection.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Article 67. General limits: Funds must comply with the following maximum limits: Securities issued by the same issuer or its subsidiaries and affiliates, up to 10%. Up to 10% for each external investment manager.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Article 68 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets established limits by type of instrument. Funds must comply with the following maximum limits: (1) Debt securities. (a) Up to 5% in each of the following instruments: repos, securities lending, structured notes with protected capital, and level III standardized debt. (2) Securities representative of ownership: (a) Up to 25% in level I instruments. (b) Effective May 6, 2022, up to 15% in level II instruments (previously 10%). (c) Up to 5% in level III instruments. Article 17 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets defines the types of instruments by level: Level III standardized debt: the risk ratings corresponding to these instruments must be within the top two ratings of the scale below investment grade. Level I securities representative of ownership: shares, American depositary receipts (ADRs), and units in funds or special-purpose vehicles (financial, debt, equity, mixed, or index funds as well as exchange-traded funds (ETFs) that replicate financial indices. Funds that in their investment strategies use derivative instruments whose purpose is different from the efficient portfolio handling criterion, defined by the UCITS, are exempt). Level II securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into investment vehicles related to property management, real estate investment, real estate, and project development (past the feasibility stage). Level III securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into funds that invest in private equity. Article 69. Limits by issuer: Funds must comply with a maximum investment limit of up to 10% from a single issuer of any type of securities, except the MOF of Costa Rica, the BCCR, and issuers of international sovereign debt of countries with risk ratings within investment grade. The requirements are not differentiated by investment destinations.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	The Asset Management Regulations do not establish minimum limits. However, the Worker Protection Law (7983) in its Article 61 provides that "pension operators must invest, at least, 15% of the Compulsory Regime of Complementary Pensions (ROP) in securities with mortgage guarantee or product of mortgage securitization processes, as long as their yield generates, at the operators' discretion, an adequate return according to the risk that these instruments present. Investment in securities issued by entities that are, at the time of making the investment, in a situation of financial irregularity, are prohibited in accordance with the provisions of the SUGEF."
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Article 15 of the Regulation Governing the Management of assets established the following rules on permissible currencies: Securities and underlying assets in which funds invest can be denominated in any currency. The Management Body will be required to justify the use of the currencies, demonstrating that aspects such as liquidity and/or traded volume were analyzed and that hedging for exchange rate risk for these currencies is possible. The foregoing is established in "Title II. Governance of Investments." The risks stemming from the above must be reported by the Management Body, in accordance with Paragraph (f) of Article 5 of this Regulation. As per the Reform on the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, published in La Gaceta No. 193, effective December 8, 2022, the sum of investments in foreign currency exceeding 50% of the asset value of pension funds denominated in colones must be hedged against currency risk using for that purpose exchange rate hedges, in accordance with the provisions established in this regulation.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	There are no specific limits, unless a limit is set in the investment fund's prospectus.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	There are no upper limits on the investment portfolio held abroad, unless a limit is set in the investment fund's prospectus.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no lower limits on the investment portfolio held locally, unless a limit is set in the investment fund's prospectus.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The investment fund indicates the currency in which shares (assets) are subscribed in its prospectus.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	A regional framework to combat money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (AFT) exists through two WAEMU Directives, respectively, from 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT) as amended. This framework facilitates the implementation of decisions taken by the UNSC on the basis of a list of persons and entities drawn up by the Committee. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

No separate legal tender
Currency board
Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Côte d'Ivoire participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, to replace the agreement dated December 4, 1973. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates between the CFA franc and other currencies are automatically inferred based on the rates between those currencies and the euro. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may vote to modify the monetary cooperation accord between the WAMU member countries and France. Legally, the permanence of monetary cooperation accords is guaranteed by the November 23, 1998, decision of the EC concerning exchange matters relating to the CFA franc and the Comorian franc (Decision No. 98/683/CE). Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of ±1% around a central rate of 2%. The harmonized CPI (HCPI) is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect concerning the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a transaction receipt for any operation with a customer. In addition, to ensure that customers have satisfactory information, authorized intermediaries must (1) post at their windows, at all times, the rates effectively applied for the various currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor's identity document. As of December 31, 2022, Côte d'Ivoire had 28 banks and 127 exchange bureaus. Exchange bureaus are dealers authorized, on the approval of the Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF), to transact in foreign exchange with the public. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the CB. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. In their transactions with customers, these authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 and may charge a commission of a maximum of 2.0%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU members on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are permitted. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU. As of December 31, 2022, 12 banks participated in the interbank market in domestic currency.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions (both current and capital transactions) outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following derivatives operations with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward foreign exchange contract and (2) foreign exchange swaps and options. Authorized transactions in foreign exchange derivatives can be carried out between two foreign currencies or between the CFA franc and a foreign currency with the exception of the euro or a currency whose issuing body has a transaction account with the French Treasury.

Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Côte d'Ivoire for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, the issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exportation of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Côte d'Ivoire are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports from and to foreign countries require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (gold-lined or gold-plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA franc (XOF) banknotes may be exported freely by travelers from one WAEMU member country to another. Shipments of banknotes issued by the BCEAO between any WAEMU resident individual or legal entity other than the BCEAO and its banking or commercial correspondents located outside WAEMU member countries are prohibited.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone travelers may freely import domestic currency. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Means of payment must be declared if the amount exceeds CFAF 5 million. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign banknotes or other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory. Nonresident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Nonresident travelers must declare in writing all means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on arriving in and exiting the national territory.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of payment specified in the contract.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but no earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 10 million must be effected through an authorized bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Inspection for quality and price is required for imports exceeding CFAF 3 million; imports valued at less than CFAF 3 million may be subject to random inspection.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Exchange authorization, final original invoice, certificate of release for consumption, import declaration, bill of lading, and export-import card are required.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Imports are classified into three categories: (1) goods requiring authorization of ministries, (2) goods whose import is subject to quantitative or other restrictions and requires a license issued by the Foreign Trade Promotion Directorate, and (3) freely importable goods.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of certain goods, such as narcotics, are prohibited regardless of origin.
Open general licenses	No.	Import licenses for a short list of controlled products are issued by the Directorate of External Trade Promotions in the Ministry of Commerce.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Quantitative restrictions may be applied to products for public health and security reasons.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The WAEMU CET consists of four tariff rates (0%, 5%, 10%, and 20%). Imports are also subject to a statistical fee of 1%. A community solidarity levy of 0.8% is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-WAEMU imports. In addition, a 1% ECOWAS levy is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-ECOWAS imports. A cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a regressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may be charged on some products during a given period. Only the former of these two taxes had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from countries that are not ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS). A 0.2% levy is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-WAEMU imports and (with the same import tax base) was introduced to help finance the African Union's budget.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	The domiciling bank is responsible for the repatriation via the accounts of foreign correspondents of the BCEAO of at least 80% of the export proceeds received. For purposes of coverage of its current foreign currency needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the sum of the foreign exchange resources it has to cover its requirements does not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO. The authorized intermediary bank surrenders foreign currencies to the CB immediately.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters must collect and surrender to an authorized intermediary bank total earnings from sales of goods abroad within 30 days following the payment due date as stipulated in the sales contract, which in principle should be within a maximum of 120 days after the shipment of goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the issuing bank. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are authorized, provided the domiciling bank provides the necessary supporting documents to verify domiciliation.

Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 500,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their date of entry into the national territory any foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency valued in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 500,000. The BCEAO may, in monitoring banks' external positions, request the surrender of foreign currency held abroad by ADs.

Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MEF authorization, except in the case of (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans granted to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or on raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries, however, are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets (Conseil Régional de l'Epargne Publique et des Marchés Financiers – CREPMF) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) the issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to CREPMF authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over resident entities, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to CREPMF authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in a Côte d'Ivoire institution, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. The issuance of securities to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, a declaration for statistical purposes must be filed for such purchases.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the CREPMF, with the authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instruments by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 7 of Regulation No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue money market instruments abroad, unless they constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to CREPMF authorization with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over Ivoirian establishments, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Controls on derivatives and other	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge exchange risk using instruments		foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial or financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, non-WAEMU resident) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MEF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation. However, authorized intermediaries are permitted to grant the following credits to their foreign correspondents: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted and must be done through intermediaries in all cases where the money borrowed is made available to the borrower in the country. These loans must be declared to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO for statistical purposes. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. The repayment of any foreign loan must be reported for statistical purposes to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO and must be made through an approved intermediary.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties requires the authorization of the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MEF approval and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Investment implying control of a company or enterprise is considered to be direct investment. A simple investment is not considered a direct investment if it does not exceed 10% of the capital stock of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Côte d'Ivoire and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Côte d'Ivoire, require MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU member countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of liquidation proceeds is subject to MEF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MEF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MEF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MEF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MEF approval.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely via an authorized intermediary subject to presentation of supporting documentation, as long as AML/CFT provisions are complied with.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU member countries. It was integrated into Côte d'Ivoire's domestic legal framework in March 2014 (Law No. 2014-135 of March 24, 2014).
Borrowing abroad	No.	Loans from abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister responsible for finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MEF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which are subject to special monitoring.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MEF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the MEF if their issuance has not been authorized by the CREPMF.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (i) demand deposits; (ii) short-term loans; (iii) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; (iv) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, advances to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone require MEF authorization and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investments abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the CREPMF.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that the investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Croatia imposes certain restrictive measures (freezing of funds and other economic resources and prohibition against making them available), in accordance with relevant UNSC resolutions and decisions of the EC solely for the preservation of national and international security.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions, there are restrictions on financial transactions relating to persons or entities on the consolidated lists of the relevant sanction committees of the UNSC.

Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Effective January 1, 2023, Croatia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers. Previously, the de jure exchange rate arrangement was a pegged exchange rate with horizontal bands. Effective January 1, 2023, following the adoption of the euro, the de facto exchange rate arrangement of Croatia was reclassified to free floating from stabilized. Previously, on July 10, 2020, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2023, the reference rate is the one published by the ECB. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of CBs. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at 14:10 Central European Time and are published at around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the averages of the buying and selling rates. Previously, the reference exchange rate published daily by the Croatian National Bank (CNB) was based on the stipulated turnover and foreign currency exchange rates in the foreign exchange market. The euro–kuna midpoint exchange rate was the arithmetic mean of the weighted buying and selling exchange rates of banks. The reference exchange rate was used by market participants for accounting and statistical purposes and for banks' transactions with consumers that include currency clause.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2023, with the adoption of the euro, the monetary framework is aligned with the Eurosystem. To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, the monetary policy framework was based on an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. Effective July 12, 2022, the EC adopted the Decision on the adoption by Croatia of the euro on January 1, 2023, amendments to the regulation according to which Croatia becomes the 20th member of the euro area and the regulation determining a fixed conversion rate between the euro and the kuna at 7.53450 kuna per 1 euro. Previously, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate.
Exchange tax	No.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, all 20 banks and one branch of a foreign bank are licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange with the public. In addition to banks, as of June 30, 2023, 311 foreign exchange bureaus were licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange. Foreign exchange bureaus may be legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople and may only buy foreign cash and checks denominated in foreign currency and sell foreign cash in exchange for euro cash and may not engage in foreign exchange transactions with the CNB. They may buy and sell foreign cash only to natural persons – that is, they may not enter into foreign exchange transactions with legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople. Foreign exchange bureaus must sell foreign cash surpluses (difference between foreign cash bought and sold) to the credit institution with which it entered into agreement on currency exchange operations. Foreign exchange bureaus may not maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of foreign exchange activity and may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.	Effective January 1, 2023, following the adoption of the euro, the CNB does not conduct foreign exchange auctions. Previously, the CNB can conduct ERM II interventions intra-marginal and at the margin to maintain the exchange rate within the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate of 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks are free to set their bid-ask rates on the interbank market. All banks may participate in the interbank market. Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement. As of January 1, 2023, Eurosystem's rules apply and CNB does not conduct foreign exchange auctions anymore, and hence, banks no longer participate in foreign exchange auctions.
Over the counter	Yes.	There is an OTC foreign exchange market whose participants are monetary financial institutions and other legal entities.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.	Banks quote buying and selling prices continuously, but there is no official market-making agreement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	CNB did not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market in 2022.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	The CNB has provided, on very few occasions, swap facilities at par for banks in a limited forward market in the distant past.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	Cash flow control in the EU is related to the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing. The export and import of cash in the Republic of Croatia are not limited, but there is only the requirement to submit a written declaration if cash in the value of 10,000 euros or more is brought in or taken out. According to the Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672, natural persons when entering or leaving the EU through Croatia have to declare cash (accompanied cash) worth €10,000 or more to the competent authority. Also, where unaccompanied cash (for example, cash in postal packages, courier shipments, unaccompanied luggage, or containerized cargo) of a value of EUR 10,000 or more is entering or leaving the EU through Croatia, the competent authority may require the sender or the recipient of the cash, or a representative thereof, as the case may be, to make a disclosure declaration within a deadline of 30 days. In addition, according to Article 3 of the Act on Amendments to the Foreign Exchange Act (Official Gazette No. 52/2021), natural persons entering the Republic of Croatia from another Member State (EU) or leaving the Republic of Croatia and entering another Member State, or having entered the Republic of Croatia from another Member State, must, on request from the authorized customs official or border police official, declare the cash (accompanied cash) they are carrying if that cash equals a value of EUR 10,000 or more, in writing, using the declaration form containing the information referred to in Article 3, paragraph (2) of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672. Furthermore, according to the Act on Amendments to the Foreign Exchange Act (Official Gazette No. 52/2021), competent authority is the Customs Administration, but the Government of the Republic of Croatia may issue a decree regulating that for economic reasons the controls on accompanied cash are also to be performed by the border police if reasons of security thus allow. Submission of data to Anti-Money-Laundering Office (AMLO) by the Customs Administration is prescribed in more detail in the Rulebook on the means and extent of reporting cash transport across the State border to the AMLO by Customs Administration. Pursuant to the aforementioned Rulebook, the Customs Administration submits to AMLO the data on cash transfers across the State border by electronic data transfer using the AMLO's IT system, and thus, the Customs Administration's data are directly available in the AMLO's database.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes and are regulated by the Foreign Exchange Act and Capital Market Act (CMA). Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. In the CMA (Official Gazette No. 65/18) which came into force July 27, 2018, the provisions of the Directive 2014/59/EU establishing a framework for the recovery and resolution of credit institutions and investment firms, Directive 2014/51/EU in respect of the powers of the European Supervisory Authority (European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority) and the European Supervisory Authority (European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA)) and of the Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 on OTC derivatives, central counterparties, and trade repositories concerning definition of legal basis for services that provides central counterparties, opening of an insolvency procedure of one or more clearing members and risk control mechanisms enabling measuring and management of exposure were implemented. The CMA (Official Gazette No. 65/18) has beside above-mentioned regulations implemented Directive 2014/65/EU, Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014, and Regulation (EU) No. 596/2014. Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette No. 17/20) in 2020 fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC. Given that from July 21, 2019, Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 is fully directly applicable in the territory of the Republic of Croatia, provisions transposing the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC into the Croatian legal system had to be deleted, and replaced by the provisions of Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. It was also necessary to prescribe the competencies of the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (hereinafter: Hanfa), and misdemeanor provisions related to violations of the provisions of Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette No. 83/21) fully

Furthermore, the provision of the Directive (EU) 2019/878 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2019, amending Directive 2013/36/EU as regards exempted entities, financial holding companies, mixed financial holding companies, remuneration, supervisory measures and powers and capital conservation measures Directive (EU) 2019/2177 of the European Parliament and of the Council of December 18, 2019, amending Directive 2009/138/EC on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II), Directive 2014/65/EU on markets in financial instruments and Directive (EU) 2015/849 on the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money-laundering or terrorist financing, and Directive (EU) 2020/1504 of the European Parliament and of the Council of October 7, 2020, amending Directive 2014/65/EU on markets in financial instruments are also transposed.

A valid prospectus must be published before offering a security to the public or admission to a regulated market, except as prescribed by the CMA. The CMA (Official Gazette No. 88/08, 146/08, 74/09, 54/13, and 159/13) – no longer in force – was amended in 2015 with the Act on Amendments to CMA (Official Gazette No. 110/15) – no longer in force – with a view to harmonization with provisions of the Directive 2013/50/EU amending Directive 2004/109/EC on the harmonization of transparency requirements in relation to information about issuers whose securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market, Directive 2003/71/EC on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading, and Directive 2007/14/EC laying down detailed rules for the implementation of certain provisions of Directive 2004/109/EC concerning financial reporting of an issuer of securities admitted to trading on the regulated market, administrative sanctions, and measures. These regulations were also implemented in the new CMA No. 65/18. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette no. 17/20) in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

The stock exchange manages the regulated market, which consists of the regular market, the official market, and the prime market, according to its rules. Securities may be admitted to the regular and official markets in accordance with the provisions of the CMA and Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014. Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/568 and the rules of the stock exchange concerning the number of shares available to the public or the number of shares available in the near future that the stock exchange considers sufficient. Securities may be admitted to the prime market, the highest segment of the regulated market, in accordance with the rules of the stock exchange. Admission to trading must be approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC. Criteria for admission to listing/ trading are also regulated by the Zagreb Stock Exchange rules.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Hanfa is the competent authority in Croatia to ensure implementation of the provisions of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and of Part III, Head 1. of the CMA covering the drawing up, approval, and distribution of the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market. Under the Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 which is directly applicable in all member states, as well as in Croatia, issuers from another EU member and third-country issuers may make a public offering or apply for admission of securities to a regulated market in Croatia, using a prospectus previously granted by the relevant authority of the issuer's home member state. The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer's home EU member state are considered valid, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority of the issuer's host member, and the ESMA were notified. Under the CMA, the stock exchange operates a regulated market consisting of a regular market and an official market. The stock exchange can by its own operating rules, prescribe other segments of the regulated market for which it will prescribe stricter conditions in connection with listing and investor protection, the Zagreb Stock Exchange, as the only operator of the regulated market in Croatia, prescribed by its own Rules the three segments of the regulated market – Regular market, Official market and the Prime market (only for shares) as the highest segment with the highest standards with regard to listing, transparency and investor protection. The approval of the stock exchange is required for trading financial instruments on the regulated market, including the approval for trading of financial instruments on each of the segments of the regulated market operated by the respective stock exchange. Under Article 331 of the CMA, shares of issuers whose registered office is in a third country that are not listed in either that country or in the country where the majority of the shares are held, may be traded on the official market that is a higher segment of the regulated market, only if the stock exchange considers that the reasons for non-listing

Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. Act on Amendments to the CMA (Official Gazette No. 17/20) raises the threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, calculated over a period of 12 months. This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	Residents may freely purchase securities abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	If Croatia is the issuer's home member state Hanfa must, at the issuer's request or at the request of the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant EU host member state's authority with a certificate of approval attesting that the prospectus has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, an electronic copy of that prospectus, and where applicable, accompanied by a translation of the prospectus and any summary, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. As the competent authority that has approved a registration document or a universal registration document and any amendments thereto, according to the conditions of Article 26 of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, Hanfa must at the request of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such document, notify the competent authority of the home Member State for the prospectus approval with a certificate of approval attesting that the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and with an electronic copy of that document. Where applicable, the notification of the registration documents or universal registration documents must be accompanied by a translation of the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such documents. When it comes to "resident foreign issuance," the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: If it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out, it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	Bonds may be admitted to the regular and official market segment of the regulated market in accordance with the provisions of the CMA, Regulation No. 600/2014, and the rules of the stock exchange. Specific conditions for the admission of debt securities on the official market operated by the stock exchange are prescribed in Article 332 of the CMA according to which the form and content of debt securities submitted for admission to trading on the official market, which is a higher segment of the regulated market, must conform to the appropriate regulations, and the securities must be freely negotiable. However, a stock exchange may treat debt securities that are not fully paid up as freely negotiable as long as there are mechanisms to ensure that their negotiability is not restricted and the trading is transparent by providing the appropriate data to the public. If admission to trading on the official market is preceded by a public issue, the first admission to trading on the official market may be made only after the end of the period of subscription and payment in a public issue. This does not apply to continuous and repeated issues of debt securities whose closing date for subscription is not fixed. Application for official listing must be made equally for all debt securities. Admission to trading is approved by the stock exchange. Marketing of UCITS established in another EU Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia:
Marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia is regulated by Articles 137 to 143 of the Croatian Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette Nos. 44/16, 126/19, and 110/21). Units of a UCITS established in another Member State may be marketed in the Republic of Croatia only by management companies from Croatia or another Member State which are authorized UCITS management companies pursuant to the regulation transposing the provisions of Directive 2009/65/EC into the legal system of the Member State. For the purpose of marketing units of a UCITS established in another Member State in the Republic of Croatia, a management company must ensure that facilities are available in the Republic of Croatia for: execution of requests for issuance and redemption of units and ensuring of other payments related to units of the UCITS fund to the holders of units in the manner stipulated in the prospectus of UCITS fund, providing information to investors about possible ways of submitting a request for issuance or unit redemption, as well as payment methods based on the request for unit redemption, facilitation of information processing and access to procedures and measures related to complaint resolution of investors and exercising the rights of investors arising from their investments in the UCITS fund, in accordance with Articles 63 and 64 of this Act and placing information and documents (prospectus and rules of UCITS fund, the latest audited annual reports and subsequent half-yearly reports of the UCITS fund and key investor information document (KIID)).
Management company must submit the notification letter with its annexes concerning the commencement of marketing in the Republic of Croatia to the competent authority of UCITS home Member State. The notification letter must be prepared in accordance with the standard model prescribed by Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010 in the English language and sent to the designated e-mail address published on the website of the competent authority of the UCITS home Member State. Competent authority of the UCITS home Member State must forward notification letter and its annexes to Hanfa in accordance with the rules set out in the Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010. Management company may commence marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State on the territory of the Republic of Croatia as of the date when the competent authority of UCITS home Member State informs management company that the documents referred to above have been forwarded to Hanfa. Management company must notify Hanfa when it starts marketing activity in the Republic of Croatia without delay. Similar rules apply for marketing of AIFs with some additional conditions for AIFs distributed to professional investors whereby national private placement regime is not established. As of 2021, the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering and the AIFs Act were harmonized with new EU framework, specifically Directive (EU) No. 2019/1160 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, amending Directives 2009/65/EC and 2011/61/EU with regard to cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings, Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, on facilitating cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings and amending Regulations (EU) No. 345/2013, (EU) No. 346/2013, and (EU) No. 1286/2014, as well as Guidelines under the Regulation on cross-border distribution of funds. Implementation of the Directive (EU) No. 2019/1160 and the direct application of the Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 aim to remove barriers to effective cross-border marketing of investment funds, to harmonize the notification process and to harmonize the different practices applied in the Member States as regards cross-border marketing of investment funds. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 lays down additional rules and procedures concerning undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) and alternative investment fund managers (AIFMs). That Regulation and Directive 2019/1160 collectively further coordinate the conditions for fund managers operating in the internal market and facilitate cross-border distribution of the funds they manage. Regulation (EU) 2019/1156 further strengthens the principles applicable to marketing communications governed by Directive 2009/65/EC and extends the application of those principles to AIFMs, thereby resulting in a high standard of investor protection, regardless of the type of investor. Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country within the territory of the Republic of Croatia: Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country is permitted in Republic of Croatia by the management company from the third country (through a branch), management company from the member state (through a branch), or by the management company from Republic of Croatia, under following conditions in addition to rules mention above: level of protection of the investors in the fund is at least the same as the one prescribed for UCITS funds and the assets of the fund are invested in accordance with the risk diversification principle; the company has acquired permission for establishing a branch from Hanfa; the company has acquired permission for marketing of the fund from Hanfa.

the request of the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant EU host member state's authority with a certificate of approval attesting that the prospectus has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, an electronic copy of that prospectus, and where applicable, accompanied by a translation of the prospectus and any summary, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. As the competent authority that has approved a registration document or a universal registration document and any amendments thereto, according to the conditions of Article 26 of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, Hanfa must at the request of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such document, notify the competent authority of the home Member State for the prospectus approval with a certificate of approval attesting that the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and with an electronic copy of that document. Where applicable, the notification of the registration documents or universal registration documents must be accompanied by a translation of the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such documents.
Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

When it comes to "resident foreign issuance," the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: If it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out, it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.
Marketing units of UCITS established in the Republic of Croatia within the territory of another Member State:
In general, and without a detailed presentation of all provisions that are timely compliant to the relevant EU legislation, UCITS established in Croatia may market their units in EEA member countries other than Croatia in accordance with the notification procedure (Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010) and Articles 150–154 of the Croatian Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering. The management company managing the UCITS submits the notification letter, relevant documents, and their translations to the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (Hanfa). Hanfa inspects the material and submits it to the competent authority of the other EEA member country stated in the notification letter in the manner as prescribed in Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010. Hanfa sends a notice immediately to the management company when the notification letter has been sent to the competent authority of the host country. The management company may begin marketing units of the UCITS in another EEA country as of the date when Hanfa notifies the management company that the documents referred to above have been forwarded to the competent authority of the host EEA country. Similar rules apply for marketing of AIFs with some additional conditions for AIFs distributed to professional investors whereby national private placement regime is not established. As of 2021, the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering and AIFs were harmonized with new EU framework, specifically Directive (EU) 2019/1160 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, amending Directives 2009/65/EC and 2011/61/EU with regard to cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings, Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, on facilitating cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings and amending Regulations (EU) No. 345/2013, (EU) No. 346/2013, and (EU) No. 1286/2014, as well as Guidelines under the Regulation on cross-border distribution of funds. Implementation of the Directive (EU) No. 2019/1160 and the direct application of the Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 aim to remove barriers to effective cross-border marketing of investment funds, to harmonize the notification process and to harmonize the different practices applied in the Member States as regards cross-border marketing of investment funds. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 lays down additional rules and procedures concerning undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) and AIFMs. That Regulation and Directive 2019/1160 collectively further coordinate the conditions for fund managers operating in the internal market and facilitate cross-border distribution of the funds they manage. Regulation (EU) 2019/1156 further strengthens the principles applicable to marketing communications governed by Directive 2009/65/EC and extends the application of those principles to AIFMs, thereby resulting in a high standard of investor protection, regardless of the type of investor. Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the Republic of Croatia within the territory of the third country: Marketing of UCITS established in the Republic of Croatia in the third country is permitted to the management company (from Republic of Croatia or from a third country) authorized by Hanfa for managing that UCITS, under the condition of notifying Hanfa about it.

The prospectus and its supplements approved by the relevant authority of the issuer's home EU member state, if Croatia is not the home member state, are considered valid pursuant to the provisions of the CMA, provided Hanfa, as the relevant authority, and ESMA were notified. Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, provisions regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, which relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents of shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. Act on Amendments to the CMA raises the current threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months. This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	If Croatia is the issuer's home state, Hanfa must, at the issuer's request or at the request of the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant EU host member state's authority with a certificate of approval attesting that the prospectus has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, an electronic copy of that prospectus, and where applicable, accompanied by a translation of the prospectus and any summary, produced under the responsibility of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. As the competent authority that has approved a registration document or a universal registration document and any amendments thereto, according to the conditions of Article 26 of Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129, Hanfa must at the request of the issuer, the offeror, the person asking for admission to trading on a regulated market or the person responsible for drawing up such document, notify the competent authority of the home Member State for the prospectus approval with a certificate of approval attesting that the registration document, or universal registration document and any amendments thereto, has been drawn up in accordance with Prospectus Regulation (EU) 2017/1129 and with an electronic copy of that document. Where applicable, the notification of the registration documents or universal registration documents must be accompanied by a translation of the registration document, or universal registration

When it comes to "resident foreign issuance," the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: if it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Eurosystem/CNB regulations apply.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.	There are no restrictions imposed to credit institutions on lending locally in foreign exchange. However, banks are required to inform natural persons about the risks of borrowing in foreign exchange without having an income stream in these currencies.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Effective January 1, 2023, the reserve requirement of the HNB was abolished and was replaced by the minimum reserve requirement framework of the ECB. Previously, deposits in domestic and foreign currency were subject to reserve requirements. The calculation period followed the calendar month. The maintenance period covered the second Wednesday of the month to the day preceding the second Wednesday of the following month. Kuna and foreign exchange components were calculated separately. Seventy-five percent of the calculated foreign exchange component of reserve requirement was included in the calculated kuna component of reserve requirement and allocated in kunas. Banks had to allocate 70% of a the kuna component of reserve requirement to accounts at the CNB, while for allocating the foreign exchange component that percentage was 0. At least 2% of the foreign exchange component of the reserve requirement was to be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank's own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2 (Payments module (PM) accounts). The remaining portion of the reserve requirement could be met with the average daily balances of liquid claims. The CNB did not remunerate reserve requirement funds. Effective December 14, 2022, the reserve requirement rate was reduced to 1% from 5%. The kuna component had to be entirely maintained by the average daily balance in the bank's settlement accounts, while the foreign exchange component had to entirely be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank's own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2. Effective August 10, 2022, the reserve requirement applied to deposits in domestic and foreign currency was lowered to 5% from 9%.

Liquid asset requirements	No.	Effective December 31, 2022, the requirement to cover foreign exchange liabilities by short-term foreign exchange assets ceased to have effect. Previously, effective August 1, 2022, 8.5% of foreign exchange liabilities (minimum required amount of foreign currency claims) had to be covered by short-term foreign exchange assets with maturity of less than three months. (Previously, minimum required amount of foreign currency claims of 17% applied.) In addition to foreign-exchange-denominated instruments, liabilities included foreign-exchange-indexed instruments (liabilities in kunas with a one- or two-way currency clause).

		classification of own funds items, undertaking specific parameters, a full or partial internal model, ancillary own funds of an intermediate insurance holding company, a group internal model, the use of the duration-based equity risk sub-module, the use of the matching adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the volatility adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the transitional measure on the risk-free interest rates, and the use of the transitional measure on technical provisions, to determine the level and scope of group supervision, to identify the group supervisor, and to establish a college of supervisors. In accordance with the Insurance Act the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: to decide to deduct any participation, to determine the choice of method to calculate group solvency, to make the determination on equivalence, to permit insurance and reinsurance companies to be subject of determination of the solvency capital requirement of the subsidiary, and to make determination of the equivalence in a third country and the application of transitional measures.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The Insurance Act, which came into force in 2016, transposed provisions of the solvency regime, including rules of capital requirement, technical provisions, quantitative and qualitative requirements, reporting and public disclosure, transparency and system of governance of Directive 2009/138/EC (Solvency II). According to the Croatian Insurance Act, investment in particular categories of assets is not required and therefore provisions on limits are not required any longer. The assets held to cover the technical provisions related to those risks are not required to be localized within the Community or in any particular Member States. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to all their assets in accordance with the Insurance Act, Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2015/35, and other regulations of the European Commission which determine qualitative requirements for identification, measurement, monitoring, and control and management of the investment risks, especially taking into account the prudent person principle. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and maintain the localization of those assets such as to ensure their availability. Insurance company should invest in derivative instruments insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets, which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market, should be kept to prudent levels. Assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration. Assets held to cover the technical provisions should also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets should be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, should

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	According to the Croatian Insurance Act, assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Assets held to cover the technical provisions should be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities.
Pension funds	Yes.	Mandatory pension funds are regulated by the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds; voluntary pension funds are regulated by the Act on Voluntary Pension Funds. Pension insurance companies (pension pay-out phase) are regulated by Act on Pension Insurance Companies. Pension Insurance Companies are specific companies more or less unique to the Croatia pension sector. They have been introduced in the 2000 after pension reform and carry out their role in the pension pay-out phase. After the accumulation phase carried through mandatory and/or voluntary pension funds (or through other sources), the majority of the accumulated personal pension benefits (2nd and 3rd pillar of the Croatian pension scheme) are transferred to the Pension Insurance Companies who will carry out the pension pay-out phase.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund's NAV must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2)

Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities traded on the organized securities market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (4) Up to 50% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (5) Up to 65% A and 40% B of the fund's NAV may be invested in equity securities traded on the regulated market whose issuer is a joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). By the amendments to the law fund assets can be invested in infrastructure projects and startups. (6) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in units of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (7) Up to 15% A and 10% B of the fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of open-ended AIFs or shares of closed-ended alternative funds registered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (8) Up to 20% A, 20% B, and 20% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in deposits with a bank headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member. (9) Up to 10% A, 5% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in the cash held on the business account of the pension fund. (10) Up to 55% A, 35% B of the fund's NAV may be invested in transferable equity and/or debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia. Up to 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in transferable debt securities used for financing and securitization of infrastructure projects in the Republic of Croatia according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18). (11) Up to 0.2% A and 0.1% B of the fund's NAV may be invested in transferable equity securities and/or shares offered through regulated capital raising systems accepted by the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency according to Act on Amendments to the Mandatory Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

Voluntary pension fund's assets may be invested as follows: (1) No more than 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuing entity. If the value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer in which the fund is invested exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV, but with following exceptions: (a) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another EU member, units of local and regional self-government of an EU member, OECD member, or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members may be without limitations, provided the fund's prospectus and promotional materials clearly indicate country members, units of local and regional self-government or public international entities with one or more EU or OECD country members in whose securities and money market instruments a fund may invest more than 35% of the fund's NAV; (b) no more than 25% of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions headquartered in Croatia or another EU member;

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

(c) no more than 10% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments of issuers of related companies; (2) up to 5% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution whose head office is in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member; (3) the total value of investment in transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer, the value of deposits placed with that person, and exposures to OTC financial derivatives arranged with that person may not exceed 15% of the fund's NAV; (4) up to 30% of the fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of UCITS funds authorized in Croatia or another EU or OECD member according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18); and (5) up to 15% of the fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of an AIF according to Act on Amendments to the Voluntary Pension Funds Act (Official Gazette No. 115/18).

An individual mandatory pension fund may invest a maximum of:
(1) 10% of one issue of transferable debt securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member, the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members or issue by units of local and regional self-government in Croatia or another EU or OECD member or debt securities and MM instruments traded on regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member.
(2) 20% of one issue of transferable equity with the right to vote and 10% without right to vote whose issuer is joint-stock company headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member listed on the official market or other segments of the regulated market for which the stock exchange will prescribe stricter conditions regarding listing and protection investors in the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a state OECD member.
(3) 20% of the share in an individual fund shares of UCITS funds registered in Croatia or EU or equivalent funds that have received a work permit in an OECD member state, provided the implementation of supervision of these funds and investor protection level identical to those prescribed by law which regulates the establishment and operation of open-ended investment funds with the public offer.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Investment of a pension fund's assets must take into account the liability maturity of the fund. Invested assets must be adjusted for valuation changes resulting from risks and possible losses caused by changes in interest or exchange rates or by other capital risks. A pension fund's assets must be invested in a way that is aligned with the currency of liabilities of the fund (40% A, 60% B, and 90% C of the mandatory pension fund's NAV and 70% of the voluntary pension fund's NAV – applicable only to IORP). Assets covering the technical provisions of a Pension Insurance Company must be invested in a way that is aligned with the currency of liabilities of the company, that is, at least: 90% of assets stemming from mandatory pension schemes; 70% of assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes; must be invested in assets which are traded or settled in the same currency used for pension pay-outs.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	Open-ended investment funds with a public offering are regulated by the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering; AIFs are regulated by the AIFs Act. Investment firms' investments are not restricted in the context of providing investment services to clients in accordance with the applicable regulations. In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 2019/2033 of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 27, 2019, on the prudential requirements of investment firms and amending Regulations (EU) No. 1093/2010, (EU) No. 575/2013, (EU) No. 600/2014, and (EU) No. 806/2014, an investment firm's limit with regard to the concentration risk of an exposure value with regard to an individual client or group of connected clients is 25% of its own funds. Where that individual client is a credit institution or an investment firm, or where a group of connected clients includes one or more credit institutions or investment firms, the limit with regard to concentration risk is the higher of 25% of the investment firm's own funds or EUR 150 million, provided for the sum of exposure values with regard to all connected clients that are not credit institutions or investment firms, the limit with regard to concentration risk remains at 25% of the investment firms' own funds. Where the amount of EUR 150 million is higher than 25% of the investment firm's own funds, the limit with regard to concentration risk may not exceed 100% of the investment firm's own funds.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund's assets are subject to the following limits: (1) Up to 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members. As of 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or;

(b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met:
- those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and
- the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds.
(c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund;
(8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCUTS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 12 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette No. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided:(a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 17 of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19 and 15/20) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance with a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF' net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund's assets are subject to the following limits: (1) Up to 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (7) As of October 21, 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or

(b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met:
- those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and
- the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds.
(c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund; (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCUTS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional

Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19, 15/20, and 155/22), (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF's investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 17 of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19, 15/20, and 155/22) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund's assets are subject to the following limits: (1) Up to 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members. As of October 21, 2021, Act on Amendments to the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering (Official Gazette No. 110/21) amended Point (7) of this Article: exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 25% (previously 35%) of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions (a) where the bonds are subject to the definition of covered bonds under the law governing the issue and public supervision of covered bonds; or (b) if the bonds were issued before July 8, 2022, and, at the time of issue, the requirements were met: - those bonds are issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State that are subject to special public supervision by virtue of a specific law to protect investors in those bonds; and - the proceeds from the issuance of such bonds must be invested in accordance with the specific law in the assets that will enable the bond maturities to meet the obligations arising from bonds and that, in the event of default of the issuer, used primarily to pay the principal and accrued interest from those bonds.

(c) if more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net asset value of the fund must not exceed 80% of the net asset value of the fund (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1. and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund are invested is not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCUTS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 12 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19, 15/20, and 155/22) regulates that the investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19, 15/20, and 155/22), (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF's investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:
Article 17 (1) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs (Official Gazette Nos. 28/19, 15/20, and 155/22) regulates that the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, and (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Investment of a fund's assets must take into account the liability maturity of the fund. If the sum of an investment firm's overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the investment firm must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk according to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on Prudential Requirements for Credit Institutions and Investment Firms.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	01/01/2023	The currency of Croatia is the euro. Previously, the currency was the Croatian kuna.
Classification
Free floating	01/01/2023	The de jure exchange rate arrangement changed from a pegged exchange rate with horizontal bands to free floating. The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified from a stabilized arrangement to free floating.
Official exchange rate	01/01/2023	The reference rate is the one published by the ECB. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of CBs. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at 14:10 Central European Time, and are published at around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the averages of the buying and selling rates. Previously, the reference exchange rate published daily by the Croatian National Bank (CNB) was based on the stipulated turnover and foreign currency exchange rates in the foreign exchange market. The euro–kuna midpoint exchange rate was the arithmetic mean of the weighted buying and selling exchange rates of banks. The reference exchange rate was used by market participants for accounting and statistical purposes and for banks' transactions with consumers that

Monetary policy framework
Other monetary framework	07/12/2022	The EC adopted the Decision on the adoption by Croatia of the euro on January 1, 2023, amendments to the regulation according to which Croatia becomes the 20th member of the euro area and the regulation determining a fixed conversion rate between the euro and the kuna at: 7.53450 kuna per 1 euro. Previously, Croatia joined the ERM II with the central rate of the Croatian kuna at 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna and the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate.
	01/01/2023	The Croatian National Bank implemented the Eurosystem monetary policy framework. Previously, the monetary policy framework was based on an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.
Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market
Operated by the central bank
Auction	01/01/2023	Following the adoption of the euro, the Croatian National Bank (CNB) does not conduct foreign exchange auctions. Previously, the CNB can conduct ERM II interventions intra-marginal and at the margin to maintain the exchange rate within the standard fluctuation band of ±15% of the central rate of 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements
Use of foreign exchange among residents	01/01/2023	Restrictions related to payments in foreign means of payment between nonresidents and residents have been lifted. Previously, under the Foreign Exchange Act, capital transactions were not restricted, nevertheless, payments and collections in the Republic of Croatia in foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents were not allowed in the case of purchase and sale of real estate in the Republic of Croatia, stakes in companies headquartered in the Republic of Croatia, and securities listed or issued in the Republic of Croatia, irrespective of their denomination in kuna or in foreign exchange, except securities issued in the Republic of Croatia which were listed in another country. In other words, according to the Foreign Exchange Act and Capital Markets Act, nonresidents were not allowed to pay directly in foreign exchange but were allowed to convert foreign exchange to kuna freely for purchases of real estate, company stakes, and securities.
Administration of control	01/01/2023	Following the adoption of the euro, the Croatian National Bank is an integral part of the European System of Central Banks.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held domestically	01/01/2023	Following the adoption of the euro, restrictions related to payments in foreign means of payment between residents have been lifted. Previously, transactions related to foreign exchange accounts or foreign exchange savings deposit accounts including deposits and withdrawals of cash, as well as payments and transfers, were in accordance with foreign exchange regulations. Transfers of foreign exchange from one resident natural person's foreign exchange account to the account of another resident natural person who is the legitimate representative of the holder of the account or the custodian of the account were permitted. Residents may freely transfer abroad balances on these accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Domestic currency accounts	01/01/2023	Nonresidents may open euro accounts and euro savings accounts with fully licensed banks in Croatia. Previously, such accounts were denominated in kuna.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
Reserve requirements	08/10/2022	The reserve requirement applied to deposits in domestic and foreign currency was lowered to 5% from 9%.
	12/14/2022	The reserve requirement rate was reduced to 1% from 5%. The kuna component had to be entirely maintained by the average daily balance in the bank's settlement accounts, while the foreign exchange component had to entirely be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank's own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2.
	01/01/2023	Following the adoption of the euro, the reserve requirement of the HNB was abolished and was replaced by the minimum reserve requirement framework of the ECB.
Liquid asset requirements	08/01/2022	8.5% of foreign exchange liabilities (minimum required amount of foreign currency claims) had to be covered by short-term foreign exchange assets with maturity of less than three months. (Previously, minimum required amount of foreign currency claims of 17% applied.)
	12/31/2022	The requirement to cover foreign exchange liabilities by short-term foreign exchange assets ceased to have effect.

Exchange tax	No.	There is no exchange tax, but a license fee of 1% applies to all transfers to nonresidents.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Eight local banks and three money transfer companies have been licensed by the Central Bank of Curaçao and Sint Maarten (CBCS) to deal in foreign exchange with the public. For transactions exceeding NA f. 25,000, the banks may determine the buying and selling rates themselves and for transactions up to NA f. 25,000, the official rates published by the CBCS have to be used. The banks can freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to operate in Curaçao and Sint Maarten, conditioned on the terms of the license. However, no foreign exchange bureau is active yet. Foreign exchange bureaus cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB; they are required to have a local or foreign bank account. Foreign bank accounts must be established in a jurisdiction with membership of the FATF or Caribbean FATF and sufficiently comply with their recommendations. The types of transactions they can affect are limited to currency exchange services. Foreign currency payments and transfers are done by banks and money transfer companies. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread. In accordance with Article 9 sub 8 of the National Ordinance on the Central Bank, the CBCS fixes the exchange rates for foreign exchange transactions.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBCS buys and sells US dollars and other officially published

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Resident individuals may open foreign exchange accounts without a special license. Resident companies need a license from the CBCS to open these accounts abroad.
Held domestically	No.	Effective January 1, 2022, there are no restrictions on these accounts. Previously the CBCS resumed granting foreign exchange licenses for transactions that resulted in an outflow of foreign exchange for amounts up to NA f. 300,000. A foreign exchange license is required for transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000–300,000. Prior to that as of March 20, 2020, because of the potential negative impact of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves, the CBCS introduced a capital restriction, implying that no foreign exchange license would be granted for outward transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000 or higher until further notice.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2022, for transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account a foreign exchange license is required to exceed the limit of NA f. 250,000 a year of the sum of the transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account. Previously, as of October 1, 2021, for transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account a foreign exchange license is required for transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000–300,000 and the annual limit for the sum of the transfers of NA f. 250,000 may be exceeded to a maximum of NA f. 300,000 with a foreign exchange license.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Effective January 1, 2022, for transfers by legal entities to own foreign bank account and to current account with foreign-related companies no foreign exchange license is required. However, resident companies need a license from the CBCS to open and maintain these accounts abroad. Previously, as of October 1, 2021, for transfers by legal entities to own foreign bank account and to current account with foreign-related companies transactions amounts up to NA f. 300,000 were allowed. A foreign exchange license is required for transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000–300,000. Resident companies must report the transactions through their accounts abroad on a quarterly basis. Previously, as of March 20, 2020, because of the potential negative impact of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves, the CBCS introduced a capital restriction, implying that, until further notice, no foreign exchange license would be granted for outward transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000 or higher including for transfers to own foreign bank account by legal entities as well as transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account. In addition, no foreign exchange license would be granted, until further notice, for exceeding the limit of NA f. 250,000 a year of the sum of the transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account.

Effective January 1, 2022, the limit of NA f. 300,000 on outward transactions was eliminated. The resident must request a license per transaction with a nonresident if the amount is NA f. 150,000 or more. Previously, as of October 1, 2021, outward transactions up to NA f. 300,000 were allowed. A foreign exchange license was required for transactions amounts of NA f. 150,000 up to NA f. 300,000. Previously, as of March 20, 2020, because of the potential negative impact of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves, the CBCS suspended the granting of foreign exchange license for outward capital transactions for NA f. 150,000 or higher amounts until further notice. Loans do not require a license if the transaction amount is less than NA f. 150,000.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant regulations of the EC and solely for the preservation of national or international security, Cyprus maintains restrictive measures (sanctions) related to Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran (as amended), Iraq, Democratic People's Republic of Korea (as amended), Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Myanmar, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, groups associated with terrorism (foreign organizations associated with terrorism, including Al-Qaida and ISIL (Da'esh)), Tunisia, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), and Zimbabwe.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons are in force, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542. These measures are in line with UNSC Resolutions No. 1540 (2004), 2118 (2013), 2209 (2015), 2235 (2015), and 2325 (2016). The measures include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542 after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, providing support for, or being otherwise involved in the manufacturing, acquiring, possessing, developing, transporting, stockpiling, transferring, using, or preparing for the use of chemical weapons. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796 is in force on EU sanctions to deter and respond to cyberattacks constituting an external threat to the EU or to EU countries, including cyberattacks against non-EU countries or international organizations where action is deemed necessary to achieve EU's common foreign and security policy objectives. Sanctions include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are responsible for cyberattacks or attempted cyberattacks, or provide support for such attacks, or are otherwise involved, as identified by the Council of the EU and listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796. Restrictions concerning the situation in Nicaragua are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1716: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for serious human rights violations or repression of civil society or democratic opposition; or undermining democracy and the rule of law in Nicaragua.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty of the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union." These include "sustainable development," "balanced economic growth," "full employment," and "a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Institutions that have been authorized by the Central Bank of Cyprus (CBC) to carry on the business of a credit institution may engage in foreign exchange dealing with the public, and no separate license is required for this activity. As of December 31, 2022, 26 credit institutions were authorized to operate in Cyprus. Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate in Cyprus subject to prior CBC approval, in accordance with the provisions of the CBC Bureaux de Change Directive of 2014. As of December 31, 2021, four foreign exchange bureaus were authorized to operate in Cyprus. Other institutions making currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients are subject to licensing by the CBC on the basis of the Provision and Use of Payment Services and Access to Payment Systems Laws, 2018–2023.

banknotes		leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more was introduced by the EU Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, for the purpose of preventing money laundering. Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 replaced Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 and extended the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler's checks). Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 in cash are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be detained by administrative order. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. In addition, the EU regulation provides that national authorities may require the sender or recipient of unaccompanied cash, of a value of €10,000 or more, entering or leaving the EU to make a disclosure declaration within 30 days. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders. Effective April 29, 2022, Law 63(I)/2022 was enacted to implement Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672; it replaced Law 53(I)/2009, which corresponded to the repealed Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. In addition to extending the definition of cash, the new national law introduced a disclosure requirement for unaccompanied cash, while it maintained the requirement for declaration of cash of a value of €10,000 or more by individuals traveling within the EU who enter or leave Cyprus. The new law also provides for higher fines for failure to declare the cash and introduces the possibility of imprisonment.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	In accordance with ECB regulations, the minimum reserve ratio on deposit liabilities of credit institutions is 1% for deposits in both domestic and foreign currencies.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	There is a 100% liquidity coverage requirement. As of March 12, 2020, the ECB Banking Supervision allowed banks under its direct supervision (significant institutions) to operate temporarily (until further notice) below the 100% LCR. Similarly, the CBC allowed banks under its direct supervision (less significant institutions) to operate temporarily below the 100% LCR, as of March 18, 2020. In line with the ECB announcement on July 28, 2020, on the timeline to end the temporary relief measures taken in reaction to the COVID-19 pandemic, the CBC issued a circular to less significant institutions on October 11, 2020, on the timeline to restore their capital and liquidity positions. The circular informed the less significant institutions that they may continue to operate below the Pillar 2 Guidance and the combined capital buffer requirement until at least end-2022, and below the 100% LCR until at least end-2021; the exact timeline would be decided following the 2021 supervisory review and evaluation process, on a case-by-case basis according to the individual situation of each bank. Effective January 1, 2022, the ECB expects all banks under its supervision (significant institutions) to maintain LCR above 100%.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. In January 2022, the Czech National Bank (CNB) resumed its program of sales of a part of the CNB's investment income on international reserves. From March to September 2022, the CNB intervened to mitigate excessive fluctuations and depreciation of the koruna in a situation of high inflation. The program of sales of part of the income on international reserves was suspended in May 2022, while foreign exchange interventions were going on. In August 2023, the intervention regime announced in May 2022 was formally ended, and the program of sales of part of the income on international reserves has been resumed. The sales of part of the income on international reserves aim to slow the increase in the amount of CNB international reserves. The de facto exchange rate is classified as floating. Data on CNB's foreign exchange operations are published on the CNB's web page with a monthly frequency with a lag of two months.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CNB declares foreign exchange market rates on the basis of its monitoring the movement of currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CNB publishes daily rates for 32 currencies against the koruna for customs and accounting purposes. The published exchange rates correspond to rates for individual currencies on the foreign exchange market at 2:15 p.m. local time. Under the Act on Accounting and other legal norms, the exchange rates are used for nontrading purposes (that is, for valuing assets and liabilities, tax and customs proceedings, etc.).

Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The target is headline inflation of 2% with a tolerance band of ±1 percentage points.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	The CNB's inflation target is set as 2% year-on-year growth in the CPI with a tolerance band of ±1 percentage point. A tolerance band of one percentage point in either direction around the target reflects the natural volatility of inflation. The CNB endeavors to keep inflation at 2% all the time, not only at the end of the year or on average. The target measure is a monthly inflation rate defined as an increase in headline CPI compared with the corresponding month of the preceding year.
CPI	Yes.	The inflation target is set for headline CPI. The CPI measures in a representative way and over time relative changes of final consumer prices of goods and services paid by the population (including all taxes). It is published monthly by The Czech Statistical Office (CZSO). In practice, the CNB concentrates on the "monetary policy-relevant inflation," which excludes from the headline inflation first-round effects of indirect tax changes.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The monetary policy horizon is 12–18 months ahead. The horizon had been temporarily prolonged because of the size and nature of inflationary shocks between August 2022 and February 2023.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	There is no numerical interest rate target. Interest rates are used as the monetary policy instrument, and their changes correspond to the relevant macroeconomic forecasts and their risks. The main CNB instrument is the two-week repo rate. In some situations, the CNB may use other instruments at its disposal. For instance, it may conduct foreign exchange interventions to influence the koruna exchange rate and moderate excessive exchange rate volatility. The CNB was using foreign exchange interventions from November 2013 till April 2017 as part of its exchange rate commitment with the aim of providing the required monetary policy easing in a situation where monetary policy interest rates have reached "technical zero."

Transparency	Yes.	The CNB promotes the importance of having a credible and transparent monetary policy to effectively anchor inflation expectations and thereby maintain price stability and overall macroeconomic stability in the Czech Republic.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Voting ratio is published at the press conference on the day of decision. Individual votes on interest rates are published in the minutes of the Board meeting eight days after the meeting.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	Attributed minutes with opinions of individual board members are published eight days after the meeting.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Forecasts are conducted and published in detail four times a year, including endogenous interest rates and exchange rate outlooks.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and bureaux de change set their own exchange rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are two types of nonbank foreign exchange institutions in the Czech Republic: (1) foreign exchange institutions authorized only for cash transactions (bureau-de-change activity—853 registration holders as of June 30, 2023) and (2) noncash foreign exchange institutions—91 as of June 30, 2023. Noncash foreign exchange operations are governed by the Payments Act (Act No. 370/2017 Coll. on Payments) implementing the Payment Services Directive 2 (No. 2015/2366/EC, PSD 2) and the Electronic Money Directive (No. 2009/110/EC, EMD), EC delegated and implementing regulations and decrees of the CNB. Under the national legislation, noncash spot currency exchange transactions are permitted only within the framework of payment transactions, and a payment institution license or a small payment institution license (as defined in Article 32 of the PSD 2) is required. Therefore, all noncash foreign exchange institutions must have a new payment institution license or a small payment institution license. There were 52 small payment institutions and 23 payment institutions as of June 30, 2023 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). Under EMD, electronic money institutions and small electronic money institutions may carry out noncash spot currency exchange transactions. There were 3 electronic money institution and 13 small electronic money institutions as of June 30, 2023 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). The CNB issues all these licenses. The licensing requirements for foreign entities are similar to those for Czech entities. Payment institutions in an EU member state may operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime under Article 28 of the PSD 2. Electronic money institutions can also operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime. The operation of cash foreign exchange bureaus is governed by Act No. 277/2013 Coll. on Foreign Exchange Activities. This law sets out the license requirements, the reporting requirements to the CNB, registration of business premises, and information for customers about exchange rates and fees and requirements for the Exchange rate list. Foreign exchange services within the scope of Article 18(1)a of the PSD 2, which also apply to electronic money institutions under Article 3 of the EMD, may be provided in addition to the payment services listed in the annex to the PSD 2, including transfers on behalf of clients. Under Article 10 of the PSD 2 and Article 22 of the Payments Act, noncash foreign exchange institutions may have accounts in credit institutions in an EU member country or a third country with banking supervision similar to that of the CNB. The same rules apply to electronic money institutions under Article 80 of the Payments Act. Cash foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad and may purchase and sell only banknotes, coins, and checks. They may not make payments on behalf of their clients. All institutions must comply with measures for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing under the Anti-Money-Laundering Directive (No. 2015/849) and implementing Czech legislation (Act No. 253/2008 Coll.). Under Act No. 136/2011 Coll., on the circulation of banknotes and coins, as amended, employees handling foreign currency of cash and noncash foreign exchange institutions must complete a CNB course on the identification of counterfeit banknotes and coins.

Interbank market	Yes.	All banks and other institutions with valid licenses may operate in the local interbank market, but not all are active market makers. For example, according to the results of the Bank for International Settlements Triennial Survey, in 2019, only three banks represented 75% of the total turnover of the local market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, which depend only on the current liquidity conditions in the market. There are no special commissions; only a brokerage fee is paid to brokers.
Over the counter	Yes.	The majority of foreign exchange transactions are made over the counter. Koruna futures contracts are traded on stock exchanges abroad, but these transactions are negligible.
Brokerage	Yes.	The majority of transactions take place via electronic or voice brokers, although bilateral direct trades are also conducted.
Market making	Yes.	Market makers provide prices continuously based on supply and demand without CNB or any other interference.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Currently, the CNB is not active on the local derivatives market but uses derivatives in other major currencies mainly for reserve management purposes.

Act No. 323/2016 Coll. does not replace the Foreign Exchange Act as most foreign exchange activities have been already regulated by Foreign Exchange Activities Act No. 277/2013 Coll. and the remaining provisions by the Crisis Management Act No. 240/2000 Coll. The Czech government is authorized to apply restrictions during the state of emergency only. To resolve the state of crisis, the Czech government must discuss with the CNB measures that are within the scope of the activity of the above bank. Certain measures are in effect to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and the Council of October 28, 2018, on controls of cash entering or leaving the EU, cash controls have been implemented by National Act No. 253/2008 Coll. on Selected Measures against Legitimization of Proceeds of Crime and Financing of Terrorism in the Czech Republic. Cash controls are based on a mandatory declaration system. Natural persons must declare to the customs authorities in writing imports and exports of currency of the Czech Republic or another country in the amount of €10,000 or more on entry into the Czech Republic from a non-EU third country and on exit to any such territory. The obligation to make such a declaration also applies to a legal person when transferring funds in excess of EUR 10,000.00, and this declaration must be made on behalf of the legal person by a natural person who has a power of attorney for such an action. There is also an obligation to make a declaration when transferring cash by international mail, which applies to both natural persons and legal persons (the so-called unaccompanied cash). The customs authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to the FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler does not make a declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the national law, the customs authorities have the right to check natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. Cash may be confiscated in the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation. The national law allows penalties up to CZK 10 million or a forfeiture of the items for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the customs authorities may exchange information with the appropriate authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. Because the Czech Republic has no external borders with third countries, cash controls are applied only at international airports and in respect to the international post. The Czech Republic does not apply cash controls to cross-border movements of cash within the EU. Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation harmonizes the system only for the EU's external borders.

At the request of the CNB, legal entities with branches in the Czech Republic and natural persons with permanent residence in the Czech Republic must report accounts and balances on accounts or other forms of deposit abroad, including money entrusted for deposit. Foreign legal entities and natural persons may be asked to fulfill this requirement for their business in the Czech Republic. Prudential limits apply to pension companies (that administer third pillar transformed and participation funds) and other institutions. Controls apply to transformed fund deposits in nonresident institutions by the pension companies unless the nonresident institution is a bank with a registered office in the Czech Republic, a branch of a foreign bank in the Czech Republic, or a bank with a registered office in an OECD member. Pension companies may invest assets in pension/participation funds (third pillar) in deposits that are freely redeemable or time deposits whose maturity does not exceed two years of a bank headquartered in the Czech Republic, a foreign bank headquartered in another EU member, or a bank headquartered in another foreign country whose prudential rules the CNB considers equivalent to those of the EU. The Solvency II regulatory regime was introduced September 23, 2016, and second pillar pension funds were abolished January 1, 2016, and liquidated by December 31, Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Act No. 21/1992 Coll. on Banking was amended to implement Basel III prudential requirements, including those of the CRR (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013) and the CRD IV (Directive No. 2013/36/EU). Decree No. 163/2014 Coll. on the activity of banks, credit unions, and investment firms fully implements CRR and CRD IV regulatory requirements. Amendments to Act No. 21/1992 Coll., Act No. 87/1995 Coll., and Decree No. 163/2014 Coll. implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/876—CRR II and Directive (EU) No. 2019/878—CRD V, which are based on the revised Basel III standard are in force. As of October 1, 2021, the amendments contains, in particular: - changes to the rules for calculating Pillar 2 capital requirement, - changes to the capital buffer framework, - changes to the regulation of financial holding companies and mixed financial holding companies subject to certain prudential requirements on a consolidated basis, - changes to the remuneration framework taking into account the principle of proportionality. Effective January 1, 2022, amendments introduced minor changes regarding leverage ratio requirements.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.	In the Czech Republic, investments of insurance and reinsurance companies are regulated by the Insurance Act (Act No. 277/2009 Coll.). The Solvency II Directive was transposed into the Insurance Act on September 23, 2016. Since then, rules for investments of insurers and reinsurers have not changed. The rules are based on the prudent person principle. There are no legal quantitative limits; nevertheless, insurance and reinsurance companies must follow stipulated principles, for example: (1) Investments are only possible in assets whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, report, and take them into account appropriately in the assessment of its overall needs. All assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. (2) The assets intended to settle liabilities must be invested in a manner adequate to the nature and duration of insurance/reinsurance obligations and in the best interests of all policyholders and beneficiaries.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(3) Investments must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive dependence on a particular asset, issuer, or group of persons or geographical area and to avoid excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Moreover, the relevant insurance/reinsurance company has to set the rules for its investments according to the above-mentioned principles.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	No legal quantitative limits on securities issued by nonresidents are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held abroad are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held locally are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	In terms of currency matching, no legal quantitative rules on assets/liabilities composition are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Pension funds	Yes.	In the Czech Republic, the pension companies and pension funds are regulated by the Supplementary Pension Savings Act No. 427/2011 Coll., also known as third pillars of the National Pension Scheme. Pension funds and pension companies are supervised by the CNB, and the law prescribes their prudential rules on eligible assets, including investment limits. These limits vary, depending on the kind of fund and its strategy. There is only a limited prescribed strategy for third pillar funds, except for the conservative plan, which must comply with the portfolio composition and investment limits. Transformed pension funds (third pillar): In 2013, pension funds were changed from self-management to transformed pension plans managed by pension companies, and clients' and shareholders' assets are now separate. There is now a guarantee of zero plus yields for which the pension company must hold sufficient funds (or decrease its own funds). General robust prudential rules apply to the management of pension funds. The law prescribes eligible assets and investment limits—for example, 10% in instruments issued by the same entity, except government bonds; 10% in real estate; and 50% in assets in the currency of liabilities to beneficiaries and use of derivatives only for hedging. Pension funds and pension companies are authorized and supervised by the CNB under Act No. 42/1994 Coll. on State-Contributory Supplementary Pension Insurance Act. Supplementary pension savings (third pillar): In 2013, the law adopted in 2011 established a new third pillar based on UCITS principles. Pension funds are managed by a pension company authorized and supervised by the CNB under UCITS-like prudential rules. Pension savings are individual pension plans that allow investment in a broader array of participation funds (type of common fund). Employers are encouraged by tax law to contribute. Savings are supported by a direct government contribution. The conservative fund for the participation pension funds (third pillar) is the only mandatory fund. Similarly to the UCITS rules, the law prescribes eligible assets. The investments may consist only of transferable securities; risk management is required, and techniques and instruments for efficient portfolio management are allowed. The conservative plan (third pillar) may invest only in bonds, money market instruments, money market funds, and deposits. Investment limits are 30% for private bonds and money market instruments. Limits for a single issuer are 5%–100% for public bonds with a qualified rating. Other plans must invest in UCITS-like transferable securities. Limits for collective investment schemes are 5%–35%. IORP—second pillar: Domestic IORP are prohibited. EU-IORP are permitted if the contributing employer is in the Czech Republic.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For transitional-transformed pension funds, bonds and other debt securities are not allowed unless they are issued by governments and CBs of OECD members; guaranteed by such governments; or issued by the EIB, EBRD, or IBRD (Article 33 of the Act on Pension Funds). For supplementary pension savings (third pillar), up to 100% may be in bonds and money market instruments issued by governments and CBs of OECD members with a qualified rating. Limits for other single issuers are 5%–20%. The limit for other financial instruments is 30% (conservative fund).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	Safekeeping of assets is provided by depository banks located in the Czech Republic; deposits abroad are allowed only under an agreement with the depository bank.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	At least 50% of assets must be denominated in the currency of pension fund liabilities to beneficiaries for plans in the transitional-transformed pension fund. Only assets in the conservative fund for supplementary pension savings (third pillar) must be fully hedged against currency risk.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	Act No. 240/2013 Coll. on Investment Companies and Investment Funds replaced Act No. 189/2004 Coll. on Collective Investments in 2013. The law prescribes prudential rules for management of collective investment in accordance with the UCITS directive. Law No. 240/2013 Coll. on Investment Companies and Investment Funds together with implementing Government Decree No. 243/213 Coll. prescribes eligible assets and investment limits for UCITS funds and non-UCITS funds, which are permitted to offer to the general public. Funds of qualified investors have a wide range of investment opportunities.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	General limits according to the UCITS IV Directive are applicable—some qualitative and quantitative limits on non-EU instruments.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 1672/2018, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for accompanied cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Natural persons entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the competent authorities of the member state through which they enter or leave the EU. Further to this, the Danish Customs Act, Section 10c(1) applies to cross-border transportation from Denmark to another EU member state and from another EU member state to Denmark for accompanied cash with a value of €10,000 or more. For unaccompanied cash of a value of more than €10,000, the sender or the recipient of the cash may be required to make a disclosure declaration within a deadline of 30 days. The cash may be detained until the disclosure declaration has been made according to the EU regulation Article 4 and the Danish Customs Act, Section 10d(2). The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU, cf. section 10 d(3). The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the person makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to carry out controls on natural persons, their luggage, and their means of transport. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member states to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member state may exchange information with authorities in other member states. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member state to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purpose of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.
On exports	No.

Foreign owners (EU/EEA and non-EU/EEA) of commercial vessels need to maintain and prove that economic activity in relation to the vessel is carried out in or from Denmark and appoint a contact for control and similar purposes that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner (a Danish natural or legal person). For fishing vessels and pleasure crafts, the vessel must be effectively administered, controlled, and directed from Denmark and owners fulfill an establishment requirement. For non-EU/EEA entities, the establishment requirement may be fulfilled by setting up a subsidiary, branch, or agency in Denmark. For EU/EEA entities, the requirement may also be fulfilled merely by appointing an entity in Denmark that may be contacted for control and similar purposes and that may be sued on behalf of the owner or the ship owner; (2) ownership by non-EU residents of one-third or more of a business engaged in commercial fishing; (3) airlines established in the country that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (4) investment in accounting services by non-EU residents through indirect control—see the approval procedure in the Danish Act on Approved Auditors and Audit Firms, Section 13(2)—and in legal services by nonresidents; and (5) the extent that under EU Directive 2009/65/EF, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the UCITS or be established (have a branch) in the same EU country as the UCITS if its registered office is in another EU country. Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The official buying and selling rates for currencies other than the US dollar are set by local banks and money changers, based on cross-rates for the US dollar in international markets. Banks may freely set quotes and commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Institutions that deal in foreign exchange with the public are authorized by the BCD. As of December 31, 2022, 12 credit institutions and 20 foreign exchange bureaus operating in Djibouti were authorized. Foreign exchange bureaus may not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCD but may maintain accounts abroad. The operations of licensed foreign exchange bureaus are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. Transfer bureaus (hawalas) may engage in exchange operations and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCD stands ready to exchange US dollars for Djibouti francs at the fixed exchange rate of DF 177.721 per US dollar without a margin or commission. The BCD exchanges unlimited amounts of US dollars with the treasury and banks at the fixed exchange rate through transfers between accounts held abroad. Foreign exchange bureaus handle the retail end of this business with large overseas transfers.

Open general licenses	Yes.	Certain goods require a license for public health or safety reasons.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	There are certain quantitative restrictions on imports of flour.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Most rates are ad valorem. Dominica applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. The maximum tariffs on most CARICOM agricultural and nonagricultural products are 40% and 20%, respectively. Lower rates apply to machinery (0%–15%) and some essential foodstuffs (0%–15%), whereas higher rates apply to import-substituting domestic appliances (20%–35%) and motor vehicles (10%–40%). Specific taxes are applied to some goods. These include an excise tax levied on (1) motor vehicles, (2) alcohol, (3) petroleum products, and (4) tobacco and tobacco substitutes at the rates set out in the Excise Tax Regulations (SRO 5) of 2006. Certain imports are exempt. A VAT is levied, and legislation designates certain zero-rated items and exempt imports. Imports are subject to a 1.5% environmental surcharge in addition to the 3% customs service charge. An environmental surcharge of EC$3,000 is payable on vehicles more than five years old. Vehicles less than five years old are subject to a rate of 1.5%, but a concessionary rate of 1% is extended to returning residents.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	A state agency imports sugar and rice in bulk.

The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic (CBDR) aims to increase gradually the flexibility of the exchange rate alongside the implementation of the inflation-targeting framework formally adopted in 2012. The CBDR does not pursue a particular fixed exchange rate level, but rather seeks to manage a pathway around its long-term equilibrium value, consistent with the fundamentals of the Dominican Republic economy and its inflation target. The CBDR intervenes in the foreign exchange market to avoid instances of excessive exchange rate volatility that might affect the inflation target. The CBDR publishes data on foreign exchange sales and purchases in the foreign exchange market by different institutional actors (financial intermediaries and remittance/foreign exchange agents). The data are published on a gross (all transactions) basis and a net basis (excluding interbank operations). The CBDR does not disclose data on its volume of foreign exchange transactions with financial intermediaries. Since December 2021, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to other managed from crawl-like, effective December 10, 2021.

Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Settlements within the LAIA (ALADI) framework must be made in US dollars. Transactions are carried out through the Federal Reserve and are settled in US dollars. Other transactions between residents and nonresidents may be made in any currency. Sums owed will be paid in the agreed currency and, if no explicit agreement exists, in the domestic currency. The foreign exchange regime will be based on the free convertibility of the domestic currency with other currencies. Economic agents will be able to perform transactions in foreign currencies based on terms entered into freely in compliance with general contract regulations. Under no circumstances must the CB require certain foreign currency operations to be carried out exclusively with the CB or according to terms that do not guarantee the free determination of prices on the market.

It should be noted that imports of animal or plant products are conditional on the importer's first obtaining a health and/or plant health import permit, as appropriate.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of articles or living beings that could pose an environmental risk, such as live animals; seeds; plants; fruits; plant and animal products that are unhealthy, decomposing, or infected with germs or parasites; and substances harmful or injurious to human, plant, or animal health are prohibited. In addition, other prohibited products include: firearms, their parts and munitions; used domestic electrical appliances; pesticides and insecticides; cocoa plants, fruits, seeds, and any part thereof; musaceous plants (bananas) and any part thereof; used clothing; right-hand drive vehicles; damaged vehicles; light-weight vehicles that are over five years old, and heavy-weight vehicles that are over 15 years old.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Products included in the Technical Rectification to Schedule XXIII of Tariff Concessions of the Dominican Republic under the WTO rules are subject to tariff rate quotas (rice, garlic, refined sugar, brown sugar, chicken meat, onion, beans, milk, and corn). No imports of agricultural products are subject to quantitative restrictions (for example, quotas); tariff quotas are applied only to a specific list of products, within the framework of the WTO or trade agreements. Under the WTO, the Dominican Republic applies tariff quotas to imports of chicken, corn, beans, onions, powdered milk, rice, and sugar. Under the Central American-Dominican Republic Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA-DR) tariff quotas are applied to imports from the USA for the following products: beef, cuts of pork, lard, chicken thighs, turkey meat, powdered milk, mozzarella cheese, cheddar cheese, ice cream, yogurt, husked rice, semi-whitened or whitened rice, beans, and glucose. Quotas are applied to Nicaragua for the following products: chicken breasts, onions and shallots, and beans. Quotas are applied to Costa Rica for chicken breasts and powdered milk. Under the CARIFORUM-EU EPA (Caribbean Forum-EU Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA)), the Dominican Republic applies a tariff quota to powdered milk originating from the EU. The import of radio transmitters/receivers and radio communications, radio broadcasting, or television equipment or appliances listed under

Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In the Dominican Republic, there are five tariff rates: 0%, 3%, 8%, 14%, and 20%, which apply to the temporary duty- and tax-free import system for certain goods reexported within 18 months of being processed, prepared, or repaired. A zero rate applies to imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment to be used in the textile, agriculture, and tourism (within poles under development) sectors. The Customs Duty of the Dominican Republic, Law No. 146-00 and amendments proclaimed on May 4, 2007, provide for a 100% exemption from import duties for inputs, fertilizers, equipment, and machinery to be used in the agricultural industry, as well as a 100% exemption from payment of the Tax on the Transfer of Industrialized Goods and Services (Impuesto sobre Transferencia de Bienes Industrializados y Servicios – ITBIS). In addition, Law No. 158-01 as amended promotes the execution of new projects intended to develop the country's tourist destinations (polos turísticos). The FTA between the Dominican Republic, Central America, and the USA (CAFTA-DR) allows duty-free entry for goods from the USA in respect of 97.1% of customs duty; only 2.9% of the customs duty, limited to agricultural products characterized by high production sensitivity, will be subject to tariff relief phased in over the next nine years. Under the CARIFORUM (Caribbean Forum)-EU EPA, there are 19 tariff rates: 0%, 2%, 3%, 4%, 5%, 6%, 7%, 8%, 9%, 10%, 11%, 12%, 14%, 15%, 17%, 18%, 20%, 36%, and 37%. Under the EPA-DR, duty-free entry of goods from EU signatories will be phased in over 17 years.

Operations in securities for public offering are regulated under Law No. 249-17 on the Securities Market, as well as the regulatory provisions issued by the National Securities Market Board and the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market within the scope of their authorities. Private investments are not governed by this law. Transactions related to FDI are regulated under Law No. 16 -95.
On capital market securities	Yes.	Only the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market has the authority to authorize public offerings of securities throughout the territory of the Dominican Republic, on submission of the documents required under this law and its regulations. Law No. 249-17 considers fixed and variable rate securities to be publicly offered securities. The Regulation to the Law on Public Offerings establishes the conditions and requirements for the issuance of securities by issuers entitled to differential treatment and companies in the Dominican securities market. The said regulation also provides for fixed income exchange public offerings and public offerings for the acquisition of shares. The Office of the Superintendent published instructions establishing the requirements for the authorization of a public offering and the preparation of the required documents. In addition, the Regulation on Corporate Governance sets out the voluntary regime for fixed income securities issuers and mandatory provisions applicable to listed companies. The Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds modernized the regulatory framework and allowing for greater diversification of instruments as an investment alternative to funds. An instruction containing guidelines for preparing the various documents provided for in the Regulation on Administrators and Investment Funds was published. The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market is currently preparing the Regulation on Public Offering Trusts and Securitization Companies and the Securitization Process, as required by Law No. 249-17 (Transitional Provision Three of the Law on the Securities Market). Law No. 163-21 on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities in the Dominican Republic Securities Market aims at promoting the placement and trading of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic securities market. The Law states that the promotion and development of the public offering of securities as a financing mechanism for investment projects, enterprises, and commercial companies to contribute to the stimulation of various sectors of the national economy is of national interest. The Law deals with tax measures aimed at promoting the development of listed companies in the Dominican Republic by establishing a capital gains tax exemption for listed companies for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. Likewise, it lowers the capital gains tax rate for the seller of shares of a listed company, which must be reported in the annual tax return. It should be mentioned that this tax rate is valid for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. In addition, it grants a special liability regime to the purchasers of shares listed in the Stock Market Registry, which are subscribed or traded in the stock market and which are part of a public offering, so that they are not considered to have joint and several liability for the tax obligations of the seller or of the issuing listed company. This special liability regime is not applicable to those shareholders who, directly or indirectly, participate in the management of the company in which investments are made or exercise, directly or indirectly, control over the administration and management of the company in the manner provided by Law No. 249-17, on the Securities Market of the Dominican Republic and its implementing regulations. On the other hand, it grants the National Securities Market Council powers to offer temporary differentiated regulatory treatment for compliance with corporate governance provisions, for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. For investment funds, Law No. 163-21 grants an extension of an additional three years to the time period established in Law No. 249-17, that is, 6 years for the real estate transfer tax.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Traded in our securities market are fixed income securities of corporate issuers, and both fixed income and variable income securities (of a participating nature) issued against autonomous assets, that is, investment funds and publicly offered trusts, and separate securitization assets. The first public offering of common shares was approved in April 2022 and was placed in August 2023. This public offering of shares will involve the issuance of new shares as a result of a capital increase to be carried out, which will represent 30% of the company's total capital stock once the new shares are placed. The second issue involved preferred shares of a full-service bank. Both were issued and placed in domestic currency.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Public offerings by foreign issuers are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and the Regulation on Public Offerings. Likewise, by Law No. 163-21, on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities of the Dominican Republic. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile. Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income. It should be clarified that the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities exchanges and the centralized securities depositary may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

Purchase abroad by residents	No.	The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries creates the position of "intermediary/introducer," defined as follows: "the securities intermediary making a referral and providing assistance to a client in order for the latter to establish a contractual relationship with another domestic or foreign securities intermediary and to assist with opening and maintaining securities brokerage accounts on the client's behalf." There is nothing to prevent residents with access to foreign intermediaries from opening brokerage accounts and trading directly.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	As of the date of this report, residents who are participants in the securities market for the issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV. Pursuant to said resolution, securities issuers and participants subject to this regulation are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities on the domestic market or abroad. Notification of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information is not required for residents who are not participants in the securities market. Residents who are not participants in the securities market are defined as legal entities not registered in the Securities Market Registry and therefore not subject to supervision by the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Effective December 9, 2022, the Regulation on Privileged Information, Market Sensitive Information, and Market Manipulation (R-CNMV-2022-10-MV) repealed the aforementioned Resolution R-

		CNV-2015-33-MV. Article 22(g) of this Regulation will require the issuers of securities, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts to report the authorization of a public offering in the foreign market as market sensitive information. Likewise, in the event that residents are not participants in the aforementioned securities market, they are not required to notify the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic requires the prior authorization of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Certain issuers, such as the CB, the government, and multilateral agencies, and the securities they issue, are governed by their own laws and are exempt from the authorization of the Office of the Superintendent for public offerings. They must submit the legal basis for each issuance and the description of the essential characteristics of the securities for purpose of entry in the Registry. The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican territory is applicable to both residents and nonresidents. Participants in the securities market that issue abroad must comply with the provisions of Article 12 of the Regulation on Market Sensitive Information. If they are not participants in the securities markets, compliance with this provision is not required.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Nonresidents purchasers must participate in a program such as Global Depository Notes (GDN), in which a custodian or international bank issues securities abroad underpinned with Dominican bonds.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Public offerings by foreigners are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and the Regulation on Public Offerings, and by Law No. 163-21, on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities of the Dominican Republic. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile. 		securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities exchanges and the centralized securities depositary may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents who are participants in the securities market for the sale or issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV. Effective December 9, 2022, this resolution was repealed on the entry into force of the Regulation on Privileged Information, Market Sensitive Information, and Market Manipulation (R-CNMV-2022-10-MV), which requires that the issuers of securities, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts listed in the Securities Market Registry report the authorization of a public offering in the foreign market as market sensitive information. Pursuant to said regulation, securities issuers, investment fund administrators, securitization companies, and trust companies that manage public offering trusts, which are subject to this regulation, are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities abroad. If they are not participants in the securities markets, compliance with this provision is not required.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Law No. 249-17 on the Securities Market of December 19, 2017, and the Regulation for Securities Intermediaries (under R-CNMV-2019-21-MV) apply. The derivatives currently in use are linear (forward, with and without delivery; swaps). For customers in the securities market, derivatives must be defined within their product offering, and they must have an operating manual deposited with the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Securities intermediaries have a risk policy and have requirements regarding the definition of limits. The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries establishes certain measures for transactions with derivatives, such as the following: (1) Securities intermediaries may not offer non-standardized derivative instruments to non-professional investors, unless contracting of the product is not speculative, but has a hedging purpose for the client. (2) Clients must be duly informed of the asset and investment valuation method, where applicable, such as in the case of derivative instruments and leveraged products. Valuation by the intermediary must meet objective and verifiable criteria, which must be established contractually.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Public offerings by foreigners are governed by the Law on the Securities Market, Law No. 163-21, and the Regulation on Public Offerings. In addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into

As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile. Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income. The sale of publicly offered securities by nonresidents within the Dominican territory is regulated by the Law on the Securities Market. The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities exchanges and the centralized securities depositary may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Intermediary financial institutions are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital, (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions, and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients. Full-service banks (bancos multiples) may grant loans in US dollars for up to 100% of their available resources obtained in foreign currency and held in the form of savings or time deposits. Eighty-five percent of these loans must be directed to individuals or legal entities that generate foreign exchange. The foreign-currency financing limit does not apply to financial resources in US dollars to be used for the importation, distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation. The CBDR is authorized to phase out the amount of resources full-service banks are required to hold with the CBDR to meet the investment ratio, provided this authorization is stipulated under the legal reserve requirement policy set forth by the Monetary Board.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Financial intermediaries are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital; (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions; and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients. Full-service banks may obtain financing abroad on a short-term basis, subject to a limit of 30% of their paid-up capital and reserves.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	The regulations do not discriminate in this regard. Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or securities to a single resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, or up to 20% if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees. Effective January 13, 2023, these limits were extended to 15% for unsecured loans and 30% for secured transactions.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Full-service banks may grant loans in US dollars for up to 100% of their available resources obtained in foreign currency and held in the form of savings or time deposits. Eighty-five percent of these loans must be directed to individuals or legal entities that generate foreign exchange. The foreign-currency financing limit does not apply to financial resources in US dollars to be used for the importation, distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Full-service banks, savings and loan banks, and savings and loan associations may acquire, assign, or transfer bills of exchange, securities, and other instruments representing obligations, as well as enter into repurchase agreements with them.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign-currency-denominated current accounts are not allowed. The opening of current accounts in a foreign currency is not included in the list of operations or services that can be carried out or provided by financial intermediaries pursuant to Monetary and Financial Law No. 183-02, Articles 40, 41, 42, 43, and 75.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Foreign currency reserve requirements, applicable to full-service banks and for the purpose of monitoring liquidity and imposing penalties, are calculated daily at a ratio of 20% on liabilities subject to reserve requirements. In the case of domestic currency reserve requirements applicable to full-service banks, the calculation is performed daily for the purpose of monitoring liquidity and imposing penalties, at a ratio of 12% of the liabilities subject to reserve requirements.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Requirements to maintain liquid assets to mitigate liquidity risk apply equally to all currencies. Nevertheless, these requirements do differ based on reserves, which are determined by reserve requirements. Given that reserve requirements differ based on currency, this differentiation indirectly affects liquid asset requirements. Intermediary financial institutions must have liquid assets equal to or greater than 80% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 30 days and equal to or greater than 70% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 90 days.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or endorsements to a resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, and up to 20% of capital and reserves if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees. Restrictions apply to the extension of direct or indirect loans to related persons or institutions in excess of certain percentages of paid-up capital. Effective January 13, 2023, these limits were extended to 15% for unsecured loans and 30% for secured transactions.

Other managed arrangement	01/01/2022	Since December 2021, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to other managed from crawl-like, effective December 10, 2021. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2022, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year's Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation, Second and Third Reviews under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, Request for a Waiver of Nonobservance of Performance Criterion, and Financing Assurances Review for Ecuador states that, as of September 20, 2021, Ecuador maintained an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval arising from a 5% tax on transfers for the making of payments and transfers abroad on current international transactions. There are a number of exemptions from this tax. In September 2021, the government enacted an Executive Decree lowering the tax rate to zero for foreign airline companies operating in Ecuador, which will enter into force on its publication in the official gazette. In addition, the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement also gives rise to an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval since the period for settlement under the bilateral payment arrangement exceeds three months. In accordance with Article 94 “Currency in the Republic of Ecuador,” all transactions, monetary and financial operations, and the relevant accounting records executed in the Republic of Ecuador must be drawn up in US dollars, in accordance with this Code. The circulation, exchange, withdrawal, and demonetization of US dollars, the currency of the Republic of Ecuador, must be exclusively incumbent on the Central Bank of Ecuador (CBE), as provided under this Code and the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The CBE is the sole entity authorized to provide and manage national coins in the Republic of Ecuador, equivalent to and convertible to US dollars, as provided under this Code and subject to the regulation and authorization of the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The currency determined in this article is a means of payment. The currency is valid as legal tender in the Republic of Ecuador in the framework of the regulations issued by the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board. The state may not in any case require any individual or legal entity under private law to accept currency

Exchange tax	Yes.	Ecuador has no tax on foreign exchange operations. However, all transfers abroad are subject to the ISD, barring certain exemptions. Outflows in connection with bank loans exceeding one year are exempt for specific sectors indicated in the Productivity Code (such as housing and microfinance). Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%). Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%). Ecuadorian citizens and travelers abroad may leave the country without paying ISD with cash amounting to up to three times the minimum salary per person (US$1,350 as of 2023). Effective February 1, 2023, the ISD is 3.75% (previously 4%). Effective July 1, 2023, the ISD is 3.50% (previously 3.75%).
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries are allowed to freely determine the spread between the buying and selling exchange rate and the commissions they charge their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Exchange bureaus that engage in transactions in the country must obtain a license from the Banking Superintendency (SB), out of which two are active according to the public registry of the SB as of September 6, 2022, and may only engage in the following transactions in accordance with Section II: Constitution, Functioning, and Operation of Exchange Bureaus; Chapter XXXVI: Financial Service Institutions; Title II: National Financial System, Book I: Monetary and Financial System, Codification of Monetary, Financial, Securities, and Insurance Resolutions. (1) Buy, sell, and exchange foreign banknotes or coins. (2) Buy and sell traveler's checks denominated in foreign exchange. (3) Buy and sell checks denominated in foreign exchange. (4) Buy payment orders denominated in foreign exchange. (5) Arrange draws or transfers in foreign exchange charged to accounts that the company holds with banks in the country or abroad in connection with their business activities. According to the SB register, there are two active exchange bureaus. The SB must indicate which entities are authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations (not only exchange bureaus). Purchase and sale or currency swap operations carried out regularly on a permanent basis in the free currency market, as well as the purchase and sale of checks, draws or transfers in foreign exchange, made against accounts in domestic or foreign banks, must be carried out solely by banks or exchange bureaus duly authorized by the SB. The CBE publishes the price table (reference exchange rates) on its website. This information is a reference for operations carried out in the public and private sectors.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	Because the Ecuadorian economy is dollarized and the law does not provide for the use of currencies other than the US dollar for making domestic transactions, there are no exchange markets, except of a marginal nature in financial institutions and on an informal level. Thus, the CBE does not intervene or engage in any type of activity in

Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, 24 institutions (23 national banks) hold licenses granted by the SB, according to its public registry. In accordance with Article 312 of the Constitution, financial institutions may not engage in any activity that is unrelated to the financial system. Article 194, Indent d, Numeral 5, of the COMF states that, with regard to services, financial entities may "on their own behalf or on behalf of third parties, carry out foreign exchange transactions, repo transactions, and issue and negotiate traveler's checks." Article 43 of the COMF regarding information on trading in foreign currencies other than the US dollar states that entities in the national financial system authorized to trade in foreign currencies other than the US dollar are required to report to the CBE, following the form and periodicity specified by the Board, on the amounts and exchange rates of their transactions and to provide information needed by the Bank concerning movements in their foreign currency accounts. Failure to comply with this provision will be punishable as a serious infraction in accordance with the said Code.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The economy of Ecuador is dollarized, and therefore, there are no foreign exchange markets other than the dollar, except on a marginal basis. Accordingly, the CBE does not engage in any operations or practices with currencies other than the US dollar with the national financial system. The functions of the CBE include the administration of resources abroad, for which it has the Policy for the Investment of International Investment Assets and which entail the authorization to conduct swap operations solely with the gold portfolio. At present, there are no portfolios in other foreign currencies for "Contingent State." There are only minimum balances in euro and yen, which are the currencies with the highest movement. To keep accounts abroad active, the cash management unit acquires other foreign currencies to fulfill specific obligations, as required by the Payments System Directorate.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Transactions with all countries must be carried out in convertible currencies and whenever possible, import and export payments and collections must be made in the currency stipulated in the customs documents. Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Because the US dollar is the currency that has been adopted by Ecuador, its use is not only authorized by law, but it is also the legal tender within the country. No other currency is allowed to be used by residents.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	Payment arrangements exist with Cuba and Hungary but are currently inactive.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Ecuador is a member of the LAIA (active). Ecuador is still part of the SUCRE agreement, even though it has not channeled any operations through it since 2019. Related to the SUCRE agreement, effective March 11, 2022, the Monetary Policy and Regulation Board issued Resolution No. JPRM-2022-009-M, which eliminates operations with the SUCRE system and mandates. Previously, transactions channeled through SUCRE agreement had to be recorded using the "sucre" unit of account, with clearance every six months in convertible currencies.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The LAIA Reciprocal Payments and Credits Agreement is a multilateral payment clearing mechanism. Ecuador is still part of the SUCRE agreement, even though it has not channeled any operations through it since 2019. Related to the SUCRE agreement, effective March 11, 2022, the Monetary Policy and Regulation Board issued Resolution No. JPRM-2022-009-M, which eliminates operations with the SUCRE system and mandates. Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Inspection documents are required for agricultural, medical, arms, and psychotropic imports. In addition, EP Petroecuador (the state-owned oil company) may, without a license, import supplies, materials, and equipment during emergencies. COMEX is responsible for issuing rules on import procedures other than customs procedures, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses. It also determines what goods are prohibited. The reshipment of goods whose importation is prohibited is mandatory, except for clothing, perishable goods, and educational material, which will be donated to the Ministry in charge of social policy (Organic Code of Production, Commerce, and Investment (COPCI) Regulation). Most of the import prohibitions are maintained for sanitary, plant protection, and environmental reasons and to comply with international agreements. Through Executive Decree No. 068, the Facilitation of Trade and Production, the Simplification of Procedures, and the Competitiveness Agenda are declared Priority Public Policy. For this reason, the COMEX decrees various regulations in 2022 simplifying the system of ex ante controls and reducing the scope of tariff headings. This Resolution includes an analysis of the existing requirements to avoid duplicate controls and promote efficiency, simplification of procedures and optimization of resources, which is closely linked to compliance with the National Competitiveness Strategy. Between 2022 and 2023, COMEX issued several resolutions modifying the list of goods subject to pre-import controls. Effective October 3, 2022, Resolution 015-2022 was issued, incorporating the “Non-automatic license”, applicable to the importation of goods referred to waste, scrap and plastic trimmings. Effective January 6, 2023, Resolution 019-2022 was issued, incorporating the “Non-automatic license”, applicable to the importation of goods referred to polyurethanes. Effective June 28, 2023, Resolution 007-2023 was issued, reforming the automatic license applied to the importation for consumption of remanufactured aircraft engine parts. Effective August 30, 2023, Resolution 010-2023 was issued, which establishes different controls prior to importation for fentanyl and related chemical products.

Negative list	Yes.	Ecuador prohibits imports of certain products (221 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the Harmonized System (HS)), regardless of origin. The bans mostly affect organic chemicals (71 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 29 of the HS) and the other products of the chemical industry (56 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 38 of the HS), followed by nuclear reactors (35 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 84 of the HS), and fish and crustaceans, mollusks, and more aquatic invertebrates (34 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 3 of the HS). In addition, Ecuador prohibits the importation of other products (692 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the HS) according to the origin of the products for phyto-zoosanitary reasons and to implement, among others, the resolutions of the UNSC, and other international agreements in which Ecuador is a party. Effective May 30, 2022, Resolution 009-2022, in compliance with Article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68, was issued, which updates the lists of subheadings subject to ex ante control and prohibited from importation. Eliminating 1,405 (45% approximately) tariff subheadings from both lists, leaving a total of 2,254 controlled tariff subheadings and 221 tariff subheadings subject to import prohibition. The prohibited products are related to the protection of sharks and to restrict access to products that threaten the environment (radioactive, mercury, methane, benzene, methyls, among others).
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Five percent of the import quotas for “cotton not carded or combed” with a zero tariff is distributed to textile manufacturers not affiliated with the Association of Textile Industries of Ecuador. There are also import quotas for vehicles, parts for vehicle assembly, and for cell phones. Between 2022 and 2023, COMEX established policies for quotas, such as the following. Effective November 24, 2022, Resolution 017-2022 was issued, which approved the mechanisms and procedures for the administration of consolidated quotas within the framework of Ecuador’s accession protocol to the multiparty agreement with the EU, Colombia, and Peru. Effective June 20, 2023, Resolution 006-2023 was issued, which established a quota of 50 metric tons, monthly, for imports of preparations for animal feed.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures include safeguards, quotas, and contingencies. Plant protection and animal healthcare certificates are required, as are quality certificates for imports of certain products. A set of technical standards applies to imports of certain goods for consumer, health, and environmental protection. Ecuador uses various pre-import control documents, including importer registration, permits, prior import authorizations, the certificate of inspection or classification verification issued at origin, the customs destination document, certificates of recognition, and automatic and non-automatic licenses. In addition, some of the products subject to technical regulations issued by the Ecuadorian Standardization Service (Servicio Ecuatoriano de Normalización—INEN) require a “Certificate of Recognition” as a supporting document for importation, and products subject to phyto-zoosanitary requirements need the relevant certificates. The type of prior control may vary for the same product depending on the circumstances. Therefore, the requirements may vary or one type of permit may be replaced by another. Thus, the "Product Registration" has been replaced by the "Authorization for the Importation of Pesticides and Related Products for Agricultural Use" or by the "Sanitary Authorization for Veterinary Products"; or the "Importer Registration" by the "Phytosanitary Import Permit" or "Zoosanitary Import Permit"; the pre-import control documents called "Registro Sanitario" and "Permiso de importación" have been replaced by the document "Licencia de importación no automática." In 2012, COMEX established an import license, of a general and non-discriminatory nature, for imports under any customs regime or destination. This license is a necessary requirement to clear goods and COMEX must determine the requirements, terms, and conditions that importers must comply with to obtain non-automatic licenses. In the case of non-automatic import licenses for basic foodstuffs, which are granted by the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, the Ministry issued an instruction for importers to obtain the licenses. However, for the issuance of any type of license, a final order or judgment is required. Effective March 4, 2022, Resolution 002-2022, in compliance with Article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68: Elimination of the Ex Ante Control Document in the Ecuadorian One-Stop Scheme for 134 food subheadings (mineral waters, meat products, condiments, cookies, fruits, vegetables, candies), wheelbarrows and ceramics, from the repealed Ecuadorian technical regulations. Effective March 17, 2022, Resolution 005-2022, in compliance with article 5 of Executive Decree No. 68: Elimination of the Ex Ante Control Document in the Ecuadorian One-Stop Scheme for 6 subheadings, including medical chairs, notebooks, condoms, of the repealed Ecuadorian technical regulations.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In 2022, the Ecuadorian National Tariffs contained 8,315 tariff lines at the 10-digit HS 2017 level. Ecuador applies both ad valorem and compound tariffs. Compound tariffs apply to 5% of tariff lines (421 HS lines at the 10-digit level) and mostly tax apparel (350 HS61, HS62, HS63, and HS64 lines). The MFN tariff of Ecuador consists of 42 rates ranging from 0% to 67.5%, including tariffs resulting from the application of the price band, but excluding estimates of ad valorem equivalents. In 2022, 93.3% of the tariff lines were subject to tariff rates lower than 30%; 47.9% applied a tariff equal to 0%; and only 1.0% of the total tariff lines had a tariff higher than 30%. Imports are also subject to other charges that include: foreign currency transfers abroad (ISD), the VAT, the special consumption tax (ICE), and the contribution to the Development Fund for Children (FODINFA). In addition to specific tariffs, Ecuador continues to apply the Andean Price Band System (SAFP) to 189 tariff lines at the HS 2017 10-digit level (approximately 2.5% of the tariff universe). Products subject to the SAFP are meat and edible meat offal; milk and milk products (HS04); cereals (HS10); milling products (HS11); oil seeds and oleaginous fruits (HS12); animal or vegetable fats and oils (HS15); preparations of meat, fish or crustaceans (HS16); sugars and sugar confectionery (HS17); cereal-based preparations (HS19); residues and waste from the food industries; starch products (HS35); and miscellaneous products of the chemical industries. The lines to which the SAFP applies have two components: a fixed ad valorem component and a variable component. The duties resulting from the application of the SAFP vary according to the international price of the products in question. The purpose of this measure is to stabilize the domestic price of these products.

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Resolution-COMEX-019-2020, approved the commercial policy of incentives for productive development in Ecuador, which consists of the temporary deferral of the total payment of tariffs, which may be accessed only by natural persons, legal entities, or commercial trusts that carry out business activities or operate an ongoing business; they must comply with certain requirements established in Sections I, II, III, and III of the Annex I of the Resolution. This measure is applicable to imports from all countries. The benefits established by Resolution 019 of 2020 are still in effect.

In compliance with Executive Decree No. 68, related to the competitiveness strategy, simplification of procedures, trade facilitation, and boosting productivity, the COMEX has adopted the following resolutions on the subject of import tariffs:

Resolution 009-2021 (in compliance with Article 8 of Executive Decree No. 068) lowered the tariffs of 667 products: 590 now have a zero tariff; 30 are taxed at 5%; 20 at 10%; and the remaining 27 between 15% and 25%. Among the sectors, most benefited by the reform are those related to agriculture, technology, manufacturing, and automotive. As for agribusiness, almost half of the items will affect this sector, reducing the import tax on machinery and equipment.

In addition, to boost competitiveness, the Government issued Executive Decree No. 68, entitled “Decree for the Facilitation of Trade and Production, the Simplification of Procedures and the Competitiveness Agenda” to eliminate obstacles to productive activities and national and international trade and to consolidate the policy of quality, competitiveness, and productive reactivation.

The government decision establishes a period of 30 days for the Ministry of Production, Foreign Trade, Investment and Fisheries (MPCEIP); the Ministry of Environment, Water and Ecological Transition; the National Customs Service of Ecuador (SENAE); the National Standardization Service (INEN); the Health Regulation and Control Agency (Arcsa); the Agency for Regulation and Phytosanitary and Zoosanitary Control (Agrocalidad); and the Internal Revenue Service present an action plan to facilitate, through digital tools, or eliminate procedures, permits, licenses, certifications, technical regulations, and registrations that reduce national competitiveness.

Payments made for ISD on the import of raw materials, inputs, and capital goods included in the list established by the Tax Policy Committee may be considered as a tax credit for the payment of income tax (IR) (or its advance payment) for the year in which such payments were made, as well as for the following four years. This list was established in 2012, but may be modified in each tax year.

		Some transactions are exempt from ISD, such as payments for imports for the consumption of electric and induction stoves, their parts and pieces; pots and pans designed for use in induction stoves; and electric water heating systems for domestic use, including electric showers. Payments made abroad by administrators and operators of Special Economic Development Zones (ZEDE) for imports of goods and services related to their activity are also exempted. Payments for the importation of goods used to execute a public project, regardless of the import regime used, and the acquisition of services for the execution of the public project are also exempt. In the case of exports of goods and services, if the foreign currency corresponding to the payment of such exports does not enter Ecuador, ISD will be incurred. In 2023, COMEX issued resolutions modifying the tariff rates, which were as follows. Because of the drop in rice production, effective July 17, 2023, Resolution 008-2023 was issued, which temporarily reduced its tariff rate to 0% and suspended the application of the SAFP, for its import (tariff items 1006.10.90.00 - - Other and 1006.30.00.00 - SEMI-WASHED OR WHITTENED RICE), for a total quota of 63,246 tons until the end of 2023. Effective July 14, 2023, Resolution 009-2023 was issued, which reduced 50% of the tariff rate for the importation of 5,801 transport vehicles, whose beneficiaries will be the affiliates of the transport federations, according to the list approved by the Ministry of Transportation and Public Works (MTOP). The measure will be in force until the end of 2025.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	All transfers abroad are subject to the ISD, barring certain exemptions. The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation exempts the payment of the ISD for new productive investments that sign investment contracts for the import of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project, up to the amounts and terms established in the aforementioned contract. Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25% (previously 4.5%). Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4% (previously 4.25%). Ecuadorian citizens and travelers abroad may leave the country without paying ISD with cash amounting to up to three times the minimum salary per person (US$1,350 as of 2023); minimum salary (US$450 as of 2023). Effective February 1, 2023, the ISD is 3.75% (previously 4%). Effective July 1, 2023, the ISD is 3.50% (previously 3.75%).

Exporters must register with the Internal Revenue Service, after having obtained a digital certificate for their electronic signature and authentication from the CBE or from Security Data company, and after having registered on the ECUAPASS portal. The National Council for Foreign Trade (COMEX) requires that exporters also register with the Ministry of Production, Trade, Investment, and Fishing for: Exports of scrap and ferrous and non-ferrous metal waste. Resolution No. 400 of September 13, 2007, published in the Official Register Supplement No. 233 of December 17, 2007. Exports of leathers and skins. Resolution No. 402 of September 13, 2007, published in the Official Register Supplement No. 222 of November 29, 2007.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Prior to shipment, the SENAE authorizes exporters to begin the export process, with no charge from customs. The export customs declaration (DAE) is required, along with a pro forma invoice, previous authorizations, and an electronic preshipment certificate of origin.
Other	Yes.	The International Coffee Organization Certificate of Origin, issued by the National Coffee Board (COFENAC), has been added to customs documentation requirements for coffee exporters. The declarant must manage the accompanying and/or supporting documents to be attached to the DAE. These documents include the commercial invoice, packing list, prior authorization (if applicable), certificate of origin (if applicable), and phytosanitary certificate (if applicable). The export process begins with the transmission of the DAE. Once the DAE is received, the export entry report of the merchandise is registered in the primary zone through which it will be exported. Once the export entry report is registered, the ECUAPASS computer system automatically assigns the gauging channel for the goods, which may be automatic, documentary, or intrusive physical. If the assigned gauging channel is automatic, the exit of the goods from Ecuadorian customs territory is authorized (Authorized Exit); otherwise, the gauging act is performed, and if there are no observations, the responsible operator technician registers the closing of the gauging in the ECUAPASS system, and the status of "Authorized Exit" is assigned to the DAE. If there are any new developments in the gauging process, the technician operator records the observations so that they can be justified or corrected by the declarant within a period of one day. With the authorized departure from the DAE, the goods can be shipped. If necessary, the declarant may correct the DAE. Once the goods have been shipped, the declarant can regularize the DAE with SENAE, which completes the definitive export process.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exports of some products require licenses.
Without quotas	Yes.	The export prices of bananas, cocoa and finished products, coffee, and fish are subject to minimum f.o.b. reference prices.

		The Foreign Trade Committee (COMEX) is responsible for issuing regulations on export requirements, other than customs formalities, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses. In 2018, Ecuador prohibits definitive exports and temporary exports for outward processing in respect of certain products (480 HS tariff lines at the 10-digit level). The prohibitions mostly affect metal products and their manufactures, tools and implements, nuclear reactors, and automobiles. Ecuador guarantees the free export of goods, with the exception of those that could affect public health, the preservation of the environment, animal and plant health, and cultural heritage. Exports may also be restricted to comply with the commitments assumed by Ecuador within the framework of the various international agreements to which it is a signatory, such as the Montreal Protocol. Likewise, COMEX may regulate and/or restrict exports to ensure the supply of raw materials for national production and thus promote the incorporation of added value, in execution of the National Industrial Development Plan. These controls may be imposed ex officio or at the request of an industry.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Ecuador does not impose taxes on exports; however, in the case of exports of goods and services, if the money corresponding to the payment for such exports did not enter Ecuador, they would be subject to ISD.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	No.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	No.
Trade-related payments	No.	Transfers abroad are subject to the ISD tax. The tax is applicable to all financial transfers abroad. Certain import payments are exempt or generate a tax credit for importers. Imports of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project are exempt from the payment of the ISD, up to the amounts and terms established in the investment contract. Investment-related payments	No.	Payments abroad are subject to the ISD. The tax is applicable to all financial transfers abroad, including interest payments. Dividend payments are exempt. The ISD is waived for the outflows relating to bank loans of over one year for specific sectors identified in the Productive Code (for example, housing and microfinance). The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation establishes the following exemptions to the payment of the ISD in the case of investments: (1) Dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of IR, when applicable, in favor of effective beneficiaries who are natural persons domiciled or resident in Ecuador or abroad, shareholders of the company that distributes them, up to the term established in the aforementioned investment contract, as long as the resources of the investment come from abroad and the investor demonstrates the income of the foreign currency to the country. (2) Companies that reinvest in the country at least 50% of the profits, in new productive assets, will be exempt from payment of the ISD for payments abroad, for distribution of dividends to effective beneficiaries residing in Ecuador, of the corresponding fiscal year. For the application of this exemption, the corresponding capital increase must be made, which must be completed until December 31 of the fiscal year following that in which the profits were generated, subject to reinvestment. (3) Payments made abroad, for the amortization of capital and interest generated on loans granted by international financial institutions or specialized non-financial entities qualified by the corresponding control entities in Ecuador, which grant financing with a term of 360 calendar days or more; payments made abroad, for dividends distributed by national or foreign companies domiciled in Ecuador, after payment of IR. Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75%. Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50%. Effective July 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.25%. Effective October 1, 2022, the ISD is 4%. The Financial Policy and Regulation Board must dictate the rules governing relationships that financial entities will be required to keep in their lending, borrowing, and contingent operations, considering the risks stemming from differences in terms, rates, currencies, and other factors. Moreover, the Board must dictate the rules governing the development of risk management policies, technologies, and procedures. Article 209 – Orientation of credit operations. The Financial Policy and Regulation Board must regulate, by way or rules, the orientation and direction of the credit operations of entities of the national financial system and non-financial entities that grant credits above the limits established by the Board. In that regard, consideration must be given, among others, to segments, interest rates, guarantees, and credit limits. Under no circumstances may the Board intervene in defining the recipient individual or legal person of credit operations. To this end, the Board must consider term-matching between the assets and liabilities of regulated entities.

		regulatory bodies in Ecuador, are also exempt. These entities provide financing with a term of 180 calendar days or more, through credit, deposit, portfolio purchase and sale, securities trading in the stock market, or any other type of financial or legal instrument that allows the inflow of remittances for financing operations in Ecuador. Such payments must be earmarked for housing financing, microcredit, investment in capital representative rights, or productive investments made in Ecuador. In these cases, the interest rate for these transactions must be lower than the benchmark rate defined by the competent authority. If the financing interest rate exceeds the benchmark rate established by the competent authority, this exemption does not apply to the interest payments corresponding to the percentage that exceeds the said benchmark rate; however, the capital remains exempt regardless of the established rate. This exemption also applies to transfers or remittances made to financial institutions abroad, in compliance with conditions established by these institutions solely for the granting of their credits, provided these payments are not directed to third parties or jurisdictions not involved in the credit operation. This benefit is not accessible for financing operations granted, directly or indirectly, by related parties in terms of direction, administration, control, or capital, and are residents or established in tax havens or jurisdictions with lower taxation, except when the borrower is a financial institution. The registration of the financing operation with the CBE will be mandatory but not a limiting factor to access the exemption when, by nature, the operations do not require such registration. The competent authority, within its jurisdiction, may determine, through resolution, the segments, terms, conditions, and additional requirements for the purposes of this exemption.
		All transfers abroad that are not exempted are subject to the ISD. Effective January 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.75% (previously 5%). Effective April 1, 2022, the ISD is 4.50% (previously 4.75%). Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Banks have been instructed to freeze accounts and assets of listed individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, in accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions. Further, in 2002, the authorities established the Egyptian Money Laundering Combating Unit (EMLCU), which is the Egyptian FIU responsible for combating money laundering and terrorism financing. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and designated nonfinancial businesses and professions concerning transactions suspected of being proceeds of a crime or involving money laundering or terrorism financing or attempts to conduct such transactions. The EMLCU takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. AML/CFT Law No. 80 of 2002 was amended in May 2014, to address deficiencies in Egypt's AML/CFT regime, including with regard to international standards on combating money laundering/financing of terrorism and proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Egypt exited from the follow-up process at the Middle East and North Africa Region Financial Action Task Force (MENAFATF). In accordance with the amendments, the EMLCU will carry out Egypt's commitment under international conventions, treaties, and charters with respect to terrorism financing and financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. On November 3, 2016, the Central Bank of Egypt (CBE) announced its decision to move, with immediate effect, to a liberalized exchange rate regime to quell any distortions in the domestic foreign currency market. Pursuant to the above, banks and other market participants are at liberty to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Bid and ask exchange rates are determined by forces of demand and supply. The CBE uses the prevailing market rate for any transactions it undertakes. Any intervention carried by the Central bank in the foreign exchange market is transparently announced through a press release. Since May 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar with one realignment in October 2022. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “stabilized”, effective May 24, 2022. While the exchange rate has increased its flexibility from January 2023, more observations are needed to determine its new trend, until then the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as crawl-like.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The US dollar–pound official exchange rate is published daily through Reuters and Bloomberg. This rate reflects the weighted average interbank rate. The CBE uses its official rate to carry out foreign exchange transactions with banks, the government, and public institutions.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Monetary policy is in transition to a flexible inflation-targeting regime, where policy tools are utilized to anchor inflation expectations, to contain demand-side pressures and second-round effects of supply shocks to achieve inflation targets over the medium term. Policy tools include a corridor of overnight deposit and lending standing facilities, open market operations, and reserve requirements. The monetary policy rate is set by the CBE's MPC, which has six members comprising of the governor of the CBE, two deputy governors, and three other members of the Board of Directors. The MPC convenes every six weeks to decide on appropriate actions with respect to key policy rates. The MPC's decisions are communicated to the market through a monetary policy press release that gives an analysis of the committee's decision, which is published on the CBE's website following each MPC meeting. In May 2017, the CBE announced for the first time in its history its inflation target of 13% (+/-3%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2018. In December 2018, the target lowered to 9% (+/-3%) on average during the fourth quarter of 2020. The target was most recently lowered in 2020 to 7% (+/-2%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2022. The Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (CAPMAS) is the entity responsible for calculating and publishing the headline CPI every month, which the CBE uses to derive the core CPI index as an indicative index for research purposes only. The transition from the direct-quantity target to targeting short-term interest rates was made in June 2005. The CBE adopted a corridor system using an overnight lending facility as the ceiling rate and an overnight deposit facility as the floor rate. The CBE employs open market operations as a monetary policy tool to achieve its operational target to ultimately attain its intermediate target. Open market operations achieve that by regulating the supply of reserves in the banking system. The CBE main operation could be deposit auctions or reverse repo depending on the market liquidity condition.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The CBE allows market participants to freely decide the client and interbank bid and ask rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The CBE licenses nonbank foreign exchange dealers (foreign exchange bureaus, bazaars, and duty-free markets). As of November 15, 2023, there were 43 licensed foreign exchange bureaus, 67 bazaars, and 8 duty-free markets. Foreign exchange bureaus may buy and sell domestic and foreign means of payment (banknotes and traveler's checks) on their own behalf. These transactions are conducted in cash. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make transfers into or out of Egypt and must sell all working-day foreign currency exceeding their authorized operating balance to commercial banks. Almost all banks licensed to operate in Egypt (currently 36) are involved in foreign exchange transactions.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	Banks are required to manage and maintain their positions in foreign currencies through the interbank market on a daily basis without breaching their authorized net positions. The CBE does not buy commercial banks' foreign currency balances exceeding their authorized net open position.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The multiple-price auction mechanism, which allows the CBE to buy and sell foreign exchange (exclusively in US dollars), follows these rules: (1) The CBE sets the amounts (not the price). (2) Each bank may submit up to three bids, for which the total amount submitted is determined by the quota assigned to the bank by the CBE, based on its commercial utilization and previous sales in the interbank market. (3) On the auction day, the CBE announces the auction amount one hour before the auction. (4) Banks authorized by the CBE may participate. (5) Auction results are announced to the public through several data service providers, such as Reuters and Bloomberg, as well as on the CBE website. No auctions have been conducted since November 3, 2016.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks (currently 36) that are members of the interbank convention on foreign exchange trading buy and sell foreign exchange at freely determined rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	Dealers may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market through an electronic dealing system during regular dealing hours.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Authorized commercial banks are permitted to conduct forward foreign exchange transactions on their own behalf. The banks are free to determine the rates for forward transactions and conduct forwards and swaps on behalf of their customers strictly for business needs. The CBE does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. In practice, the CBE permits authorized commercial banks to conduct forward foreign exchange and swap transactions to cover five genuine needs: supplier payments, LCs, transfer collections, dividend payments, and export proceeds. Effective October 27, 2022, the CBE issued a circular regarding banks' conducting foreign exchange transactions in local currency (EGP) through forward transactions, currency SWAPs, NDF transactions, provided these transactions are conducted for commercial purposes and through the same bank.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	For countries with indemnity agreements concerning compensation for nationalized property, certain settlements are made through special accounts in pounds with the CBE. The balances in these accounts are minimal. Suez Canal dues are expressed in SDRs and may be settled in any foreign currency. Settlements with Sudan are made in accordance with the terms of a bilateral agreement.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Pursuant to Article 212 of Law No. 194/2020, dealings within Egypt—whether purchases or sales of goods and services—must be in Egyptian pounds unless stipulated otherwise in an international convention or another law.
Payments arrangements	Yes.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	Yes.	The minimum cash margin requirement for opening LCs for importing transactions for trading purposes is 100% (Circular of December 21, 2015, as amended) with some exceptions for essential products such as priority food products, medications, vaccines, computers, and software products, among others. No cash margin is required for the import of commodities that are not for trading purposes such as machinery/equipment, raw materials, and spare parts used in manufacturing. Banks were permitted to exempt certain food products from cash cover requirements initially for one year ending March 15, 2020. This exemption was extended by one year four times without gaps, most recently until March 15, 2023 (effective March 10, 2022) and until March 15, 2024 (effective March 13, 2023). Effective February 13, 2022, the CBE instructed banks that all import transactions must be conducted via LCs, with some exceptions. Effective February 20, 2022, the CBE allowed the Credit Guarantee Company to cover the risks associated with LCs issued by banks. Effective December 29, 2022, the CBE canceled the instructions requiring banks to only accept import transactions through LCs.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	The bank issuing the transfer must validate the import transaction by negotiating the documents through the same bank.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	The documents related to the transfer must be negotiated with the issuing bank.

Reserve requirements	Yes.	Bank deposits in foreign currencies (held by either Egyptian or foreign nationals) are subject to a 10% reserve requirement, which must be deposited with the CBE and is remunerated. The reserve requirement for deposits in Egyptian pounds (excluding CDs for individuals with maturities of three years or more and loans to small and medium enterprises) is effective September 22, 2022, 18% (previously 14%) and is not remunerated.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Liquidity regulation issued in July 2016 on NSFR and LCR as per Basel III applies. The requirements for the liquidity ratio in foreign currencies and Egyptian pounds are 25% and 20%, respectively.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	Following Basel III requirements, the regulation regarding interest rate risk in the banking book (IRRBB) classifies deposits in domestic and foreign currency as follows: (1) Regarding interest rate sensitive items on the liability side for domestic and foreign currency deposits: (a) For deposits of individuals and small and micro enterprises with no maturity dates (demand and saving deposits with and without interest), 10% of the balance of demand deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 90% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years, and 30% of the balance of saving deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 70% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years; (b) for corporate deposits and deposits of medium enterprises with no maturity dates (demand and saving deposits with and without interest), 50% of the balance of deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 50% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years; (c) accrued interest on term deposits or callable deposits (with fixed interest rates) is slotted according to the residual periods until their maturity dates, while the principle is slotted in the residual period until its maturity date; and (d) for deposits with variable interest rates, the interest is slotted in the time bucket prior to the repricing date according to the residual periods until the maturity

Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks' maximum exposure abroad is calculated by country, financial institution, and group, taking into consideration a specific methodology. The CBE sets exposure limits to countries, financial institutions, and financial groups, related mainly to the bank's capital base, countries' ratings, and their GDP. The regulation sets concentration limits to high-risk exposures and does not specify exposure limits to each type of borrower as follows: The total high-risk exposure for each country should not exceed 40% of the concentration limit of that country. The total high-risk exposures for all countries should not exceed 100% of the bank's capital base. The total high-risk exposures for non-investment grade countries should not exceed 20% of the bank's capital base. The unutilized portion of the high-risk exposure limit may be directed to low-risk exposures, but not vice versa.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Investments in banks are subject to "fit and proper" tests: Shares held by residents or nonresidents in a bank in Egypt exceeding 5% of the issued capital must be reported to the CBE. Shares exceeding 10% require CBE approval.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Pursuant to Law No. 10 of 1981 (as amended), if an individual or entity owns more than 5% of the total shares of an insurance or reinsurance company, the company must notify the FRA within two weeks on the appropriate form. No individual—except by inheritance—or corporate entity may own 10% or more of the issued capital of an insurance or reinsurance company, except with the approval of the prime minister. The approval requirement applies to residents and nonresidents.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	By law, insurance and reinsurance companies must allocate funds in Egypt at least equal to the value of their technical reserves for business carried out in Egypt. Companies must maintain the funds of life insurance completely separate from the funds of property and liability insurance. Cash and securities that form part of these funds must be deposited in one of the banks registered at the CBE. Therefore, by law, investments may not be held abroad.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to life insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 25% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 20% in bonds, provided the amount invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing the bonds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 20% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and investment funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of the investment fund, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and investment funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the relevant notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) loans guaranteed by insurance policies within 90% of their recovered value, which is determined at the end of the financial year according to the company's actuarial certificate; (7) a maximum of 20% in mortgage loans, provided the loans do not exceed 5% of total allocated funds, 60% of the market value of the real estate, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (8) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or CDs issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (9) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA. Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to property and liability insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 20% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 15% in bonds, provided the amount invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 25% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and mutual funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of mutual funds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and mutual funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the appropriate notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 10% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or CDs issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (7) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	FRA procedures govern currency matching on the composition of insurance companies' assets and liabilities. According to these procedures, an insurance company must define its requirements for personal and property operations in foreign currencies and pounds to be sure it satisfies currency-matching requirements for assets and liabilities composition.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Private pension funds are not allowed to invest in foreign securities or assets abroad.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Private pension funds are not allowed to invest in foreign securities or assets abroad.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Pursuant to Ministerial Decree No. 109 of 2015 of Law No. 54 of 1975, private pension funds (known as private insurance funds) must invest their funds as follows: (1) a maximum of 35% as deposits and savings certificates in local or foreign currencies at registered banks, provided the total deposits and savings certificates in one bank do not exceed 25% of the total funds of the pension fund in case the funds of the pension fund exceeds one hundred million Egyptian pounds; (2) at least 15% in government bonds or guaranteed certificates with maximum of 70% of the total funds of the pension fund; (3) a maximum of 15% of the total funds of the pension fund in securitization bonds and tradable sukuk in the capital market, provided the amount invested in bonds issued from one entity does not exceed 5% of the total invested funds of the pension fund or 10% of the total value of the issuances of the entity whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 20% of fixed income investment funds and cash investment funds, provided the value of the investments in one investment fund does not exceed 5% of the pension fund or 10% of the net assets of the investment fund whichever is less; (5) a maximum of 15% of open investment funds, provided the value of the investments in one investment fund does not exceed 5% of the pension fund or 10% of the net assets of the investment fund whichever is less; (6) a maximum of 15% in stocks, provided the amount invested in stocks of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total invested funds or 10% of the capital of the entity issuing the stocks; (7) the total invested amounts in securities and bonds stated in Items (3) and (6) issued of a single issuer should not exceed 5% of the total funds of the pension fund; (8) the total invested amounts in investment funds stated in Item (5) and stocks in Item (6) should not exceed 20% of the total funds of the pension fund; (9) a maximum of 10% in real estate funds, provided the amount invested in a single real estate fund does not exceed 5% of the total invested funds of the pension fund or 10% of the net value of the assets of the investment fund whichever is less; (10) a maximum of 10% in real estate to be owned in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the appropriate notary public office, provided the value of one real estate does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds; (11) the total invested amounts in investment funds stated in Item (8) and real

		For products and by-products of animal and plant origin, and the means that transport them, the intervention of the International Regional Organization for Agricultural Health (Organismo Internacional Regional de Sanidad Agropecuaria (OIRSA)) is required through the application of quarantine treatments. During the COVID-19 pandemic, automation projects were implemented by the foreign trade one-stop window, the Import/Export Processing Center (CIEX El Salvador), administered by the CRB, to streamline foreign trade procedures and reduce the risk of contagion. These projects include: (1) As of May 28, 2020, the electronic authorization of import visas of the National Directorate of Medicines for pharmaceutical products and chemical substances was implemented; cleaning products, cosmetic products, narcotics, psychotropics, aggregate products, precursors, medicines for human consumption, and controlled substances. (2) As of May 5, 2021, the authorization of alcohols regulated by the Ministry of Health was implemented through electronic interconnection. (3) As of September 29, 2021, electronic payment was implemented for quarantine treatment services of the Regional International Organization for Plant and Animal Health for products and by-products of animal and plant origin, and the means of transport that move them. (4) As of October 22, 2021, the electronic issuance of visas for agricultural and veterinary products, regulated by the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, was implemented through electronic interconnection. (5) Effective April 1, 2022, the CIEX El Salvador Document Manager was implemented, which allows importers to store digital documents and register applications to manage the authorization of import permits. Following the pandemic, other initiatives were also implemented to further facilitate trade, such as: (1) As of May 28, 2020, electronic authorization of import visas was implemented through electronic interconnection with the National Directorate of Medicines for pharmaceutical products and chemical substances; cleaning products, cosmetic products, narcotics, psychotropics, arid products, precursors, medicines for human consumption, and controlled substances. (2) As of May 27, 2021, electronic authorization for the importation of alcohol regulated by the Ministry of Health. (3) Effective January 6, 2023, electronic authorization for the importation of chemical substances regulated by the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of National Defense.
Positive list	Yes.	Licenses issued by the MOF are required for authorized imports of ethyl alcohol, whether denatured or not, and authorization is required to import refined or raw cane sugar. The minister of health issues permits for ethyl alcohol, except when raw materials for various food industries are involved. Authorization by the Ministry of Defense is required for imports of weapons and explosives. An environmental permit is also required for imports of chemicals, either from the Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources, the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, or from the Ministry of Health. Importation of regulated industrial products requires registration with the Ministry of Health. The National Directorate of Medications is the regulatory agency for the import of pharmaceutical products, medical inputs, cosmetics, hygiene products, drugs and psychotropic products, and aggregates.

Negative list	Yes.	El Salvador prohibits imports of the following products for reasons of health, security, public morality, or environmental protection: subversive material or teachings contrary to the political, social, and economic order; obscene materials; unethical or indecent films; abortion-related products; opium containing less than 9% morphine; opium residue and ash; devices for smoking opium; unstamped cigarette paper; counterfeit coins and banknotes; plain silver coins; and slot machines. Imports of coffee in a form that can be used as seeds for planting and imports of coffee bushes are prohibited. Also prohibited are lightweight passenger and freight motor vehicles more than 8 years old and heavy passenger and freight vehicles more than 15 years old (except collector's items and vehicles donated to the government or to public service or charitable organizations; those used exclusively by physically challenged persons; those providing a specific service, such as agricultural, earth-moving, or industrial work; and those connected with power generation plants, well drilling, and water purification units). The importation of used electric or hybrid automotive vehicles more than 3 years old is prohibited.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	The Ministry of Economy grants import permits or licenses for products that are subject to some form of agricultural quota under the United States FTA, meaning that a given quantity may be imported with a 0 tariff, including beef, pork, milk in liquid or powdered form, other dairy products, yellow or white corn, sorghum, chicken parts, and rice. A cheddar cheese quota is granted under the WTO commitments. Under the Partnership Agreement between Central America and the EU, licenses are granted for products subject to agricultural quotas, such as whey, cured and streaky hams, prepared and preserved pork, milk powder, and cheese. Finally, an import quota is granted on a "first-come, first-served" basis to access the cheese quota negotiated in the FTA with Panama and for the yellow corn quota under the FTA between Central America and Mexico. It is important to clarify that these are not limits on imports but rather quotas with preferential tariffs. In addition to these set amounts, importers are free to import any amount subject to payment of the corresponding tariff.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Sugar intended for the domestic market must be fortified with vitamin A. The importation of dairy products prepared with reconstituted milk is prohibited. Effective March 13, 2022, El Salvador decreed the Special Transitory Law to Combat Price Inflation of Basic Products, which consisted of an exemption of import permits for products that make up the basic food basket, reducing the costs of documents and prerequisites. Effective March 15, 2023, the decree was extended until March 31, 2024. The exempted products are, for example, beans, corn, rice, flour, fertilizers, some vegetables such as tomatoes, potatoes, onions, cabbages, and other similar products.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Central American Import Tariff has the following base rates: 0% on raw materials and intermediate and capital goods not produced in the CACM, 5% on raw materials produced in the CACM, 10% on intermediate and capital goods produced in the CACM, and 15% on finished goods. El Salvador also has trade agreements with Bolivia (signed on November 16, 2018, pending ratification as of June, 2022), Chile, Colombia, South Korea, Cuba (Partial Scope Agreement), Ecuador (Partial Scope Agreement), the United States, Mexico, Panama, Taiwan Province of China, the EU (Association Agreement with 27 countries), the Association Agreement with the United Kingdom, and the Dominican Republic, under which certain products included in tariff elimination programs are duty free. All goods originating in Central American countries may be traded without restriction within the region, except for those defined in Annex A to the General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration.

The average of the applied tariffs of El Salvador is 6.0%, the agricultural average is 11.8%, and the nonagricultural average is 5.1%. The minimum tariff is 0% and the maximum 164%.

Unilateral elimination (El Salvador) of temporary MFN import duties on certain foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and personal protective equipment (Harmonized System Chapters 04, 07, 10, 11, 19, 20, 21, 28, 30, 34, 38, 40, and 96) because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Some products are also exempt from VAT.

As of June 13, 2021, the tax exemptions applicable to all imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment for newspaper printing were eliminated pursuant to the provisions of Legislative Decree No. 6 of May 5, 2021, which amends the Printing Law.

Permanent Measures:
Alignment of the Central American Tariff System (SAC) with the 7th Amendment to the Harmonized System (SAC 2022);

Effective June 17, 2022, Modifications to SAC 2022:
Reduction of import duties to 0% for products specified in Chapter 38; Res. 452;
Modifies nomenclature of products Chapter 76; Res. 453;
Amendments to the subheading note to Chapter 38 and amendments to the nomenclature in Chapters: 3, 29, 30, 38, 39, 76, 84, and 85; Res. 455;
Introduction and modification of tariffs to 0% for products of Chapter 38, Res. 457.

Temporary Measures

As of September 17, 2012, elimination of import duties on the import of iron and steel products D. L. No. 114 (temporary, still valid).

As of December 17, 2021, increase of import duties to 40% for products specified in Chapter 3 (tilapia) Res. 458 (temporary until December 31, 2024).

As of May 28, 2021, tax incentives for the import of hybrid and electric vehicles, among which is the reduction of the import duties, which is not automatic but must be governed by the procedure referred to in Article 21 of said Law (temporary for 10 years).

Effective March 13, 2022, temporary unilateral elimination of tariffs on commodities (Chapters 4, 7, 8, 10, 11, 15, 17, 19, 23, 31, and 38 of the Central American Tariff System (SAC), to combat inflation (initially temporary until March 31, 2023). Effective March 15, 2023, the decree was extended until March 31, 2024. The exempted products are, for example, beans, corn, rice, flour, fertilizers, some Preshipment inspection	Yes.	The relevant directorate of the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock conducts preshipment inspections of exports of basic foods such as beans, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas before exportation; agricultural precertification is also required. Dairy products require authorization from a quality control laboratory. All products of animal origin are subject to inspection. All products containing wood or packed in wooden crates or pallets require inspection and fumigation by the OIRSA. Exports must pass through a nonintrusive inspection system conducted by the customs authorities prior to shipment.

Other	Yes.	All exporters must be registered with the CIEX El Salvador, before making any exports. The legislative decree established the CIEX El Salvador to centralize, expedite, and simplify the established legal procedures for the registration, authorization, and issuance of documents by various institutions and/or dependencies of the country involved in import and export operations in conformity with their respective responsibilities. The Integrated Foreign Trade System (SICEX) is used for exports, and if the transaction destinations are Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua, the operation is recorded in the exit customs of El Salvador and the entry customs of the relevant importing Central American country; the amount of taxes payable is reported by the Internet. This process allows exporters to obtain the three authorizations through a single, integrated procedure. A software tool, the Foreign Trade Facilitation System, allows importers and exporters to register and pay for the nonintrusive inspection service, and also to register ground transportation documents for international cargo. There are service charges for obtaining prior processing for imports, covering the services of the Ministry of National Defense, the Ministry of Health, and the National Directorate of Medications. The system allows payment to be made electronically via seven banks of the financial system, thus facilitating the handling of prior processing for imports through the Foreign Trade Facilitation System, which is administered by the CIEX El Salvador. There is one-stop electronic invoicing (facturación única) on behalf of third parties, which allows using a single tax number for various services provided by government institutions, registered in the CIEX El Salvador. The electronic payment system was also implemented for the product registry, the mutual recognition registry, and the updating of the product registry; these three services, which cover food products, thus simplify compliance with the required procedures for importing such products that fall within the purview of the Ministry of Health, which participates in the foreign trade one-stop window.

Export licenses	Yes.	Exporters must be registered with the CIEX before exporting any products. Exports are authorized via the Internet through the SICEX, which is designed exclusively for that purpose. El Salvador has signed the CITES agreement, which is currently in force and prohibits exports of endangered plant and animal species, cultural heritage goods, as well as products, such as red beans that suffer domestic shortages. Other export products require authorization by other institutions before processing at the SICEX and the CIEX because of quota controls—for example, for cane sugar; agrochemicals; biological products; drugs and food for veterinary use (which also require registration); wildflowers and plants; basic foods such as beans of domestic origin, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas (which also require preshipment inspection); dairy products (which also require laboratory testing); meat; fish products (which may not be harvested without a permit); foodstuffs for human consumption; coffee (including roasted and ground); machinery; maquila textiles and garments subject to quotas; diesel fuel; propane; and butane gas. Ferrous and nonferrous products require authorization by the Directorate General of Customs. Exports of waste products from melting ferrous and nonferrous products included in tariff items 7204.10.00, 7204.29.00, and 7404.00.00 are prohibited. Citizens, foreigners, and legal entities are exempt from this provision if they are registered with the Directorate General of Customs and the waste products originate directly from their industrial processes. During the COVID-19 pandemic, automation projects were implemented by the foreign trade one-stop window, the CIEX of El Salvador, administered by the CRB, to streamline foreign trade procedures and reduce the risk of contagion. These projects, still effective at this time, include: (1) As of October 15, 2020, the electronic authorization by barcode of non-preferential certificates of origin for exports was implemented. (2) As of March 10, 2021, the electronic transmission of transport documents for exports between CIEX El Salvador and the General Directorate of Customs was implemented. (3) Effective January 18, 2022, the CIEX El Salvador Document Manager was implemented, which allows importers to store digital documents and register applications to manage the authorization of export permits and certificates of origin. After the pandemic, other initiatives were also implemented to further facilitate trade, such as:

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		(1) Electronic authorization of phytosanitary or zoosanitary certificates. (2) Advance declaration for exports with Guatemala and Honduras (only El Amatillo customs office), effective December 7, 2023. (3) Electronic transmission of phytosanitary and zoosanitary certificates to the Central American Digital Trade Platform (PDCC).
Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	Yes.	Exports of sugar require the approval of the Salvadoran Sugar Council (CONSAA) and are administered under two arrangements. The portion traded with the United States, which is called the American quota or preferential market, is subject to preferential treatment that consists of a negotiated quantity of metric tons to be exported. Exporters are free to export the remaining sugar production to any country. In addition, under CAFTA-DR, quotas have been allocated for other products, such as beef, dairy products, ethanol, and peanuts. A reciprocal tariff quota arrangement with Panama has been introduced to protect the monetary value of certain types of cheeses. Under the Association Agreement with the EU, export tariff quotas are negotiated for garlic, cassava starch, sweet corn, mushrooms, sugar including organic sugar and products with a high sugar content, rice, beef, bulk rum, tuna loin, plastics, electrical harnesses and conductors, certain clothing products, and articles made of aluminum. An export quota for cheese was negotiated in the FTA with Panama. The Association Agreement between Central America and the United Kingdom negotiates export tariff quotas for garlic, cassava starch, sweet corn, mushrooms, sugar, including organic sugar and products with high sugar content, rice, beef, and rum in bulk.

In the case of banks, Article 51 of the Banking Law sets out all the lending and borrowing operations that banks can perform and the banking services they can provide, whereas paragraph(w) of the said article empowers the CRB of El Salvador to authorize banks to perform operations and provide banking services other than those listed. In that regard, in October 2012, the CRB approved the "Minimum guidelines for operations with the forward foreign exchange derivative financial instrument to be fulfilled by banks in order to offer them in the local market." According to these guidelines, banks that offer their clients forward foreign exchange services must request and obtain prior authorization from the CRB.

		with a maturity of more than one year must be registered with the Ministry of Economy. There are minimum capital requirements for businesses owned by foreign residents and those with foreign resident shareholders. Foreign individuals and legal entities may invest in El Salvador and enjoy the same rights and obligations as national investors and corporations. The constitution restricts foreign investment in the following activities: trade; industry; and small-scale services—specifically, coastal fishing—which are reserved for Salvadorans. The subsoil belongs to the government, which may grant concessions for its exploitation. Investments in shares of banks, finance companies, and exchange bureaus are subject to applicable laws.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	Foreign investors may transfer abroad funds related to their investments without delay. Such transfers include net profits and dividends generated by their investments, proceeds from partial or total disposal of investments, and proceeds from the transfer of investments to third parties. As part of the 2012 amendments to the Law on Income Tax, Title VII Chapter III of Article 7 now includes a section titled "Income Tax on Distribution of Profits," which requires income tax withholding of 5% of profits paid by domiciled taxpayers, parent companies, subsidiaries, branches, agencies, and other permanent establishments to partners, shareholders, associates, trustees, members, investors, and beneficiaries not domiciled in El Salvador.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	Foreign individuals and legal entities may purchase real estate. Rural real estate may be acquired by foreigners only if there is a reciprocal arrangement with their home country. (An exception is allowed for industrial establishments.) A single individual or legal entity may not own more than 245 hectares of rural land. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Financial System Supervision and Regulation Act modified the financial sector regulatory and supervisory architecture through (1) creation of the Financial Supervision and Regulation System, consisting of the CB and the SSF; (2) establishment of a single superintendency for banking, insurance, securities, pensions, and other financial intermediaries; and (3) transfer of regulatory authority over the financial system to the CB. The Law against Usury defines usury and sets the maximum rate of interest on loans obtained by individuals. This law applies to individuals and legal entities, financial institutions, commercial firms, savings banks, merchants engaged in the delivery of goods and services, pawn merchants, and in general, any person or entity who lends money, regardless of the manner used to record, conceal, or hide the operation. The CRB sets maximum rates based on the simple average of the effective interest rate on loans, expressed as a percent and published semiannually.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	External borrowing by financial institutions is subject to a reserve requirement. As a result of the pandemic emergency, the Central Reserve Bank of El Salvador (BCR) Standards Committee issued the "Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities," to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement, so that financial institutions have more financial resources to tackle the COVID-19 crisis; therefore, the Liquidity Reserve requirement was temporarily reduced to 3% from 5%. The validity of these regulations is 180 days, which will be extended for an equal period of time if the underlying circumstances persist. The BCR's Standards Committee issued the Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28), to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities, as well as the provisions for its use. These standards repealed the Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NPB3-06) and replaced the Temporary Technical Regulations related to liquidity issued in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic. Effective September 27, 2023, the Central Bank approved the "Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities" (NPBT-11) effective until March 26, 2024, which maintain the reserve requirement at 3%.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank's equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank's equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank's equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank's equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.	There is no distinction in the treatment of loans in local currency and in foreign currency.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.	There is no distinction in the treatment of deposits in local currency and in foreign currency.
Reserve requirements	No.	In El Salvador, the term reserve requirement (encaje legal) is not used. The term liquidity reserve (reserva de liquidez) is preferred. There are no specific reserve requirements on foreign (nondollar) currencies. The average reserve requirement is currently about 22% of deposits but would vary as it depends on the maturity of deposits. As a result of the pandemic emergency, the BCR Standards Committee issued the "Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities," to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement. So, after making the corresponding calculation, the current liquidity reserve is approximately 10% of deposits and the liquidity reserves actually held by the institutions is approximately 17% of deposits. On the other hand, the Standards Committee of the CRB approved, during Session No. CN-01/2019, the extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez—MTL) to February 23, 2023. These measures reduced the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions. The Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28), which are intended to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities, entered into force as of June 23, 2021. These standards repealed NPB3-06 and made changes to the Temporary Technical Standards related to the liquidity reserve that were issued in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic. The aforementioned standards establish that during the phase-in period, which began on June 23, 2021, and ends on June 21, 2022, the liquidity reserve requirement will be subject to discounts related to: (1) A percentage of the average balance that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (NPBT-04) used for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day periods from March 31 to May 11, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places) and

		(2) A percentage of the amount that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards to Encourage Lending (NPBT-05) reported as a discount for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day period from June 9 to June 22, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places). Effective February 21, 2022, Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities (NPBT-07) were issued, which repealed Article 19 of NRP-28 about the calculation and phase-in period of liquidity reserve. It established new temporary parameters for the liquidity reserve requirement so that institutions have more financial resources available to support the dynamism and growth in the placement of loans to the different economic sectors. These standards were in place from February 21, 2022, to August 16, 2022. On July 25, 2022, NPBT-07 was extended under a new NPBT-08 standard effective August 17, 2022, until February 23, 2023. Effective September 27, 2023, the "Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities" (NPBT-11) were approved, effective until March 26, 2024, which are an extension of the temporary measures in effect since February 2022.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may affect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. In principle, all authorized banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	There is no official clearing agreement between a CEMAC country and the outside. Nor does any regulatory provision regulate this mechanism. In practice, however, it may happen that in return for financial flows, certain financiers and certain countries receive production or capital goods from outside.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC can allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the agreement of the Central Bank is given when the entity concerned cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement resulting from external financial assistance requires the opening of accounts in currencies.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive on June 10, 2019. In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require the establishment of foreign currency accounts, these are authorized by the Central Bank. In addition, companies in the extractive sector benefit from a special provision allowing them to hold foreign currency accounts abroad as part of their ordinary operations.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status), the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	No.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due

Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.

On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is no more.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.

Exchange tax	Yes.	The BE prescribes a 0.5% commission on sales and a 0.25% commission on purchases of foreign exchange, except for banknote transactions. ADs are permitted, but not required, to levy an additional service charge of up to 0.25% for buying and 0.75% for selling foreign exchange on their own account.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs conducting transactions in the foreign exchange market are to apply the official exchange rate of ERN 15 per US dollar. Only one foreign exchange bureau (Himbol Financial Services, which has branches throughout the country) is authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations. The parallel market premium is informally reported to be about 160%, but the size of the parallel market is unknown.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	One exchange bureau (Himbol Financial Services) is licensed to deal in foreign exchange with the public in addition to the commercial banks. Its operations are limited to purchases and sales of banknotes. The Ministry of Trade and Industry (MTI) is authorized to grant licenses.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BE buys and sells dollars for nakfa at the request of ADs (commercial banks and exchange bureaus) and the government at the official rate without a margin or commission.
Allocation	Yes.	The FEC, a government-appointed committee, which includes the governor of the BE, is in charge of allocating foreign exchange across sectors. Essential commodity imports are given priority access to foreign currency.

		publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The published exchange rates, which are the average of the sale and purchase rates, reflect the market conditions prevailing at the time of the concertation. The euro foreign exchange reference rates are determined by the ECB daily at around, effective April 3, 2023, 14:10 Central European Time (previously 14:15 CET) and are published at around 16:00 CET. The publication regime reinforces the concept of the ECB foreign exchange rate as a purely informative one.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. For the Bank of Estonia (BOE), the price stability as the primary objective is set down by the BOE Act, Section 2(1).
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Transactions in convertible currencies are effected by commercial banks, which are free to quote their own exchange rates.

Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	Estonia has bilateral agreements with Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Russia, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, and Uzbekistan. Euro balances held by the CBs of these countries in their correspondent accounts are fully convertible without delay. No swing credits or overdraft facilities are provided by these arrangements. These agreements were concluded at the end of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as an ad hoc measure, to regulate bilateral obligations with the former Soviet Republics after the demise of the central authority. For now, all these agreements have been inoperative for a very long time.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BOE issues and enforces foreign exchange regulations. The MOF controls and monitors imports and exports. Providers of currency exchange services and companies trading in precious metals are required to register and have authorization by the FIU, a governmental authority in the area of government of the MOF, which is autonomously engaged in regulatory enforcement. They are supervised by the FIU.

On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Registration with the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Communications is required before companies may trade in precious metals (including gold).
On external trade	Yes.	Exports and imports of gold are subject to registration requirements administered by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Communications.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.
On exports	No.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts are permitted according to banks' own terms and conditions of current account agreements. The principal currency is the euro, unless specified otherwise by the client in the agreement. Clients may change the principal currency. Only currency quoted by the bank may be held in the account. Clients must specify the currencies to be held in the account in the agreement, and they may change the currencies during the term of the agreement. The procedure for fulfillment of payment transactions in foreign currencies is in the bank's settlement terms and conditions.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks in Estonia may open correspondent accounts with commercial banks worldwide, including in Russia and other CIS countries. Restrictions according to the MLTFPA apply.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	In the event of suspicion of money laundering or terrorism financing, the FIU may issue an instruction to suspend transactions for up to 30 days after the percept is issued and impose restrictions on disposal of the proceeds of an account or other property constituting the object of the transaction, official operation, or official service or other suspect assets or property (MLTFPA, Section 57(1)). Within the term specified in this section of the MLTFPA, transactions may take place or restriction of disposal of an account or other property may be waived only with written consent of the FIU. During the restriction period, the credit institution or financial institution may not execute any account debit requests by the account holder. In addition to the provisions of this section of the MLTFPA, the FIU may, on the basis of an instruction, restrict the use of property for up to 60 days if (1) during verification of the origin of the property there is suspicion of money laundering and the owner or possessor of the property fails to submit evidence certifying a legal origin of the property to the FIU within 30 days of the suspension of the transaction or as of the imposition of restrictions or (2) the property is suspected to be used for terrorism financing. The Tax and Customs Board may block accounts used to enable illegal gambling through issuance of an order to the relevant bank instructing it to block the account and freeze the assets. The Tax and Customs Board specifies a period during which anyone who has transferred funds to this account may apply for a refund. The application must be accompanied by evidence (proof of transaction). After investigation, but no more than 30 days later, the Tax and Customs Board decides whether the application is substantiated and the refund should be granted. Seizure of any assets held in an account with a credit or financial institution means imposition of such restrictions on the use of the account during which the credit institution or financial institution does not comply with any account debiting instructions to the extent of the assets seized.

The International Sanctions Act (2020) regulates the internal imposition, implementation, and supervision of international sanctions of the UN, EU, other international organizations, and the Estonian government. It imposes obligations, including to block accounts and notify the FIU of possible international financial sanctions. International sanctions are imposed with regard to a state, territory, territorial unit, regime, organization, association, group or person by a resolution of the UNSC, a decision of the EC or any other legislation imposing obligations on Estonia. International sanctions imposed by a resolution of the UNSC must be implemented with regard to the subjects of the international sanctions listed by the committee established on the basis of the resolution until the regulation of the EC is updated or adopted.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	EU legislation applies (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 text with EEA relevance). There is no differentiation on the basis of currency or residence. For example, interest rate restriction (annual percentage rate restriction for consumer credits) applies to all consumer credit contracts. Also, credit institutions have liquidity requirements, which do not depend on currency.
Borrowing abroad	No.	There is no restriction on borrowing from abroad.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Commercial banks may open correspondent accounts with commercial banks worldwide in accordance with the MLTFPA and the International Sanctions Act (ISA).
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Regulations regarding lending do not differentiate on the basis of nonresidents and residents. Regulations covering lending provisions are the same for all.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.	There is no restriction on currencies. Contracting parties can agree between themselves as to which is the contract currency.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	There is no restriction for purchasing locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.	There is no differentiation between local and foreign currency deposit accounts.

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	According to the EU legislation (Directive 2009/138/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 25, 2009, on the taking up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II)), prudent person principle applies, and there is no differential treatment of securities issued by nonresidents or residents.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	EU legislation applies. There are no specific limits on investment portfolios held abroad just as there are no limits on investment portfolios held locally.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no currency-matching regulations on the composition of assets and liabilities.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	A pension fund may invest up to 100% of its assets in foreign securities traded in regulated markets of Estonia or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. Pension funds may also invest their assets in money market instruments and units or shares of funds that are not traded in regulated markets. The investment portfolio must be diversified. Assets of a conservative pension fund (mandatory pension fund) may be invested in bonds: (1) with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency registered in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1060/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on credit rating agencies (OJ L 302, November 17, 2009, pp. 1–31—hereinafter in this section “rating agency"); (2) whose issuer has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds have no rating; (3) whose issuer, if the parent company is a credit institution, has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds and their credit institution issuer have no credit rating; and (4) guaranteed by a contracting country or an OECD member with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency. If the specified rating agencies have issued different credit ratings, the management company must take the lowest current credit rating into consideration. Up to 20% of the market value of the assets of a conservative pension fund may also be invested in other assets not listed above.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The total net position of investments in securities denominated in foreign currency may not exceed 25% of assets of the fund for a conservative pension fund. There is no ceiling for other mandatory funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Conservative pension funds' overall net open position of investments in securities denominated in foreign exchange may not exceed 25% of the assets of a conservative pension fund. There is no ceiling for other mandatory funds. Assets of the conservative pension fund must be invested at least to the extent of 80% in total in: (1) deposits; (2) bonds and other equivalent debt obligations; (3) money market instruments if they have been admitted to trading on a regulated market; (4) units or shares of such funds whose assets are mainly invested in deposits or bonds; and (5) derivative instruments whose underlying assets are the assets specified above. Effective June 13, 2022, the assets of a pension fund may be placed in precious metals and securities whose underlying assets are precious metals or raw materials or whose price is dependent on precious metals or raw materials, up to 25% of the value of the assets of the pension fund.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	All investment funds may invest up to 100% of their assets in foreign securities. In general, the assets of UCITS and other open-end public funds must be invested in securities that are freely transferable and traded in regulated markets of Estonia and EEA members or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. As a general rule, no more than 10% of investment fund assets may be invested in transferable securities (including covered bonds) issued by the same body. However, UCITS may invest up to 25% of their assets in covered bonds of a single body if the bonds are issued by an EU credit institution.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.

Domestic exchanges	Yes.	Trading platforms are not regulated, but the provision of virtual currency exchange service is. To provide virtual currency exchange service, an activity license from the Estonian FIU is required. Share capital of a virtual asset service provider (VASP) must be a minimum of 100,000 euros for wallet services, exchanges, and initial coin offerings (ICO) and similar platforms; for transfer services, the minimum is 250,000 euros. To obtain a VASP license, the entity must provide financial information on assets and an overview of income, as well as information of beneficial owners and the management board. Members of the management board must have completed higher education and have at least two years of professional work experience. Members of the management board may not hold board positions in more than two Estonian VASPs. Members of the board must also have an impeccable reputation and necessary experience, as determined by the FIU. Furthermore, a business plan for the first two years must be submitted, including a description of the nature of the business and its structure. The applicant must also submit a risk assessment and documentation of risk appetite. Applicants must be audited (both a financial and risk-based audit must be conducted on a regular basis). The applicant must also give a detailed overview on the technologies used in providing services.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Only companies who operate in Estonia or are connected to Estonia may apply for a license to operate as a VASP, to ensure effective supervision and reduce the risk of international financial crime. The FIU can decline to license an entity if this requirement is not met. Licensed entities cannot be resold before two years of operations. VASPs must fulfill obligations under the AML/CFT framework including the obligation to implement travel rule.

Article VIII
Article XIV	Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Ethiopia states that, as of December 11, 2019, Ethiopia maintained four restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, which relate to: (1) the tax certification requirement for repatriation of dividend and other investment income; (2) restrictions on repayment of legal external loans and suppliers of foreign partners credits; (3) the prioritization and rationing of foreign exchange to certain imports of goods and services, debt payments and invisibles, and (4) the requirement to provide a clearance certificate from the National Bank of Ethiopia (NBE) to obtain import permits. These restrictions are inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a), of the IMF's Articles of Agreement. (Country Report No. 20/29)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.

Currently, the NBE intervenes in the foreign exchange market an amount of US$50,000 on a daily basis to determine the indicative exchange rate. The intervention data are publicly available on monthly basis in the quarterly and annual bulletins of the Bank. After 1-month lag of each quarter and fiscal year, the intervention information is available to the public.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate of the birr against the US dollar is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market as the weighted average exchange rate. The official exchange rate applies to all transactions, including purchases from exporters, remittances, and purchases by commercial banks. The rate of change in the official exchange rate has been constant, except during periods of ad hoc adjustment. The official exchange rate is calculated on the daily basis based on a one-day lagged of the weighted average of interbank exchange rate. Ad hoc adjustment refers devaluation measures which have direct impact on the rate of change.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Commercial banks are required to verify compliance of buyers and sellers of foreign exchange with import- and export-licensing requirements and foreign exchange regulations.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The ownership of personal gold jewelry is permitted. However, unless authorized by the Ministry of Mines and Energy, the possession or custody of 50 ounces or more of raw or refined gold or platinum, or gold or platinum in the form of nuggets, ore, or bullion, is not permitted. Private companies may directly export newly worked gold, silver, and jewelry.
On external trade	Yes.	Only the NBE or a person with authorization may export gold. Exporters of gold must repatriate the full proceeds. Payments for exports of gold must comply with foreign exchange directives. Those engaged in the sale of gold to the NBE or for exportation must (1) declare the place of origin of the gold and (2) present a certificate of the gold's purity from the appropriate authority.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.

Foreign currency	No.	Effective September 5, 2022, declaration is required for imports of foreign currency more than US$ 4,000 or equivalent of other currencies for a person residing in Ethiopia. However, for foreign nationals of Ethiopian origin, Ethiopian national or foreign not residing in Ethiopia who enters into the country carrying foreign currency exceeding $10,000 or equivalent in other currencies must declare the foreign currencies.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Commercial banks may open foreign exchange accounts for eligible exporters of goods and services and recipients of inward remittances without NBE approval. Resident Ethiopians are allowed to open foreign currency saving accounts in commercial banks without NBE approval.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Ethiopian airlines and shipping companies may maintain accounts abroad. Effective September 8, 2023, few strategic FDI projects (large-scale PPP project on power and infrastructure; mining projects with export potential and other eligible projects) are eligible to open offshore accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	Approval is required by the NBE to open foreign exchange account abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Three types of nonresident accounts are allowed: foreign exchange accounts, nonresident transferable birr accounts, and nonresident nontransferable birr accounts. Deposits to these accounts must be in foreign currency. Balances in the first two accounts may be transferred abroad or used for international payments; balances in nonresident nontransferable birr accounts must be used mainly for local expenses. Transfers from fixed and current foreign exchange accounts to nonresident nontransferable birr accounts do not require NBE approval. Diplomatic missions, members of international organizations, foreign investors, nonresident Ethiopians, and nonresident foreign nationals of Ethiopian origin may open all the three types of foreign exchange accounts. Other nonresidents may open only nonresident nontransferable birr accounts. Nonresident accounts must be demand deposit accounts and may earn interest, but interest may not be paid on nonresident foreign currency current accounts. These must have the equivalent of US$100 as a minimum deposit. Foreign currency fixed accounts must have at least the equivalent of US$5,000, but there is no maximum. Foreign exchange accounts may hold only US dollars, pounds sterling, and euros. Banks may accept deposits in other convertible currencies, but they must be converted to one of the three above-named currencies. Foreign exchange accounts may be used for payments and transfers abroad, provided the account holder has a business license to do so. According to the Diaspora Account Directive (No. FXD/69/2021), a bank is allowed to set their own interest rate on nonresident fixed foreign currency account on negotiation but not less than LIBOR. Similarly, interest rate payment on non-repatriable birr account is

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Residents engaged in import business may extend credit to suppliers with NBE approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	An eligible borrower must first get approval from NBE before entering to external loan and supplier credit agreement by fulfilling registration documents. Effective September 7, 2022, no repayment in convertible foreign currency may be allowed for the purpose of payment of external loan and supplier's credit, unless registered by the NBE.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Residents may not extend financial credit to nonresidents.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Banks need approval from the NBE to borrow funds abroad, but not to overdraw their accounts with foreign correspondents or accept deposits. Other residents must obtain NBE approval, and the credits must be used for export-generating investments. Effective September 7, 2022, no repayment in convertible foreign currency may be allowed for the purpose of payment of external loan and supplier's credit, unless registered by the NBE.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Residents may not provide guarantees to nonresidents for independent financial operation. Borrowers with registered external loan must repay their debt from the foreign exchange proceeds of the project financed by the loan and borrowers with registered supplier or foreign partner credit and import LC must repay their debt from their export proceeds.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Commercial banks may issue guarantees on behalf of foreign banks to resident companies.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Residents may not invest abroad.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Investment Proclamation No. 1180/2020 introduced a new framework to register and administer FDI, including a provision for a minimum capital amount per project a foreign investor must invest, ranging from US$50,000 to US$200,000 depending on the type of investment being undertaken. According to Investment Regulation No. 474/2020, five sectors are reserved for joint investment with the government, thirty-two sectors exclusively reserved for domestic investors, and seven sectors for a joint venture with domestic investors. All sectors that are not listed in these categories are open for foreign investment. Any investor (foreign or domestic) may only invest in the following sectors jointly with the government: defense industries, import and export of electrical energies, international air transport services, bus rapid transit and postal services excluding courier services. Investment Regulation (No. 474/2020) lists sectors which are reserved for only domestic investors. These include investments in finance sector except capital goods finance, the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System as well as wholesale and retail trades, health services, export of raw coffee, khat, oil seeds, pulses, minerals, hides and skins, products of natural forests, chicken and livestock, and hospitality industries. In addition, a foreign investor may jointly invest with a domestic investor in freight forwarding and shipping agency services, domestic air transport services, and cross-country public transport using buses having a capacity of more than 45 seats, advertisement, audiovisual, accounting and auditing services. In such cases, foreign investor(s) can own up to a maximum of 49% of share capital. Previously, investment only in the telecommunications and defense industries was allowed in partnership with the government. Investment in the postal service (except courier service), the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System, and air transport services using aircraft that seat more than 50 passengers was reserved for the government. All investment (except expansion of air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services) must be approved and certified by the Ethiopian Investment Commission (EIC). However, the issuance, renewal, amendment, substitution, replacement and cancellation of investment permits, and the issuance of investment expansion or upgrading permits for air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services must be carried out by the Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority, the Ethiopian Energy Authority, and the Ethiopian Communications Authority, respectively, representing the commission. Income tax exemptions are granted for up to six years for new projects in manufacturing and agro-industry that export at least 50% of production or for which at least 75% of production is used in the production of export items. Expansion and upgrading of existing projects are also eligible for exemption from income tax for two years if the expansion or upgrade increases production value by 25% and if 50% of the production is for export. Investment activities that export less than 50% of their production and produce exclusively for the local market receive up to three years of income tax exemption. Imports of investment goods and inputs for such ventures are also eligible for exemption from customs duties and other specified import levies. The new investment incentives as well as the type and amount of investment incentives must be determined by a Regulation to be enacted by the council of ministers. The council of ministers issued new investment incentive regulation on July 12, 2022.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	EIC authorization is required for repatriation of capital. Registration of capital inflows with the EIC establishes the evidence of inflows required for authorization. All recognized and registered foreign investment may be terminated on presentation of documents regarding liquidation and on payment of all taxes and other liabilities. Subject to appropriate documentation, foreign investors may transfer their capital without limitation on final departure from Ethiopia. All foreign investors may also transfer abroad in convertible currency payments for debts, fees, or royalties with respect to technology transfer agreements.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of personal real estate abroad is not permitted.

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The overall foreign currency position of each bank at the close of business each Friday may not exceed 15% of its capital. Commercial banks' holdings of foreign currency notes are limited to 5% of paid-up capital. The overall open foreign currency position is computed as follows: First, the difference between assets and liabilities in each foreign currency is determined and categorized either as a long or as a short position. Second, open positions in each foreign currency as determined and categorized under the first step are converted to their birr equivalents using the buying rate at the close of business on Friday. Third, the birr equivalents of open positions in each foreign currency obtained under the second step are added up to arriving at the total long and short positions. Fourth, the greater of the total long or short position determined under the third step is divided by the bank's total capital to obtain the ratio. Last, the ratio obtained under the fourth step is compared with the limit on the overall open foreign currency position. There is no differential treatment for resident and nonresident asset and liabilities.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with Fiji states that, as of November 8, 2021, exchange restrictions subject to Article VIII arise from the Fiji Revenue and Customs Authority tax certification requirements on the transfer abroad of profits and dividends, on the proceeds of airline ticket sales, and on the making of external debt and maintenance payments and from limits on large payments (for example, oil imports and dividends repatriation of foreign banks). The authorities further tightened the controls for payments of international transactions in April 2020, at the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic by either reducing the delegated limits to commercial banks or replacing these limits with the Reserve Bank of Fiji (RBF) discretionary approval requirement on large payments. (Country Report No. 21/257)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Currency board
Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis a currency composite. The RBF does not publish intervention data. The power to establish the fixed exchange rate arrangement is provided in the RBF Act. A change in the exchange rate arrangement may be proposed by the RBF and approved by the Minister for Finance.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The external value of the Fiji dollar is officially determined on the basis of a weighted basket of currencies comprising the Australian dollar, Japanese yen, New Zealand dollar, euro, and US dollar. The relative weights are based on three-year moving averages of Fiji's direction of trade and are reviewed annually. The exchange rate of the Fiji dollar vis-à-vis the US dollar, the intervention currency, is fixed daily by the RBF on the basis of quotes for the US dollar and other currencies in the basket. The spread is 5 basis points (bps) on either side of the midrate. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.
Monetary policy framework
U.S. dollar

Composite	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite. The fixed exchange rate regime, combined with capital controls, allows some autonomy in monetary policy. The main policy instrument is the overnight policy rate. Its target corridor comprises a 25 bps band around the overnight rate, with the repurchase rate at the upper bound and the deposit rate at the lower bound. While the current system targets interest rates through monetary operations, the bank continues to monitor monetary aggregates such as liquidity/bank demand deposits, which serve as indicators and cross-checks.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Finland maintains exchange restrictions imposed by EU regulations referred to below and does so solely for the preservation of national and international security. Accordingly, various restrictions apply with respect to Afghanistan, Belarus, Burundi, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Central African Republic, China, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Eritrea, Guinea-Bissau, Guinea (Conakry), Haiti, Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Moldova, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, the former Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Bosnia and Herzegovina, Serbia and Montenegro), and Zimbabwe, certain persons and entities associated with the ISIL (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida organizations and to certain individuals and groups involved in terrorism.

Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Finland participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	Euro foreign exchange reference rates are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe and worldwide, which normally takes place at 2:10 p.m. Central European Time, effective April 3, 2023. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2.30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4.00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. France participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of CBs. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, it was defined as inflation below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Currency exchange offices ("changeurs manuels") are allowed to operate in France; they must obtain a license from the Autorité de contrôle prudentiel et de résolution (ACPR—Prudential Control Authority and Resolution) before starting their activity. As of December 31, 2022, 211 currency exchange offices were registered in France. They are authorized to conduct foreign exchange activities following Article L524-1 of the Monetary and Financial Code: "A money-changing transaction entails the immediate exchange of bills or banknotes denominated in different currencies. The fact of accepting, in exchange for cash delivered to a client, a settlement via another means of payment, also constitutes a money-changing transaction, provided it is denominated in a different currency." To conduct money transfer activities, companies must either obtain a license to operate as a credit, electronic money, or payment institution or be an agent of an authorized credit, electronic money, or payment institution. The ACPR is in charge of on-site and off-site control of currency exchange offices' compliance with the Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism regulations. Accounts in foreign countries are not prohibited. Currency exchange offices submit to the ACPR their total foreign currency sales and purchases annually.

Interbank market	Yes.	There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2022, there were five major French banking groups active in the interbank foreign exchange market in France. In addition, subsidiaries of foreign banks provide quotes for foreign exchange transactions. The CB intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	Yes.	Brokerage is used marginally.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	All residents, including private persons, may purchase and sell foreign exchange forward without restriction. Forward sales of foreign currency are not restricted, whether or not they are for hedging purposes. The Bank of France participates in the foreign exchange market on its own account. Under Article L151-2 of the Monetary and Financial Code, the government may, in the national interest, by decree subject to authorization, control, or declaration regulate exchange operations between France and foreign countries.

In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash (domestic or foreign currency) entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	Controls apply to (1) the establishment of an agricultural business by citizens of countries that are not EU members and the acquisition of vineyards; (2) investment in airlines, which must be established in France and majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or EU citizens, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (3) the ownership after acquisition of more than 49% of a French flag vessel, except through a company incorporated in the EU; moreover, citizens of countries that are not EU members may not engage in cabotage; (4) the establishment of branches of insurance companies not headquartered in the EU, which are subject to special authorization with respect to their representatives and to specific requirements relating to the deposit, withdrawal, and transfer of funds; (5) the extent that under EU Directive No. 2009/65/EC, a depository of a UCITS must either have its registered office in the same EU country as that of the company or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country; and (6) the acquisition by non-EU residents of more than 20% in the voting rights or the authorized capital of a company holding a license for radio or television services via terrestrial hertzian channels broadcast in French. Moreover, pursuant to Articles L.151-1 and R.151-1 et seq. of the financial and monetary code, foreign investments in France in sectors listed in Article R.151-3 of the financial and monetary code which are likely to jeopardize public order, public security, or national defense interests are subject to prior approval from the Minister for the Economy. There are three categories of sectors: (1) Inherently sensitive activities that fall mainly within the defense and security sectors; (2) Activities relating to infrastructure, goods, and services that are essential to safeguard public order and public security, including, but not limited to, the integrity, security and continuity of energy and water supplies, transportation networks and services, public health, and food security; (3) Research and development activities that relate to critical technologies listed by Order of December 31, 2019, and to dual-use items and technologies carried out in the sectors mentioned above. In the specific context of COVID-19 crisis, the voting rights threshold in sensitive companies which triggers screening procedure was lowered from 25% to 10%, only for listed companies and according to a special procedure. EU and EEA investors are exempted from this measure, which was set to end on December 31, 2023, and is set to be made permanent from January 1, 2024. Effective January 1, 2022, in an effort to adapt the French system of FDI screening to ongoing developments and challenges in the renewable energy sector, the Order of September 10, 2021, relating to foreign investment in France added technologies involved in the production of renewable energy to the list of critical technologies. In an effort to increase stakeholders' understanding of the French FDI screening regulation, guidelines have been published in September 2022. These guidelines are intended to clarify the legal framework of the screening regulation. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments.

This requirement is the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8% (Article 351 of the above-mentioned regulation). Institutions' own funds requirements against positions in relevant closely correlated currencies may be lower. Two currencies are deemed closely correlated if the likelihood of a loss—based on daily exchange rate data for the preceding three or five years—of 4% or less of the value of the matched position in question (in terms of the reporting currency) on equal and opposite positions in such currencies over the following 10 working days has a probability of at least 99% for a three-year observation period and of 95% for a five-year observation period. The own funds requirement on the matched position in two closely correlated currencies is 4% of the value of the matched position (Article 354 of the above-mentioned regulation).
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Pursuant to European Directive No. 2013/36/EU and Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013, if the sum of an institution's overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position, calculated as set out in Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk. Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Insurance companies in the EU must cover their technical reserves with assets expressed in the same currency. In accordance with EU regulations, the French regulation requires insurance entities to cover their technical reserves with "congruent" assets. As a derogation, a maximum percentage of the technical reserves may be covered by "noncongruent" assets—that is, 20% for life insurance and non-life insurance (Insurance Code Articles R.332-1 and R.332-1-1).
Pension funds	Yes.	Pension fund activity in France is performed by insurance companies (as allowed by European Directive No. 2003/41/EC on IORP). A specific "congruence" requirement applies to the technical reserves relating to occupational pension activities.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Insurance companies in the EU are required to cover their technical reserves with assets expressed in the same currency (rule of congruence). In accordance with European regulations, the French regulation requires insurance entities to cover their technical reserves with congruent assets. As a derogation, a maximum percentage of the technical reserves may be covered by noncongruent assets—that is, 30% for the technical reserves specifically relating to occupational pension commitments (Insurance Code Article R.332-61).
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For investment firms, pursuant to European Directive No. 2013/36/EU and Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013, the institution must separately sum all its net long positions and net short positions in accordance with Article 327. The sum of the absolute values of the two figures is its overall gross position. The institution must calculate, separately for each market, the difference between the sum of the net long and net short positions. The sum of the absolute values of those differences is its overall net position (Article 341 of the above-mentioned regulation). For UCITS and money market funds, purchases of securities issued by nonresidents are subject to the same limits as securities issued by residents, namely for UCITS (1) diversification ratios (5/10/40—that is, no more than 10% of the fund's assets may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of the same issuer, and none of the fund's holdings in single issuers that exceed

Digital Currencies and Crypto Assets

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.
Retail	No.	There is currently no live retail central bank digital currency (CBDC) in France. The Eurosystem is considering developing a digital euro. It launched an investigation phase in 2021, to define the design features of the digital euro. On January 11, 2023, the Eurosystem entered a new phase of the digital euro project, launching a preparation phase. The first part of this phase will last two years and will involve (1) deepening the conceptual and technical analysis, (2) testing various functionalities through the organization of experiments, (3) preparing for the development of the digital euro architecture, and (4) accompanying the legislative process. However, the launch decision has not been taken yet and will not be made until a proper legal framework is in place.
Wholesale	No.	There is currently no live wholesale CBDC in France. On April 28, 2023, the Eurosystem launched exploratory work on potential solutions for CB money settlement (including CBDC) of wholesale financial transactions recorded on distributed ledger technology (DLT) platforms. The Eurosystem exploratory work does not constitute a commitment by the Eurosystem to launch a wholesale CBDC or to change its current infrastructures.

Retail	No.	There is currently no live retail foreign CBDC legally circulating in France.
Wholesale	No.	There is currently no live wholesale CBDC legally circulating in France.
Controls on the use of domestic CBDC—retail and/or wholesale	n.r.	The digital euro would be regulated by an ad-hoc legislative text. A legislative proposal was presented by the European Commission on June 28, 2023, and which is currently being negotiated by co-legislators on the EU level. The proposal includes provisions to regulate (1) legal tender status of the digital euro, (2) the balance between privacy and AML-CFT obligations, (3) distribution of the digital euro, (4) compensation model, (5) instruments to prevent its excessive use), (6) use outside the euro area, and (7) data processing requirements. The legislative proposal will include provisions to regulate the use of the digital euro. However, there are no provisions to impose spending or holding restrictions on users that would be embedded directly in the currency (for example, spending on certain goods, or within a specific time window). In other words, the digital euro would not be a programmable currency. For wholesale CBDC, the exploratory work of the Eurosystem is at a too early stage to cover the issues of questions XIII.B. If a wholesale CBDC were to be launched, the access conditions would be the same as the ones defined for the TARGET services.
Use among residents	n.r.	The legislative proposal foresees that the use of a digital euro could be subject to holding limits to ensure that it does not lead to excessive deposit outflows and does not affect the transmission of monetary policy. Additionally, transaction limits could also apply to transactions made using the offline functionality to prevent money laundering and financing of terrorism.
Between residents and nonresidents	n.r.	Extending access to digital euro to persons residing in non-euro area countries, or any wider availability, is foreseen in the legislative proposal. At the current juncture, the legislative proposal provides that cross-currency payments between the digital euro and other currencies would be possible, subject to prior agreements between the ECB and the CBs of relevant jurisdictions to define the conditions in which these payments would occur. Likewise, holding of digital euros by nonresidents would be subject to limits (see Section XIII.B.2). Tourists visiting the euro area may also be offered limited access to digital euro services.

Access to the digital euro for these natural and legal persons would be subject to agreement with the authorities of that country. These persons would also be subject to limits regarding the use of the digital euro as a store of value that would not be higher than the ones effectively implemented in the euro area for residents.

Crypto assets	n.a.	The EU Markets in Crypto-assets Regulation (MiCA) 2023/1114 entered into force June 29, 2023. The provisions on stablecoins (Title III and IV) will start applying on June 30, 2024, while the rest of MiCA (including rules on crypto-asset service providers and on addressing market abuse) on December 30, 2024. MiCA will be directly applicable in all EU Member States. Until then, activities relating to crypto-assets and stablecoins are governed by any applicable national law. In France, there is no dedicated regulatory framework related to unbacked crypto-assets but a general one, created by the French PACTE Law of May 22, 2019, introducing “digital assets”, with no consideration on the backing of the crypto-asset. The regime concerns digital asset service providers (Prestataire de services sur actifs numériques, PSAN), and issuers of Initial Coin Offering (ICO) tokens. However, the issuance of crypto-assets (except in the particular case of the issuance of ICO tokens) is not covered by French Law. Exchange and trading platforms that offer unbacked crypto-assets to French citizens must be registered as PSAN and are regulated by the French financial market authority (AMF) and the French ACPR. This current French regulatory framework related to “digital assets” will be replaced with the European Markets in Crypto-Assets regulation “MiCA”, as of 2024.
Controls on unbacked tokens	No.	The MiCA regulation regulates the issuance and the provision of services on crypto-assets (that is, unbacked tokens) and stablecoins. However, it does not cover their acquisition as an investment nor their use as a settlement asset.

A security token might be qualified (on a case-by-case analysis), under the French Law (see Article L.211-7 of the French Monetary and Financial Code), as a financial instrument and if applicable follow the related European and French financial regulation framework. The MiCA regulation henceforth clarifies that security tokens must be regulated as financial instruments, under Directive 2014/65/EU on Markets in Financial Instruments (MIFID). Utility tokens are governed under MiCA as crypto-assets.

Controls on stablecoins	No.	The issuance of stablecoins is not covered by the PACTE Law. Exchange and trading platforms that offer stablecoins to French citizens must be registered as PSAN and are regulated by the AMF and the ACPR. However, under MiCA, the issuance and the provision of services on stablecoins (that is, Asset-referenced tokens (ARTs) and E-money tokens) are strictly regulated.
Acquisition by residents	No.	MiCA provides limits for the acquisition of ART used as means of exchange or E-money tokens based on a foreign currency.
Use among residents	No.	MiCA provides limits for the use of ART used as means of exchange.
Between residents and nonresidents	No.
For current transaction	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Controls on crypto exchanges and trading platforms	No.	Under the PACTE law, exchanges must be registered as PSAN and are regulated by the AMF and the ACPR. The authorization regime provided by the PACTE remains optional.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The MiCA regulation provides a more stringent legal regime for the provision of crypto-asset services, which cover crypto-asset exchange and trading platforms.
Domestic exchanges	No.	Under MiCA, crypto-asset service providers offering services in the EU must be implemented in the EU and are submitted to an authorization procedure.
Access to crypto exchange/trading platform by residents	No.	Under MiCA, access to crypto-service providers is submitted to investor and consumer protection rules. Crypto-asset service providers should provide their clients with information that is complete, fair, clear and not misleading and warn them about the risks associated with crypto-assets. Crypto-asset service providers should make their pricing policies public, should establish complaints-handling procedures and should have a robust policy for the identification, prevention, management and disclosure of conflicts of interest.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for 2019 Article IV Consultation Fourth and Fifth Reviews under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Waiver of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria, and Rephasing of the Remaining Purchases with Gabon states that, as of December 4, 2019, Gabon maintained a 1.5% tax on wire transfers abroad that is not consistent with Gabon's obligations under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the Articles of Agreement. The proceeds of this tax are used to fund Gabon's health insurance scheme. (Country Report No. 19/389)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Gabon implements UNSC Resolution Nos. 1970 and 1973.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	For security reasons, Gabon supports UNSC Resolution No. 1373 to combat money laundering and terrorism financing (Regulation No. 01/03/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of April 4, 2003).

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. In Gabon, nine banks are licensed to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. Nine banks are licensed, and all participate in the interbank market. In principle, all licensed banks participate in the interbank market, but at different levels.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. However, licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.

Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency. However, the Central African Republic adopted a law on April 22, 2022, which governs cryptocurrency transactions in the country and considers Bitcoin as the reference currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.	There is no formal clearing agreement between any CEMAC country and other countries. Nor are there any regulatory provisions governing this mechanism. In practice, however, some countries may receive production or capital goods from abroad in exchange for financial flows.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. When banks execute payment order requests through their liquidity buffer, these requests do not come back to the BEAC but are checked during on-site or off-site inspections. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.

On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. Balances may be transferred abroad freely. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Generally, the BEAC's approval is given when the entity in question cannot easily carry out all its operations with accounts in CFA francs only or when a financial arrangement following an external financial contribution requires the opening of foreign currency accounts.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of December 21, 2018. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 10, 2019. In general, when resident entities borrow abroad and the lenders require foreign currency accounts to be established, these are authorized by the BEAC.

Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn. On account closure (for example, for loss of nonresident status), the account balance must be transferred to a resident account in CFAF.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.	Nonresidents may not convert the balances of their domestic currency accounts to foreign currency or transfer them abroad.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. Imports are subject to declaration.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	Yes.	Guarantees are required.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.
Other	No.
Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
Other export taxes	Yes.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF. Licensed intermediaries must obtain a pro forma invoice or other supporting documents for payments for service-related expenditures under CFAF 10 million.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided. Transactions in excess of CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with CEMAC credit institutions. Other current transactions, as well as financial and capital operations in excess of CFAF 100 million, must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers' foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation for amounts in excess of CFAF 5 million, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.
Personal payments	Yes.	Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The use of credit cards is considered equivalent to a transfer and is not subject to specific regulations in the context of invisible transactions and current transfers. Residents may use credit cards within the CEMAC and abroad.
Other payments	Yes.	These are treated the same as trade-related payments.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided. Amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be declared to BEAC and the MOF.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital flows within the CEMAC are not subject to exchange controls. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and to all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), from January 15, 2009, specifies that "when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained." The article also states that "the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF."
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.

Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days. There is no minimum (or maximum) holding period for securities.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval. There is a minimum holding period requirement for such bonds.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is no more than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, prior CB approval is required.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of money market instruments within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for purchases of money market instruments by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before if the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the prior CB approval is required.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared to the CB 30 days before when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above that amount, prior CB approval is required. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that “the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-end investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC.”
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. When the total outstanding liabilities of a single borrower exceed CFAF 100 million, transactions are subject to MOF approval. Moreover, the provisions of Article 255 of the COSUMAF General Regulations specify that “the regulations governing the management of a collective investment fund and the articles of incorporation of an open-end investment company may, subject to COSUMAF prior approval, allow purchases and sales of securities on markets outside the CEMAC.”

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	The Gambia maintains exchange restrictions in accordance with UNSC resolutions. These include restrictions on financial transactions, listing and freezing of accounts of individuals and all financial and non-financial institutions and designated non-financial businesses and persons (DNFBPs) in support of (1) UNSC Resolutions Nos. 1267 (1999) and 1373 (2001) and (2) the US State Department's updated list of organizations associated with terrorism. In addition, pursuant to UNSC resolutions, The Gambia enacted the Anti-Terrorism Act of 2012 and the Money-Laundering Act of 2012.
Other security restrictions	No.

		maintained within ±15% of the central rate; however, the authorities have not yet implemented these measures. The Central Bank of The Gambia (CBG) periodically intervenes in the foreign exchange market by selling and buying foreign exchange to augment international reserves and ensure market orderliness. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like. The CBG does not publish intervention data but informs market makers on the results of each auction including prices.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The daily interbank exchange rates are computed after the close of each business day. The CBG collects actual buying and selling rates of all participants in the foreign exchange market (between banks, microfinance institutions, and foreign exchange bureaus, and their respective customers) for each traded currency and calculates the average midmarket rate. The exchange rate for government transactions is the average of the midmarket interbank rates of the previous week. The CBG conducts a foreign exchange market review session on the last business day of each week with the participation of the commercial banks, microfinance institutions, and foreign exchange bureaus. During this session, the average market rate of the week is announced as the rate to be applied to government transactions and customs valuations the following week.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	All ADs are allowed to determine their rates in line with market fundamentals.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus are subject to annual license renewal by the CBG. As of December 2022, there were 116 licensed bureaus. Because of their involvement in international money transfer operations, licensed foreign exchange bureaus may choose to open accounts abroad; however, they may not open accounts for their customers. The CBG has been authorized to deal with microfinance institutions and foreign exchange bureaus, as stipulated in the Reserve Management Guidelines. Currently, the CBG deals only with commercial banks because the volumes involved in the intervention are not available to foreign exchange bureaus.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Auction	Yes.	CBG auctions (purchase/sale) are conducted by written invitations/solicitation through email to all banks (only banks can participate because of volume) and requesting bids to be submitted in writing. The auction preannounces the foreign exchange amount, currency, bid submission deadline, and the requirement to submit bids in sealed envelopes to the CBG. The most competitive bid, that is, the best rate (lowest buying, highest selling rate), is selected in these auctions. While the cutoff rate is determined by the best bid rate, it is subject to the rate range set by the CBG intervention policy, which limits awarding rates within intervention trading limits of the policy as at trade date. The auctions are sanctioned by the Intervention Committee. Winning bids are limited to 20% of the amount floated. Bids must be settled by T+2. The CBG only settled the dalasi component when swift confirmations are received to mitigate credit risk.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus are free to engage in transactions among themselves or with customers at exchange rates agreed on by the parties to these transactions. The daily interbank exchange rates are computed after the close of each business day. The CBG collates actual buying and selling exchange rates of all participants in the foreign exchange interbank (banks, finance companies, and foreign exchange bureaus) for each traded currency and calculates the average midmarket rate. Hence, the interbank exchange rates only include rates between banks, finance companies, and foreign exchange bureaus, and their respective customers. All 12 commercial banks and licensed foreign exchange bureaus and microfinance institutions take part in the interbank foreign exchange market. There is no restriction on the market trading spread. The spread continues to be determined by the fundamentals of demand and supply.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	n.a.	The foreign exchange market continues to operate on the fundamentals of demand and supply. All the participants quote their respective prices and consummate deals based on agreements with their customers.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements of Georgia are floating. The National Bank of Georgia (NBG) intervenes in the foreign exchange market through foreign exchange auctions or rules-based interventions, but does not make any explicit or implicit commitment with respect to an exchange rate target or path.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Considering the market conditions, interventions are aimed at filling international reserves or smoothing excessive volatility to avoid inflationary expectations. The amount bought/sold at NBG's foreign exchange auctions and the average exchange rates are posted on the NBG website the same day, shortly after each auction.

The NBG uses the exchange trading system Bloomberg "BMatch." This foreign exchange trading platform is based on the principle of automatic "matching" of transactions. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency transactions between the parties will be concluded automatically. At the first stage, only commercial banks participated in the BMatch platform. Companies are able to participate and can have access to the BMatch platform in two ways: directly through Bloomberg terminal and indirectly through a commercial bank.
With the introduction of the BMatch system, the NBG started to implement rule-based interventions on the platform—when the volatility of the exchange rate exceeds predetermined level, the intervention is carried out within the predefined limits.

In 2022, Russian invasion in Ukraine pushed country risk premium up and initially created depreciatory pressures. Meanwhile, expectations around exchange rate deteriorated as Russia and Ukraine are Georgia's major partner countries. However, foreign exchange inflows have strengthened since then. Money transfers have increased significantly and stood at record high level mostly driven by increased amount of money transfers from Russia. Meanwhile, tourism revenues started to recover and exceed the pre-pandemic level. Increased international visitor revenues were mostly driven by increased long stay visitors from Russia and Belarus. Ultimately, as a result of these trends, external demand was high in 2022 and the current account balance improved significantly. In 2022, the current account deficit of the balance of payments amounted to 4.6% of GDP, a historic low for Georgia. Under such circumstances, exchange rate appreciated in both nominal and real terms. During the year, the nominal effective exchange rate appreciated annually by 24.9%, while the real effective exchange rate appreciated by 15.0%. The net purchases of the NBG in the foreign exchange market amounted to USD 565 million. By foreign exchange auctions, NBG net selling was US$13.8 million, and by BMatch interventions, NBG's net purchase was US$578.4 million.
In 2023, the downward trend in inflation continued, and according to the latest data, inflation in September 2023 amounted to 0.7%, inflationary expectations also began to decline, and the NBG has begun a cautious exit from the strict monetary policy. In total, the monetary policy rate has been reduced by 1 percentage point (pp) since May 2023 and equaled to 10%. During 2023, the exchange rate remained on an appreciating trend and in September 2023 the NEER appreciated by 23.6% and in August REER – by 8.3%, annually. The net purchase of the NBG in the foreign exchange market from January to September 2023 amounted to US$1,390.3. By foreign exchange auctions, NBG net selling was US$81.9, and by BMatch interventions, NBG's net purchase was US$1,472.1 million.
The press release about the foreign exchange interventions is published on the day of the auction and also in the statistics section of the NBG website.
Data on the net purchases using the BMatch platform are published with a time lag of slightly less than one month in the statistics section

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate for the US dollar is determined daily and may be used (not mandatory) for state budget and tax accounting and for payments between the government and businesses and other legal entities. The official exchange rates for other currencies are based on the cross-rates for the dollar and other currencies in the international market. (1) The calculation period for the official exchange rate of the lari against the US dollar is from 4:30 p.m. of the previous business day to 4:30 p.m. of the calculation day within the BMatch platform of the Bloomberg trading system ("trade platform"), taking into account all registered foreign exchange spot trades. The official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar is calculated as the average weighted exchange rate on the interbank market during the calculation period within the trade platform for registered trades. Trades concluded with the NBG as counterparty are considered interbank trades. (2) The following instances are not considered in the determination of the official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar: (a) trades at rates significantly different from other registered trades: A rate is considered significantly different if it is either 2.5% higher or lower than the average weighted exchange rate of all the other registered trades within the calculation period (in practice, since the introduction of the new system in 2009, there have been only a few cases for excluding outliers) and (b) opposite trades between two counterparties with similar rates and amounts. (3) Trades used in the calculation of the official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis the US dollar for the previous day may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate during the calculation period if (a) the number of registered trades within the trade platform during the calculation period that may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate is three or fewer than three or (b) the total amount of the trades within the trade platform during the calculation period that may be used in the calculation of the official exchange rate is less than US$1.5 million. (4) The official exchange rate of the lari vis-à-vis other foreign currencies is determined according to the rate in international markets or the issuer country's domestic interbank currency market on the basis of cross-currency exchange rates. (5) The list of market segments for foreign currencies (interbank or CB rate) used in the determination of the cross-currency exchange rate is determined by the NBG. (6) The sources for exchange rates are the Reuters and Bloomberg Information systems and CBs' websites. (7) In the determination of cross-currency exchange rates, the latest available exchange rates are used. (8) Cross-currency exchange rates, the rates of foreign currencies (other than the lari) vis-à-vis the US dollar, are determined by the CB each business day from 2:45 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. In case of technical difficulties, a delay in the determination of exchange rates is permitted until the problems are resolved. Official exchange rate calculation is automated, using in-house software.

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	In December 2009, the NBG adopted an inflation-targeting framework.
Target setting body	Yes.	The inflation target is set by the NBG and submitted to the parliament. The MPC decisions are submitted, in the form of recommendations, to the governor of the NBG who will make the final decision. The MPC sets the inflation target and can also decide to set the type of target. The NBG is independent in its decision to set the inflation target and utilize its instruments to conduct the monetary policy.
Government
Central Bank	Yes.
Monetary Policy Committee	Yes.	The MPC consists of 13 NBG staff members and is led by the governor of the NBG. The meetings are held eight times in a year according to a preannounced calendar. (But in extraordinary circumstances, unplanned meetings can also be arranged.) The MPC is responsible for determining the target rate of inflation and setting monetary policy rate. The committee is also responsible for discussing and making decisions on issues regarding open market operations and other monetary and exchange rate operations, the issuance of certificates of deposit, setting the interest rate on NBG loans, minimum reserve requirement (RR) norms, other lending/deposit operations, and monetary policy instruments (except for the lender of last resort).

Point target	Yes.	Inflation target was set at 3% since 2018 (and for 2021–2023), which is also NBG's long-term target.
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	The monetary policy of the NBG is forward looking and is based not on the current level of inflation, but, rather, on the forecasted level of inflation and the expectations of economic agents. For this reason, economic conditions are constantly evaluated and inflation forecasts are developed which consider those risks that can influence the price level. Inflation target is expressed in terms of the annual inflation rate.
CPI	Yes.	The CPI annual inflation is used as the point inflation target for the medium term.

Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	Once a year, the NBG presents its annual report to the parliament.
Other	Yes.	In practice, the deviation of inflation from its target is explained in the Quarterly Monetary Policy Reports.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	No.	No information is published regarding voting.
Publication of minutes	No.	Minutes are not published. Press releases on the MPC's decisions about the main monetary policy (refinancing) rate are immediately published on the NBG website. Press releases include information about the reasons of monetary policy decisions and forward guidance. In addition, deviation of the current inflation from the targeted level is briefly explained.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The NBG publishes quarterly inflation forecasts and forecasted path of the policy rate in the Monetary Policy Reports.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Market participants are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Spot foreign exchanges market is free from regulation, and no special licenses are required to buy and/or sell the foreign currency. As of December 31, 2022, there were 15 commercial banks, 1 nonbank depository institutions (credit unions), 36 microfinance organizations, 176 loan issuing entities, 689 foreign exchange bureaus, 2 stock exchanges, 18 insurance companies, and 5 pension agency and schemes. Commercial Banks, microfinance organizations, and foreign exchange bureaus may buy and sell foreign currency to their clients. Their potential clients could be individuals and legal entities. Foreign exchange bureaus must be registered and may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the NBG. They may transact only with banknotes. They may maintain accounts abroad on their own behalf, but may not maintain foreign accounts or make transfers on behalf of their clients.

of accumulating international reserves; (2) for smoothing excessive short-term volatility caused by temporary capital flows; (3) for balancing government's external operations; and (4) for supporting price stability.

The multiple price foreign exchange auction (introduced in 2009) is held occasionally at the discretion of the NBG in US dollars. The NBG defines the type of intervention (sale/purchase), the amount of currency to be sold/purchased, and minimum and/or maximum acceptable exchange rates for bidding. The amount is announced using the Bloomberg system, at least one hour in advance of the auction. Participants may bid within a corridor around the official exchange rate. Corridor is defined by the NBG for each auction, and it depends on current market conditions. There are no limits on bid amounts; each bank may place only one bid. The settlement of currency exchange operations with successful bidders takes place on t + 1—that is, on the first business day following the trade date in Georgia and in the country whose currency was traded. The volume sold/purchased at the auction and the average exchange rates are posted on the NBG website immediately after the auction. In case of default, the NBG applies a fine. In case of a foreign currency sale auction, if a winning bank does not have sufficient funds in its national currency settlement account before the second cutoff of the real-time gross settlement system on the auction settlement date, settlement will take place on the following business day. In case of foreign currency purchase auction, if a winning bank is unable to transfer sufficient foreign currency to its foreign currency correspondent account at the NBG before the end of business day of the issuer country of the foreign currency, the bank must pay a surcharge equal to 2% of the nominal value of purchased foreign currency. The value date of this transaction is the same as the foreign exchange auction settlement date. If a bank does not have sufficient funds in its settlement account at the NBG before the second cutoff of the real-time gross settlement system on the business day following the auction settlement date, the winning bids of the bank are annulled. There is a surcharge on the national currency settlement account of a bank: If a bank does not have sufficient funds in its national currency settlement account, the surcharge is taken from the bank's US dollar correspondent account and/or another foreign currency correspondent account at the NBG. The surcharge is calculated and charged using the official foreign exchange rates on the day of the transaction. Auctions are conducted in the Bloomberg system. All commercial banks licensed in Georgia may participate in this auction after receiving participating bank status from the NBG at their request.

In 2019, the NBG introduced a new instrument—foreign exchange options. Foreign exchange options are sold via auctions in exchange for a fee. The auction mechanism for options is based on multiple price auction.

Foreign exchange option is a financial instrument, which gives the right to a holder (but not obligation) to buy national currency in exchange for foreign exchange (US dollar or EUR) during the predetermined period (usually the following month) at the official exchange rate. The condition of using the options is that the lari exchange rate should be stronger than the average of the previous 20 days. The strike price of the option is the official exchange rate of the day when an option is exercised, that is, average exchange rate of the previous day.

The foreign exchange option instrument is not used since July 2019, given the market conditions.

		platform. When the volatility of the exchange rate exceeds a predetermined level, the intervention is carried out within the predefined limits.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank spot exchange market, part of the foreign exchange spot market in Georgia, is based on the Bloomberg trading platform and is not operated by the CB. Any institution (financial and non-financial) that has the Bloomberg system can participate. There are no limits on bid-ask spread and commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2022, 14 commercial banks and 4 microfinance organizations are participating in interbank foreign exchange market. There are also non-financial organizations that have Bloomberg terminals and can trade between themselves and with financial institutions, but they are not much active. Non-financial institutions are not part of interbank foreign exchange market. The interbank market uses the Bloomberg system and its new Bmatch platform for foreign exchange trading operations. BMatch is Bloomberg's foreign exchange trading platform that is based on the principle of automatic "matching" of applications. Market participants will place foreign currency buying and selling applications on the BMatch platform, and if the exchange rates between the buyer and seller of the currency coincide, then the currency trade between the parties will be concluded automatically. From October 2020, companies who have Bloomberg terminal may access Bmatch platform directly, or may access Bmatch via commercial banks, if they do not have Bloomberg terminal.
Over the counter	Yes.	Any organization (financial and non-financial) may trade over the counter at freely determined rates.
Brokerage	No.	There is no restriction for brokers, but in practice there are no foreign exchange brokers; banks and other participants use the Bloomberg trading platform and participate in the foreign exchange market directly.
Market making	Yes.	The market operates on the basis of market makers. Participants are not obligated to serve as market makers.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward foreign exchange market is not active. The NBG does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange turnover in outright forward and swap transactions is very shallow.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Higher capital is required for loans issued in foreign exchange. Banks are allowed to lend in foreign currency only if the loan amount is equivalent to more than 200,000 lari. This rule is applicable to resident debtors. Effective January 1, 2022, to support larization, Currency-Induced Credit Risk Buffer is determined based on the level of loan dollarization instead of previous flat 75% risk weight. If the dollarization is 40% or below the risk weight will be set at 40% and each 1 pp increase in dollarization above 40% will result in the rise of risk weight by 3 pp, up to 100%. To facilitate smooth transition towards the renewed scheme, banks that need to increase their capital buffer, will be given 1 year to meet the requirement, while for others the buffer requirement will be decreased immediately.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The RRs on funds borrowed in the national currency amount to 5%. Borrowed funds with a remaining maturity of over one year in the national currency are exempt from RRs. As of July 6, 2021, the RRs on funds borrowed in foreign currency were changed as follows and are determined individually for commercial banks based on their deposit dollarization: (1) for borrowed funds with remaining maturity up to 1 year, it is set between 10% and 25%: if deposit dollarization is 70% or above, the RR is 25%; if deposit dollarization is 40% or below, the RR is 10%; and in between, it changes linearly based on dollarization; (2) for borrowed funds with remaining maturity between 1 and 2 years, it is set between 10% and 15%: if deposit dollarization is 70% or above, the RR is 15%; if deposit dollarization is 40% or below, the RR is 10%; and in between, it changes linearly based on dollarization. Borrowed funds with a remaining maturity of over 2 years in the foreign currency are exempt from RRs. Capital and funds equalized to capital are exempt from the required reserve norms. There is also differentiation in remuneration. The interest rate remunerated on national currency required reserves is equal to the monetary policy rate. Effective May 13, 2022, the required reserves denominated in US dollar are remunerated with fixed 0% (previously they were remunerated at a rate equal to the US Fed policy rate minus 0.5 pp). Effective September 14, 2022, the required reserves denominated in euro are also remunerated with fixed 0%, while previously they were remunerated with the interest rate equal to the policy rate on deposit facility of the ECB minus 0.2 pp.

The legislative framework, among other things, establishes the Virtual Asset Service Providers' (VASPs') mandatory registration regime at the NBG, VASPs' administrators' Fit and Proper criteria, and AML/CFT supervision framework. At this stage, the framework covers mandatory registration, administrators' Fit and Proper criteria, and AML/CFT supervision. The Legislation of Georgia regulates convertible virtual assets: A virtual asset is a digital representation of value that is interchangeable and non-unique, can be digitally traded or transferred, and can be used for investments and/or payment purposes. A virtual asset does not include digital representation of fiat currencies, securities, or other financial instruments. A convertible virtual asset is a virtual asset that has an equivalent value on the market, in national or foreign currency, in another virtual asset, and/or a financial instrument in which it can be exchanged. The Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG Article 2, sub-paragraph "gg13" defines Virtual Asset Service – Exchange (including via kiosks) between convertible virtual asset and fiat currencies (national or foreign), between one or more forms of virtual assets, or between convertible virtual asset and financial instrument; Transfer of convertible virtual asset; Safekeeping and/or administration of convertible virtual asset or of the instrument enabling control over virtual asset; Portfolio management of convertible virtual assets (excluding collective portfolio management); Administration of the trading platform of the convertible virtual assets; Lending of convertible virtual asset; Initial Coin Offering of convertible virtual asset and/or service related to initial coin offering. The Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG Article 2, sub-paragraph "gg14" defines Virtual Asset Service Provider (VASP) – A person who provides virtual asset services for the benefit of another person (for or on behalf of another person). As of July 1, 2023, came into force the rule for VASP's registration at the NBG, registration cancellation, and regulation. All VASPs are obliged to be compliant with the rule and register at the NBG. Apart from VASPs, the newly adopted amendments also allow financial institutions such as commercial banks, brokerage companies, and microfinance organizations to provide the following Virtual Asset Services: exchange (including via kiosks) between convertible virtual asset and fiat currencies (national or foreign), between one or more forms of virtual assets, between convertible virtual asset and financial instrument; transfer of convertible virtual asset; safekeeping and/or administration of convertible virtual asset or of the instrument enabling control over virtual asset.

Acquisition by residents	Yes.	As of January 1, 2023, financial institutions (obliged entities) that fall under the NBG supervision, including VASPs, are required to follow the relevant AML/CTF rules as well as sanctions imposed by the US, UK, and EU because of the occurrences in the Ukraine.
Use among residents	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2023, a virtual asset is not a legal tender. Accordingly, pursuant to the Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG, it is prohibited to make payments with a virtual asset, except for the exceptional cases defined by the legal act of the NBG, which are essential for providing virtual asset service. Effective July 1, 2023, with respect to the exceptional cases defined by the legal acts, in the rule for VASP's registration at the NBG, registration cancellation, and regulation, there are provisions in article 1: Paragraph 7 – Under the instruction of the customer, the VASP is authorized to transfer the funds (in national or foreign currency) obtained as a result of exchange of convertible virtual asset to the payment service provider, the intermediary provider, or the acquirer (including the sub-acquirer) participating in the scheme. Paragraph 8 – The VASP is authorized to receive a commission/Interest/fee from the customer in the same Virtual Asset which was used for the virtual asset service provided.

The Legislation of Georgia regulates convertible virtual assets: A virtual asset is a digital representation of value that is interchangeable and non-unique, can be digitally traded or transferred, and can be used for investments and/or payment purposes. A virtual asset does not include digital representation of fiat currencies, securities, or other financial instruments. A convertible virtual asset is a virtual asset that has an equivalent value on the market, in national or foreign currency, in another virtual asset, and/or a financial instrument in which it can be exchanged. The Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG Article 2, sub-paragraph "gg13" defines Virtual Asset Service – Exchange (including via kiosks) between convertible virtual asset and fiat currencies (national or foreign), between one or more forms of virtual assets, or between convertible virtual asset and financial instrument; Transfer of convertible virtual asset; Safekeeping and/or administration of convertible virtual asset or of the instrument enabling control over virtual asset; Portfolio management of convertible virtual assets (excluding collective portfolio management); Administration of the trading platform of the convertible virtual assets; Lending of convertible virtual asset; Initial Coin Offering of convertible virtual asset and/or service related to initial coin offering. The Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG Article 2, sub-paragraph "gg14" defines VASP – A person who provides virtual asset services for the benefit of another person (for or on behalf of another person). As of July 1, 2023 came into force the rule for VASP's registration at the NBG, registration cancellation, and regulation. All VASPs are obliged to be compliant with the rule and register at the NBG. Apart from VASPs, the newly adopted amendments also allow financial institutions such as commercial banks, brokerage companies, and microfinance organizations to provide the following Virtual Asset Services: exchange (including via kiosks) between convertible virtual asset and fiat currencies (national or foreign), between one or more forms of virtual assets, between convertible virtual asset and financial instrument; transfer of convertible virtual asset; safekeeping and/or administration of convertible virtual asset or of the instrument enabling control over virtual asset.
Acquisition by residents	Yes.	As of January 1, 2023, financial institutions (obliged entities) that fall under the NBG supervision, including VASPs, are required to follow the relevant AML/CTF rules as well as sanctions imposed by the US, UK, and EU because of the occurrences in the Ukraine.
Use among residents	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2023, a virtual asset is not a legal tender. Accordingly, pursuant to the Organic Law of Georgia on the NBG, it is prohibited to make payments with a virtual asset, except for the exceptional cases defined by the legal act of the NBG, which are essential for providing virtual asset service.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Lending locally in foreign exchange	01/01/2022	To support larization, Currency-Induced Credit Risk Buffer is determined based on the level of loan dollarization instead of previous flat 75% risk weight. If the dollarization is 40% or below the risk weight will be set at 40% and each 1 percentage point (pp) increase in dollarization above 40% will result in the rise of risk weight by 3 pp, up to 100%. To facilitate smooth transition towards the renewed scheme, banks that need to increase their capital buffer, will be given 1 year to meet the requirement, while for others the buffer requirement will be decreased immediately.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
Reserve requirements	05/13/2022	The required reserves denominated in US dollar are remunerated with fixed 0% (previously they were remunerated at a rate equal to the US Fed policy rate minus 0.5 percentage point).
	09/14/2022	The required reserves denominated in euro are remunerated with fixed 0% (previously they were remunerated with the interest rate equal to the policy rate on deposit facility of the ECB minus 0.2 percentage point).

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Germany participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks (ESCB), which normally takes place at 14:10 Central European Time, effective April 3, 2023. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The Bundesbank is an integral part of the ESCB. Pursuant to Article 127(1) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, the primary objective of the ESCB is to maintain price stability. Without prejudice to the objective of price stability, the ESCB supports the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union as laid down in Article 3 of the Treaty on the EU. The ESCB acts in accordance with the principle of an open market economy with free competition, favoring an efficient allocation of resources, and with the principles set out in Article 119 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU. These include as guiding principles "stable prices, sound public finances and monetary conditions and a sustainable balance of payments." The ECB considers that price stability is best maintained by aiming for a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.

		No. 1024/2013). Providing financial services requires a license from the Federal Financial Supervisory Authority (Section 32 of the Banking Act). Dealing in foreign notes and coins requires a license because of the risk of money laundering. This refers primarily to exchange bureaus as specialized financial institutions: A license to conduct the overall banking business already includes permission to deal in foreign currency. Hotels, travel agencies, and department stores dealing in foreign currency only as a secondary business do not need a license. As of July 28, 2022, about 1,283 deposit-taking credit institutions, 7 financial service institutions (non-microfinance institutions), 3 payment institutions, and 7 other institutions were permitted to deal in foreign currency.

According to Article 3 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672, travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the competent authorities of the Member State through which they enter or leave the EU. The competent authorities must record the obtained information and transmit it to the FIU of the Member State in which it was obtained. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete or if the cash is not made available for control. To verify compliance with the obligation to declare, the competent authorities have the power to carry out controls on natural persons, their luggage, and their means of transport (Article 5(1) of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672). The competent authorities may temporarily detain cash by means of an administrative decision where the obligation to declare accompanied cash under Article 3 has not been fulfilled or there are indications that the cash, irrespective of the amount, is related to criminal activity (Article 7(1) of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672). The Regulation requires Member States to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation (Article 14 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672). Where there are indications that the cash is related to criminal activity, the competent authority of each Member State must transmit obtained declarations to the competent authorities of all the other Member States and, under certain conditions, to the Commission, the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO), and Europol (Article 10 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672). According to Article 11 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672, information can be exchanged with third countries. In addition to the obligation in Article 3 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 to declare, there is an obligation to disclose unaccompanied cash of a value of €10,000 or more entering or leaving the Union (Article 4 of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672). The Regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU-member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the Regulation; the Regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders. According to Section 1(4) Zollverwaltungsgesetz (ZollVG)—Customs Administration Act (German national law), the transfer of cash and equivalent means of payment into, out of, and through the scope of application of this Act (that is, Germany) is also monitored. Section 12a ZollVG stipulates an obligation to disclose cash verbally on request of the competent authorities, when travelers enter or leave Germany from or to another EU-member country carrying cash or equivalent means of payment with a value of €10,000 or more. Procedural provisions, for example, regarding violations or possibilities to check compliance, are similar. Pursuant to Article 12 of Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1509, it is prohibited to sell, supply, transfer, or export, directly or indirectly, newly printed or unissued DPRK-denominated banknotes and minted coinage, to or for the benefit of the Central Bank of DPRK. Pursuant to Article 11 of Council Regulation (EU) No. 36/2012, it is prohibited to sell, supply, transfer, or export, directly or indirectly, new Syrian-denominated banknotes and coinage, printed or minted in the Union, to the Central Bank of Syria. Pursuant to Article 5i of Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, it is prohibited to sell, supply, transfer, or export banknotes denominated in any official currency of a EU Member State to Russia or to any natural or legal person, entity, or body in Russia, including the government and the Central Bank of Russia, or for use in Russia, other than for diplomatic or personal usage.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	Controls apply (1) to investment in air transportation enterprises, which (in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1008/2008) must be more than 50% owned directly or indirectly through one or more intermediate companies by members and/or nationals of EU members; an enterprise must notify its licensing authority within 14 days of any change in ownership of a single shareholding that represents 10% or more of the total; (2) to the acquisition of a German flag vessel, except through an enterprise incorporated in Germany or in another member of the EU; (3) to investment in the broadcasting (radio and television) sector, except through a subsidiary incorporated in Germany, as required for both residents and nonresidents; (4) to the use of depository banks for investment funds of capital investment companies, which is (in accordance with Directive No. 2009/65/EC) not permitted for branches of nonresident financial institutions whose head office is outside the EU, except for funds not covered under Directive No. 2009/65/EC and not sold in other EU-member countries; (5) to a depository of a UCITS, which (under EC Directive No. 2009/65) must have its registered office either in the same EU country as that of the company or be established in the EU country if its registered office is in another EU country; (6) to investments in companies in sectors related to goods on the German export control list or other defense technology, IT security products to process classified state material, and facilities that are vital for defense, which (under Section 60 et seq. of the German Foreign Trade Ordinance) require notification if the transaction will give a foreign investor at least 10% of the voting rights; restrictions may be imposed to secure the "material security interests" of Germany; and (7) in general, under Section 55 et seq. of the German Foreign Trade Ordinance, which may, to secure "public order or security," restrict investments in any other German enterprise by an investor from outside the EU or EFTA that will give the investor at least 25% of the voting rights or 10% or 20% in one of 27 sensitive civil sectors (for example, critical infrastructure, emerging/sensitive technologies). The amendment expands controls to investments in any German enterprise by an investor outside the EU or EFTA that will give the investor at least 20% (previously 25%) of voting rights in the case of an enterprise in a sensitive sector as categorized in Section 55a(1) No. 8-27 of the Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance (for example, critical infrastructure, emerging/sensitive technologies). With respect to enterprises in sensitive civil sectors as set out in Section 55a(1) No.1-7 of the Foreign Trade and Payment Ordinance previously covered by the sector-specific regime, the relevant voting rights threshold remains at 10%. For all other acquisitions, the 25% threshold applies. Asset deals are in the scope of the FDI screening regime, and the review may take into account whether an acquirer is directly or indirectly controlled by foreign government or its agencies. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments. The German Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance was amended in line with this by amendments that entered into force October 29, 2020 ("Sechzehnte Verordnung zur Änderung der Außenwirtschaftsverordnung") and May 1, 2021 ("Siebzehnte Verordnung zur Änderung der Außenwirtschaftsverordnung").The subsequent amendments to the German Foreign Trade and Payments Ordinance regarding FDI screening led only to minor adjustments, regarding changed names of laws and authorities and a facilitation of electronic communication during an FDI screening procedure. Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	04/12/2022	Restrictions apply to the listing and the provision of services, on trading venues registered or recognized in the Union for the transferable securities of any legal person, entity, or body established in Belarus and with over 50% public ownership.
	05/03/2023	Restrictive measures were imposed against certain persons with respect to the Republic of Moldova.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	04/03/2023	The ECB Governing Council changed the computation time of the euro foreign exchange rates (also known as the ECB reference rates) to around 14:10 CET, to avoid overlaps with publication time (14:15 CET). Previously reference rates took place at 14:15 CET.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with Ghana states that as of July 1, 2021, Ghana maintained one exchange restriction and a MCP subject to IMF approval. The exchange restriction arises from the limitation/prohibition on purchasing and transferring foreign exchange for import transactions by importers that have not submitted to the commercial bank customs entry forms for any past foreign exchange transactions related to imports and that are unrelated to the underlying transaction. An MCP also arises, because the Bank of Ghana (BOG) requires the use of its internal rate (that is, the previous day's weighted average interbank exchange rate) for government transactions and the surrender of foreign exchange proceeds from cocoa exports funded through the cocoa syndicated loan without having a mechanism in place to ensure that, at the time of the transaction, this exchange rate does not differ from the rate prevailing in the market rate (that is, the interbank exchange rate) and the rates used by banks in their transactions with their customers by more than 2%. (Country Report No. 21/165)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.

Unitary
Dual	Yes.	The BOG uses a reference rate for certain official transactions. This rate does not involve a mechanism to ensure that it does not differ from the prevailing market rate by more than 2%, thus giving rise to an MCP. The BOG publishes daily reference foreign exchange rates against cedis. The US dollar–Cedi reference midrate is the weighted average of all the daily spot foreign exchange market transactions of at least US$10,000 reported by all banks until 2:30 p.m. to the BOG, excluding transactions where the BOG was a counterparty. The other currencies' reference rate to cedis is based on the current cross-rates in the international foreign exchange market from Reuters.

Other managed arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the cedi is determined by market forces. Ghana joined the W-ERM II of the WAMZ, which requires that the spot exchange rate between the cedi and the US dollar be maintained within a margin of ±15% around the central rate. The BOG does not publish information on its interventions. The Russia–Ukraine war, rapid monetary policy tightening in the US culminating in a broadly stronger US dollar as well as Ghana's lack of access to the international capital market had significant effect on the Ghana Cedi in 2022. From February 2022, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to other managed from craw-like, effective February 1, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BOG publishes daily reference foreign exchange rates against the cedi. The US dollar–cedi reference midrate is the weighted average of all the daily spot foreign exchange market transactions of at least US$10,000 reported by all banks until 2:30 p.m. to the BOG excluding, transactions where the BOG was a counterparty. All bank-bank and bigger size (above US$10,000) bank–customer deals concluded and reported are included. The other currencies' reference rate to the cedi is based on the current cross-rates in the international foreign exchange market from Reuters. Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients; however, for funds sourced from the BOG, a 25 basis point cap on banks' subsequent trades with customers is expected. Offshore foreign exchange deals – buying and selling of foreign currency offshore – by resident and nonresident companies, including exporters, are strictly prohibited (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/03).
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus may operate and must be licensed by the BOG. As of December 31, 2022, there were 405 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. They do not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the BOG. However, foreign exchange bureaus may deposit and withdraw foreign exchange from their foreign exchange account (FEA) with their commercial banks. They may make spot transactions but may not hold accounts abroad or accept deposits in cedis or foreign exchange from any person or corporate body with the intent of obtaining or supplying foreign exchange or the cedi equivalent either wholly or in part at a future date, and their operations are limited to purchases and sales of banknotes. ADs may quote spot interbank exchange rates for trades settled within two business days or as agreed by counterparties. Foreign exchange bureaus quote rates for the same-day settlement. Foreign exchange bureaus may not sell or buy more than US$10,000 or its equivalent a transaction (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/01).

Allocation	No.	The BOG has since July 2015 ceased to provide dedicated support to local banks to meet LC requirements for crude oil imports. Foreign exchange for oil imports since March 2022 is provided through special foreign exchange forward auction held for bulk oil distribution companies (BDCs).
Auction	Yes.	The regular (Bespoke) foreign exchange forward auction at various tenors (7days to 75days) was implemented in October 2019 but has been on hold effective October 18, 2022, when the last auction at various tenors was held. The regular (Bespoke) foreign exchange forward auction was a multiple price auction aimed at improving price discovery, deepening Ghana's foreign exchange market, and reducing uncertainty about future availability of foreign exchange to meet the needs of banks' clients. The objective was to reduce the front-loading of foreign exchange demand purchases by economic agents and help ease pressure on the spot market. All authorized foreign exchange dealer banks were eligible to participate in the foreign exchange auction. It was a bi-weekly auction. The Auction Process. Scenario Analyses on various spot rates to be used in determining successful bids were compiled for auction Committee's consideration and decision. The Auction Committee met between 12:00 p.m. and 1:00 p.m. to propose successful bid range for Management's consideration and approval. The results of the auction were published on the Bank's website, print media and Reuters' platform indicating the following: (1) range of bids tendered with their respective tenors; (2) amount tendered; (3) amount of invalid bids tendered; (4) successful bid rates; (5) total amount accepted; (6) auction target amount; and (7) bid-cover ratio. Following the auction, a report was prepared that included name of successful banks, rates accepted with respect to each tenor, and amounts accepted with respect to each tenor. The successful banks were contacted using Reuters dealing system. Effective March 30, 2022, foreign exchange for oil imports is provided through special foreign exchange forward auctions held for BDCs. The BOG will publish the target amount four days preceding the pricing window for the downstream sector on the BOG website to enable market participants plan adequately. The announcement must list the date and time, auction volume target, settlement and other relevant information. Participation in the auction is restricted to only authorized BDCs licensed by the National Petroleum Authority (NPA) through their authorized Licensed Foreign Exchange Dealing Banks. The auctions must be limited to the purchase of the United States Dollar (USD) against equivalent value in the national currency – Ghana Cedi (GHS) on a forward basis at 30-day tenor. The auction will be held twice a month. The multiple price auctions would be fixed volume format; the auction cut-off rate would clear the target volume offered in the said auction. The general principle followed would be that the amount accepted at the auction be kept close to the announced volume, probable variance of not more than ±10% of auction target. BOG dealers must call foreign exchange dealers of the successful banks via the REFINITV Dealing System to confirm and conclude trades for accepted bids to facilitate settlement.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	A formal interbank foreign exchange market has been developing since 2006. Banks may trade among themselves at freely determined rates, and the market operates over the counter. As of December 31, 2022, there were 23 major banks participating in the market. There is a limit of 25 pips between the bid-ask exchange rate. ADs must show two-way quotes with a maximum spread of 25 basis points. Since January 2006, the BOG buys foreign exchange from the interbank market at the published market reference rate. Effective July 1, 2023, the BOG sells foreign exchange to the commercial banks at the rate quoted by the banks. Previously, the BOG occasionally sold foreign exchange to banks at their quoted rate depending on market dynamics.

bullion)
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may purchase, sell, and hold gold in all forms. The Precious Mineral Marketing Company (PMMC), by law, is mandated to license buying agents whose duty is to buy gold on behalf of PMMC. The PMMC was set up to buy all the gold produced by the small-scale mining sector. Owing to liquidity challenges on the part of PMMC, the licensed buying agents were then permitted to buy on behalf of third parties other than PMMC. The licensed buying agents are required to file monthly returns with PMMC on their trading activities declaring among others information such as who they buy gold from and who they sell gold to.
On external trade	No.	Gold bullion exports must be reported to the BOG.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The exportation of Ghanaian banknotes is permitted up to GH ₵10,000 (previously GHC500); larger amounts may not be exported. Residents and nonresidents travelling abroad are permitted to carry up to GHC10,000 in cash or bank drafts without declaration.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling abroad are permitted to carry up to the equivalent of US$10,000 in cash, traveler's checks, or bank drafts for direct purchases. Nonresident travelers may reexport foreign currency in excess of US$10,000, provided the amount was declared on entry. ADs may freely export foreign currency but must provide documentation. Any person arriving in or departing from Ghana is permitted to carry up to US$10,000.00 or its equivalent in any monetary instruments without declaration. Any amount in excess of US$10,000.00 must be declared indicating the source and purpose for carrying such an amount.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may reimport up to GHC10,000 (previously GHC500) they initially exported. Residents and nonresidents travelling abroad are permitted to carry up to GHS10,000 in cash or bank drafts without declaration. Banks and other financial institutions are not allowed to import banknotes in domestic currency. This is within the purview of the CB.
Foreign currency	No.	Commercial banks are allowed to import foreign currency with notice to the BOG indicating the amount and currencies, for monitoring purposes only. Any person arriving in or departing from Ghana is permitted to carry up to US$10,000.00 or its equivalent in any monetary instruments without declaration. Any amount in excess of US$10,000.00 must be declared indicating the source and purpose for carrying such an amount.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may open FEAs and FCAs. Balances in these accounts are held in foreign currency. FEAs may be opened by Ghana residents and nonresidents with any AD bank in Ghana. FEAs can be credited with foreign exchange generated from activities in Ghana such as proceeds from exports of goods and services and any other foreign exchange earnings not subject to surrender requirements.

		Balances on these accounts cannot be freely transferred without the necessary supporting documentation to back the underlying transaction. Holders of the account can transfer up to US$10,000.00 an annum from these accounts to meet payment obligations abroad without documentation. The thresholds for transfers abroad by importers without initially submitting documentation to their bankers are US$50,000.00. FCAs may be opened by residents, nonresidents, and non-Ghanaians with any AD bank in Ghana. These accounts can be credited only with unrequited transfers such as transfers from abroad for investment or embassy transfers. Balances are freely transferrable in Ghana and abroad in convertible currencies. These accounts may be debited for payment, for transfers to other foreign accounts, and for purchases of external currencies. These accounts are free from any restrictions, besides being fed only with unrequited transfers. Documentation for transfers from FCAs is the regular form used by the banks, which also indicates the purpose of the transfer. Transfers from FEAs and FCAs to cedi accounts are permitted. Except for transfers from FEA to FCA which are prohibited, all other transfers between accounts are permitted. Checks and checkbooks may be issued by banks to holders of FEAs and FCAs (BOG Press Release of August 8, 2014). External transfers from FEAs and electronic card payments by importers up to US$50,000 are permitted without initial documentation. Where documentation in respect of a transfer remains outstanding, any subsequent import transaction by the importer, irrespective of value, can only be made on prior provision of documentation required for the current import transaction. Importers were allowed to continue to use the margin account (managed by banks on their behalf) to build up foreign exchange to be used exclusively for the purpose for which the account was opened (BG/GOV/SEC/2014/09). Importers effect transfers for payments only from their FEA accounts and not the FCAs.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	FEAs and FCAs could be held abroad. FEAs are subject to BOG approval, while FCA may be opened without the BOG approval.
Approval required	Yes.	BOG approval is required for FEAs.

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.	A retail central bank digital currency (CBDC) has been piloted by the Bank but yet to be launched. The proposed CBDC (e-Cedi) is token-based CBDC on a two-tier architecture model, where the CB is the only issuer of eCedi, owner and operator of the core eCedi infrastructure. The eCedi is a direct claim on the BOG. However, commercial banks are in charge of distribution, which affords them the opportunity to offer value-added services. Other nonbank financial institutions provide services, such as custody, mobile applications, and user-friendly presentation of information on customer transactions.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the EU with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union, as laid down in Article 3 of the Treaty on European Union." These include "balanced economic growth," "a highly competitive social market economy, aiming at full employment and social progress, and a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Credit institutions are authorized to carry out activities in the spot exchange markets, and they are the major participants in this market, either on their own account or on behalf of their customers. As of June 30, 2023, there were 14 credit institutions, 19 branches of banks incorporated in other EU countries under the "single license" regime (single EU "passport" of Law 4261/2014, Directive 2013/36/EU), and 2 branches of banks incorporated in third countries. In addition to credit institutions, foreign exchange bureaus are legal entities also authorized to carry out OTC spot activities with any natural person, keeping up with the general and specific money-laundering legal and regulatory framework. They are supervised by the BOG. The requirements for the establishment and operation of exchange bureaus as sociétés anonymes (public limited companies) other than credit institutions are stipulated in Law No. 2515/1997, BOG Governor's Act No. 2541/27 of February 2004, as amended by BOG Governor's Act No. 2641/20 of April 2011. Pursuant to Article 15 of Law No. 2515/1997, as amended, the BOG is responsible for authorizing the establishment, operation, and supervision of exchange bureaus. As of December 31, 2022, there were 9 foreign exchange bureaus authorized to engage in foreign exchange transactions. They may transact directly with credit institutions, and engage in: (1) Purchase of banknotes, travelers' checks, personal checks, and bank checks in foreign currency, including those

Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to Article 104 (prudent person principle) of Law No. 4364/2016 (Transposition of Directive No. 2009/138/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of insurance and reinsurance (Solvency II) into Greek legislation), the following apply: Insurance and reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the prudent person principle, as specified in Paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 of this article. With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the investor can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs in accordance with Article 33 Paragraph 1 (a). All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries, taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity that manages their asset portfolio, must ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries. Without prejudice to Paragraph 2, with respect to assets held with respect to life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policyholders, the second, third, and fourth subparagraphs of this paragraph apply. Where the benefits provided by a contract are directly linked to the value of units in a UCITS as defined in l. 4099/2012 (Government Gazette A 250) or in Directive No. 2009/65/EC, or to the value of assets contained in an internal fund held by the insurance companies, usually divided into units, the technical provisions with respect to those benefits must be represented as closely as possible by those units or, if units are not established, by those assets. Where the benefits provided by a contract are directly linked to a share index or some other reference value other than those referred to in the second subparagraph, the technical provisions with respect to those benefits must be represented as closely as possible either by the units deemed to represent the reference value or, if units are not established, by assets of appropriate security and marketability that correspond as closely as possible with those on which the particular reference value is based. Where the benefits referred to in the second and third subparagraphs include a guarantee of investment performance or some other guaranteed benefit, the assets held to cover the corresponding additional technical provisions are subject to Paragraph 4. Without prejudice to Paragraph 2, with respect to assets other than those covered by Paragraph 3, the second to fifth subparagraphs of this paragraph apply. The use of derivative instruments is possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets that are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels. Assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, must not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	According to Article 105 (freedom of investment) of Law No. 4364/2016, insurance and reinsurance companies must invest in accordance with this law without any other restriction, and their investment decisions must not be subject to the prior approval or systematic notification the Supervisory Authority.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Special controls apply to second-pillar OPFs in accordance with Law No. 3586/2007 in the form of portfolio diversification limits. These funds are allowed to invest in shares, bonds, and corporate bonds listed on regulated markets and issued in Greece or in another member of the EU or the EEA; shares in mutual funds and UCITS that fall under Directive No. 2009/65/EC, as amended, and operate in any EU or EEA member country; and government securities, bank deposits, and real estate. OPFs, as long-term institutional investors, may invest in the above-mentioned financial instruments within prudential limits, according to Law No. 3586/2007 and the associated ministerial decrees.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange arrangement is floating. In accordance with the Monetary Law and the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, Guatemala has a flexible exchange rate arrangement under which the rate is determined in the foreign exchange market by supply and demand. However, the Bank of Guatemala (Banco de Guatemala—BOG) may intervene in the foreign exchange market to limit volatility in the nominal exchange rate, without affecting its trend. The BOG intervenes through foreign exchange auctions based on a transparent rule, which limits daily volatility. The fluctuation band (added to or subtracted from the moving average exchange rate from the past five days) used to determine whether the BOG can participate in the foreign exchange market is 0.90%. The maximum daily buying and selling amount at auction is US$20 million, and up to five auctions can be held. The BOG may also intervene when the nominal exchange rate is unusually volatile, but this instrument has only been used twice: the first time during the world economic and financial crisis of 2008–2009 and the second during the third week of March 2020, when the nominal exchange rate overreacted in response to the high levels of uncertainty associated with the global spread of COVID-19 and concerns regarding the latter's potential impact on health and the economy. As of June 30, 2023, the BOG, through the activation of the exchange rate rule, purchased US$70.00 million and made sales of US$160.8 million. In this connection, net sales of the BOG on the IFEM on June 30, 2023, amounted to US$90.8 million, equivalent to 0.24% of the total traded on the market during that period. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BOG calculates and publishes the reference exchange rate, which is equal to the weighted average of the exchange rates corresponding to all the foreign exchange buying and selling operations engaged in by the institutions in the IFEM. The reference exchange rate is applicable to, inter alia, the settlement of tax and other obligations entailing payments to or from the government and its entities and the resolution of administrative and/or legal disputes.

Central Bank Board	Yes.	The target setting body is the Monetary Board (Junta Monetaria). Since 2005, the implementation of monetary, exchange rate, and credit policies in Guatemala has been based on the explicit inflation-targeting framework, which consists, in general terms, of a monetary policy strategy based on a commitment by the monetary authority and the BOG to set an explicit target for inflation, taking into account one or more time frames to reach the said target. Against this background, as a result of the inflation-targeting framework consolidation process, the Monetary Board (Junta Monetaria) set a medium-term inflation target, as of 2013, of 4.0% ±1 percentage point, with the aim of achieving the inflation convergence process to reach the said target by anchoring the inflationary expectations of economic agents. The decisions taken by the Monetary Board are adopted by a majority vote of those members present. In practice, the majority of Monetary Board decisions are taken by consensus (Organic Law of the BOG, Article 21).

Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The BOG's mission is to promote general price stability, measured with year-on-year changes in the CPI at the end of each year. The main monetary policy tool is the lead rate, which is determined through the comprehensive analysis of the balance of medium-term inflation risks. According to the 2009–2010 National Survey of Household Income and Expenditure, the CPI is defined as the measurement of the weighted average of prices of a basket of consumer goods and services corresponding to the largest items of final consumption expenditure. The base month for this index is December 2010.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The target horizon is medium term and has been applied since 2013.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The monetary policy rate used by the BOG is the lead rate, corresponding to the reference rate for overnight operations, that the BOG uses to indicate its monetary policy stance. As of June 30, 2023, the monetary policy rate stood at 5.00%, maintaining the restrictive monetary policy stance adopted by the Monetary Board in 2022 as a result of inflationary pressures from abroad. In this connection, it decided to raise the level of the leading monetary policy interest rate by 50 basis points in January and 25 basis points in February, March, and April. During the first half of 2023, according to the established schedule, the Monetary Board met in January, February, March, April, May, and June to decide the monetary policy interest rate.

Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	In the days following the meeting to decide on the monetary policy interest rate (held nine times a year), the BOG holds briefings with representatives from the financial sector, columnists, journalists, think tanks, and universities. Information disclosed includes the projection for inflation. This information is published on the BOG website.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	In accordance with Article 1 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate and commissions for transactions with their customers.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	In accordance with Article 1 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law (Libre Negociación de Divisas), foreign exchange availability, holding, contracting, remittance, transfer, purchase and sale, and collection and payment are unrestricted. Holding and managing deposits and accounts and financial intermediation operations in foreign currency are unrestricted both in domestic banks and in banks abroad. The issuance of credit instruments or securities denominated in foreign currency requires authorization by the Monetary Board. Article 2 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law stipulates that the IFEM comprises the BOG, banks, private financial companies, stock exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus. Currently, there are 17 banking institutions, 11 private financial companies, and 3 foreign exchange bureaus. Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law defines foreign exchange bureaus as nonbank institutions authorized by the Monetary Board to operate in the IFEM. In accordance with the Annex to Resolution No. JM-131-2001, foreign exchange bureaus may buy foreign currency in the form of banknotes, traveler's checks, bank drafts, electronic fund transfers, postal orders, and in other forms of payment denominated in foreign currency as well as in the form of documents drawn against their own accounts; such transactions are executed at prices freely agreed by the individuals and legal entities concerned.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	Pursuant to Article 54 of the Organic Law of the BOG, the Executive Branch, autonomous and decentralized institutions and, in general, government entities and dependencies, unless otherwise specified by law, must conduct their financial transactions in domestic or foreign Auction	Yes.	The BOG can intervene on the foreign exchange market if the reference exchange rate reaches or exceeds the fluctuation band of, effective January 1, 2022, ±0.90% (previously ±0.85%) around the moving average of the reference exchange rates from the past five business days (Resolution No. JM-140-2022). In such cases, the BOG initiates an auction to buy or sell up to US$20 million in foreign currency. No more than five auctions a day are allowed. The BOG may also intervene in the foreign exchange market by buying or selling foreign currency whenever the nominal exchange rate shows unusual volatility. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions. The IFEM is made up of the BOG, other banks, private finance companies, securities exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus referred to in Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, as well as any other institutions designated by the Monetary Board. Noncompliance by any of the parties is deemed a serious sanctionable violation by the National Securities Exchange of Guatemala (Bolsa de Valores Nacional de Guatemala, S.A.). The sanction consists in a suspension for eleven to twenty trading days, plus a fine equivalent to 150 “fine units” for each trading day of suspension. The results of public auctions are disclosed to the public by publication on the website of the BOG and through print mass media.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The IFEM comprises the BOG, banks, private financial companies, stock exchanges, and foreign exchange bureaus (mentioned in Article 3 of the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law), and other institutions designated by the Monetary Board. Currently, there are 32 such institutions. As of December 31, 2022, 17 banks were participating in the interbank market. For statistical control purposes, they are required to report all foreign exchange operations to the BOG daily, in a manner established by the Monetary Board. The Superintendency of Banks supervises and inspects the institutions with regard to their foreign exchange operations, and they must comply with all pertinent Monetary Board rules. No limits are set on the spreads between buying and selling prices. The BOG is not directly involved in the exchange rates quoted between market participants. Authorization to operate on this market is granted by the Monetary Board.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The National Securities Exchange of Guatemala is responsible for operating and administering the forward exchange market, which is very small and conducts neither routine nor significant operations. The BOG does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market. Pursuant to the Free Foreign Exchange Convertibility Law, financial intermediation operations in foreign currency have been unrestricted since January 17, 2001.

Association Agreement with the EU (Central America–EU)—in effect for Guatemala from December 1, 2013, only with respect to its trade pillar; the Guatemalan Congress has approved all three pillars. As of June 2023, the EU and each of its parliaments have still to approve the other two pillars (which relate to political dialog and development cooperation) and a Central America–Mexico Convergence Treaty, which went into effect as of September 1, 2013. The Association Agreement between Central America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland entered into force as of January 1, 2021. A trade agreement is currently being negotiated with Canada. The trade agreement between the Central American countries and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) was approved by Guatemala and the European countries; however, the Congresses of Costa Rica and El Salvador still need to approve it. The trade agreement with Israel was signed in September 2022 and is pending approval by the Guatemalan Congress. Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In this regard, and in accordance with the provisions of Annex A of the General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration, the common regime for the five countries' trade in unroasted coffee is subject to import tariffs. Refined and unrefined sugarcane, flavorings and dyes, and other items are subject to import controls. Under the bilateral arrangements concerning Guatemala, trade in roasted coffee between Guatemala and Costa Rica is subject to import duties. Guatemala's tariff structure exempts certain manufactured products. The tariff on imports of most footwear and textile products is 15%, and rates on tires range from 5% to 15%. In addition, safeguard provisions apply to certain agricultural products, which are subject to tariff rate quotas under WTO rules that allow for tariffs above the maximum rate for imports in excess of quota. Yellow corn is subject to a quota of 200,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 15% in excess of quota. Rice is subject to a quota of 19,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 23.7% in excess of quota. White corn is subject to a quota of 200,000 metric tons a year, with a tariff of 0% for imports within quota and 15% in excess of quota. These quotas are adjusted annually after discussions between the private sector and the government. Within the framework of commitments under the WTO, Guatemala has a consolidated ad valorem tariff ceiling of 40% for agricultural products and 45% for other products (50% for the categories indicated in Chapters 50–64 of the Central American Tariff System); both ceilings are subject to the exceptions mentioned in List No. LXXXVIII. There are also separate bilateral trade agreements with Colombia, the DR, Panama, and Taiwan Province of China. Under the CAFTA, among Central American countries, the DR, and the United States (CAFTA-DR), which took effect in 2006, import duties are imposed on 6,307 items in 10 categories, among which the following relate to goods traded between Guatemala and the United States: (1) Category B contains products such as chicken breasts, fish, and vegetables that are being phased in over a five-year period and that are not subject to duty. (2) Category C contains 788 items for which duty will be eliminated in 10 equal annual phases, starting January 1 of year 1 of the treaty. (3) Category D contains products such as dairy products, green and decaffeinated coffee, and alcoholic beverages that will be phased in over 15 years, for which the duties are 6%, 9%, and 24%, respectively. (4) Category F contains products such as milk and yogurt, for which duties will remain the same for the first 10 years of the treaty; they will then be reduced in 10 equal annual phases and be duty-free in year 20 of the treaty. (5) Category N contains products such as rum, precooked sausages, and wheat flour, for which duties will be reduced gradually until they are eliminated in 12 equal annual phases, starting on the date CAFTA-DR went into effect; duties applicable to rum, precooked sausages, and wheat flour are 20.0%, 6%, and 0%, respectively. (6) Category O contains black beans, for which duty will remain at its initial rate throughout the first six years of the treaty; on January 1 of year 7, the duty will be reduced by 8% of the base rate every year thereafter through year 11 of the treaty; on January 1 of year 12, the duty will be reduced further by 15% of the base rate and by an additional 15% of the base rate through year 14 of the treaty, and the goods will be duty-free, on January 1 of year 15. (7) In addition, pursuant to the trade agreements, the following quotas are in force: vegetable oil (palm, sunflower, and soybean oil) 1,050 metric tons, dog and cat food 1,368 metric tons, chicken wings 12 metric tons, rice 96,100 metric tons, tuna 500 metric tons, beef 2,383 metric tons, pork 6,265 metric tons, preserved pig meat 1,035 units, white onions 351 metric tons, chicken leg quarters 9,970 metric tons, black beans 1,006.5, ice cream 261 metric tons, cured hams and bacon 1,035 units, condensed milk 625 metric tons, long-life milk 200,000 liters, powdered milk 1,744.5 metric tons, yellow corn 173,000 metric tons, white corn 24,400 metric tons, Manjar caramel spread 46 metric tons, butter 278 metric tons, cream 115 metric tons, other prepared or canned tomatoes 40 metric tons, potatoes 216 metric tons, cheeses 2,330.3 metric tons, and tomato sauce 143.8 metric tons.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2022 Article IV Consultation and Request for Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility with Guinea states that, as of December 8, 2022, the foreign exchange system gives rise to an MCP because the reference rate can potentially deviate by more than 2% from the commercial banks' purchase and sales rates on a given day. (Country Report No. 23/43)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Guinea is the Guinean franc. Silver commemorative coins are also legal tender.
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary
Dual
Multiple	Yes.	The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple, because the official exchange rate may differ from the market rate by more than 2%. Guinea maintains an MCP as the value of the official rate lags the weighted average commercial bank rate on which it is based by one day. As part of the foreign exchange reforms, the Banque Centrale de la République de Guinée (BCRG) developed and implemented Instruction No. 105, establishing the procedures for monitoring the gross foreign exchange position of commercial banks by the BCRG. This has led to increasing liquidity on the Guinean foreign exchange market and drastically reducing speculative activity of commercial banks. As a result, the banks' purchase and sale prices moved closer to the reference price calculated and published by the BCRG and this gap does not exceed 2%. The reference price in the current context does not deviate by more than 2% from the purchase and sale prices of commercial banks, and neither does this reference price deviate by more than 2% from those in the parallel market. Guinea nevertheless continues to calculate the benchmark rate on the basis of the previous day's rate of commercial banks' average weighted rate. Guinea aims to eliminate this practice

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. Guinea announced its participation in the exchange rate mechanisms (ERM and ERM II) of the WAMZ, which formally limits the fluctuation of the franc to ±15% around a central rate vis-à-vis the US dollar, but this has yet to be implemented. The BCRG may organize an auction for the sale of US dollars for an amount not exceeding 8 million if the reference price of the day calculated and published by the BCRG is more than 0.25% higher than the moving average of the last 5 days. The BCRG's intervention policy is based on a budget of foreign exchange sales. Banks are allowed to negotiate freely foreign exchange sales and purchases with their clients. Since September 2022, the exchange rate stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like arrangement, effective September 19, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official or reference exchange rate since July 2012 is a weighted average of the transactions of the banking system carried out the day before. It is equal to a quotient with the numerator being the sum of the products of the purchase price multiplied by the total volume bought and the sale price by the total volume sold by all the commercial banks and the denominator being the sum of the cumulative volumes bought and sold. These rates are determined on the basis of supply and demand. Banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange with their customers at freely negotiated rates. The rates of other currencies are calculated on the basis of their previous day's rate vis-à-vis the SDR, as published by the IMF. The official rate is used by the government in its transactions.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are 19 active commercial banks licensed to deal in foreign exchange and 25 foreign exchange bureaus in operation. The BCRG is the only institution authorized to grant licenses. Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCRG; their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. Exchange bureaus are prohibited from engaging in the following operations: (1) taking deposits on account for their clients; (2) forward buying and selling of foreign currency banknotes or traveler's checks in exchange for national currency; (3) forward buying and selling of foreign currency banknotes and checks in exchange for other foreign currencies; (4) making money transfers of any amount, either abroad or domestically; (5) importing or exporting banknotes; and (6) extending loans to clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may not maintain accounts abroad. The BCRG introduced Instruction No. 068/DGCC/DCH/16, which limits transactions conducted through licensed exchange bureaus to retail transactions up to a ceiling of US$100,000 a day. The minimum capital requirement for foreign exchange bureaus is, effective March 3, 2023, GF 50 million (previously it was GF 100 million).
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The BCRG transacts with commercial banks only through auctions, in keeping with the rules in Instruction No. 103. The BCRG may organize an auction for the sale of US dollars for an amount not exceeding 8 million if the reference price of the day calculated and published by the BCRG is more than 0.25% higher than the moving average of the last 5 days. Participants are free to use the foreign currency obtained in the rules-based auctions to finance international transactions in accordance with the regulations in force. Banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange with their customers at freely negotiated rates. On the business day preceding the day on which an operation is scheduled, the BCRG communicates the details of the given operation to all eligible participants in two-sided foreign exchange auctions by means of a public announcement, through the press, or by any other means (letter and e-mail). The BCRG does not set a maximum allocation for the participants in the auctions, in line with the provisions of Instruction No. 103 on the matter. The minimum volume of an offer to purchase or sell foreign exchange is US$50,000. The BCRG reserves the right to cancel an auction session or to reject unrealistic offers. Immediately after an auction session, the participating banks must be notified of the results pertaining to their respective transactions. The aggregated results of an auction session must be published at the same time on the BCRG website. A bank that does not honor its commitments arising from the two-sided foreign exchange auction market must be subject to sanctions provided for in the regulations, in addition to a suspension between one and four auction sessions. In certain exceptional cases, the BCRG may announce in advance that an auction will be a one-sided auction at which the BCRG will be selling US dollars. In these circumstances, no single participant may acquire more than 20% of the amount being sold by the BCRG.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	19 active commercial banks are authorized by the BCRG to exchange foreign currency among themselves, as of end June 2023. Banks can trade with each other through the two-way auction system operated by the BCRG. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants. The licensing commission is statutorily empowered to grant licenses to credit institutions.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	A regional framework to fight money laundering (AML) and the financing of terrorism (CFT) exists at the regional level through two WAEMU Directives from 2002 (AML) and 2007 (AFT) as amended. This comprehensive framework facilitates the implementation of UNSC resolutions based on a list of persons and entities prepared by the Committee. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; and (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the anchor currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are cross-rates derived from the rate for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France. Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended and France has withdrawn from the governance bodies of the CB.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. However, they can charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. As of December 31, 2022, there were 13 authorized banknote exchanges. Exchange houses are authorized to conduct operations with the BCEAO in any currency except the euro. Authorized exchange houses are not authorized to make transfers or payments in foreign currency to other countries or to hold accounts abroad. Authorized intermediaries may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients, except for the euro, which must be traded against the CFA franc at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro and may charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO supplies, at the official rate, the foreign currency that each authorized intermediary needs to make payments abroad, that is, in the import coverage framework. The CB only purchases foreign exchange on request from the commercial banks, but does not sell foreign exchange to them for purposes other than import coverage. The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 CFA francs per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, or on payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2022, six banks were licensed for the domestic currency interbank market. Banks are not authorized to operate in foreign currency in the interbank market in the WAEMU.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, and options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks must simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions or capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone) in the WAMA framework. Payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMU members may be made under the clearing arrangement.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operation on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement in the context of the WAMA among the WAEMU countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Mauritania, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone). Payments for current transactions between the member countries may be effected under the clearing arrangement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAEMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Guinea-Bissau for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Guinea-Bissau are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through authorized intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA Franc XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency. BCEAO redemption of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance has been suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA Franc XOF banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.
Foreign currency	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import means of payment denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Residents may open foreign exchange accounts with MOF authorization, after BCEAO consent.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the Euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Foreign exchange budget	Yes.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of payment specified in the contract.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but not earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 5 million must be effected through an authorized bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	An inspection is required to verify the quantity, quality, and price of imported merchandise.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Exchange authorization, invoices, and export-import cards are required.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports, regardless of whether they involve the use of official or free-market foreign exchange, require an import license issued by the Ministry of Commerce and Tourism, primarily for statistical purposes. Licenses are issued automatically after verification of the invoiced prices of taxable goods.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Quantitative restrictions may be applied to products for public health and security reasons.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The WAEMU CET consists of four tariff brackets: 0%, 5%, 10%, and 20%. Imports from countries outside the WAEMU area are also subject to a 1% statistical tax and a community solidarity levy of 0.8%. Moreover, a cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a degressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may at certain times be charged on some products. Neither tax had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from non-ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.

Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the bank of issue. Export revenue may be surrendered to intermediaries other than banks with which the transaction is domiciled if authorized by the BCEAO.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million or its equivalent, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	A customs declaration is required.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Exports require an export license. Only exporters registered with the Ministry of Commerce and Tourism may obtain these licenses, which are granted automatically in most cases and are for statistical purposes. No products are reserved for exportation by the public sector.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Cashew nut exports, except to ECOWAS countries, are subject to a special export tax of 6% and advance payment of the industrial contribution levy of 3%; an additional 2% charged on cashew exports is classified as a rural property tax. Other agricultural exports are subject to an agricultural fee of 2%.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	There is an individual processing fee of 1%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 500,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date of payment. On their return to Guinea-Bissau, resident travelers must file a customs declaration for all means of payment greater than CFAF 300,000 and surrender them to a registered bank or to the BCEAO no later than one week after their return.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except in the case of (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans granted to finance industrial and commercial operations; (2) payments for the purchase of options; and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries, however, are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through an authorized intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated and surrendered to an AD within one month, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) the issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate and foreign securities by nonresidents are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment by means of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires MOF approval of an exchange authorization and supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code of the CFA franc area member countries does not allow insurance companies to invest abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors must declare them to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. Residents may issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents are subject to authorization from RCPSFM. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code of the CFA franc area member countries does not allow insurance companies to invest abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors must declare them to the MOF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. Residents may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of money market instruments and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code of the CFA franc area member countries does not allow insurance companies to invest abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue money market instruments abroad, unless they constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code of the CFA franc area member countries does not allow insurance companies to invest abroad.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors must declare them to the MOF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAEMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAEMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents from nonresidents must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally approved by the BCEAO, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered as well as the payment due date.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to approval by the BCEAO acting on behalf of the MOF and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company whose shares are quoted on a stock exchange. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An equity holding is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company in question.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed, but they must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents to residents require the submission of supporting documentation from the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made through the BCEAO, the postal administration, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MOF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely, but must be declared for statistical purposes to the MOF when granted and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant AML and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants who have received resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents who become residents must be closed. However, these individuals may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. It remains to be confirmed that this regulation was incorporated into Guinea-Bissau's legislation.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Loans abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF when they are granted and when they are repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. A bank's current requirement is calculated in relation to its equity and takes account of its history of fund movements abroad. The amount is used to meet the bank's short-term cash needs.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization and BCEAO approval are required.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require RCPSFM authorization, after MOF approval.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (1) demand deposits; (2) short-term loans; (3) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; and (4) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, all advances granted to nonresidents are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident accounts, nonresident accounts, and foreign currency deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.

Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents require MOF authorization and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may require MOF authorization, depending on their volume. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires MOF authorization.
Open foreign exchange position limits	No.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	No.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	No.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to the CIMA Code, a minimum of 50% of resources collected by insurance companies in a CIMA member country must be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold with RCPSFM authorization in WAEMU member countries, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio	No.

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; and (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended and France has withdrawn from the governance bodies of the CB.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Guyana maintains certain exchange restrictions solely for the preservation of national and international security. Financial transactions are restricted, and accounts are frozen of individuals and organizations on the lists of individuals associated with terrorism pursuant to (1) UNSC Resolution No. 1333 and (2) organizations associated with terrorism identified by the 1267 Committee. In accordance with UNSC resolutions, restrictions are applied to financial transactions and assets of the Taliban, Al-Qaida, individuals associated with those organizations, and persons and groups associated with terrorism.
Other security restrictions	No.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the Guyanese dollar is determined in the foreign exchange market. The Bank of Guyana (BOG) periodically purchases foreign currency from foreign exchange dealers to maintain international reserves at acceptable levels. In accordance with bilateral agreements with the CARICOM CBs, the BOG quotes weekly rates for certain CARICOM currencies. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	In addition to transactions between ADs and their clients, a significant share of foreign exchange transactions takes place between the BOG and public entities with large export earnings. To reduce segmentation and facilitate price discovery, the authorities recently moved some official transactions to the foreign exchange market. Transactions between foreign exchange dealers and their customers represent a smaller share of the foreign exchange market and include conversion of remittances to people without bank accounts. All commercial banks have cambios; however, not all nonbank financial institutions are cambios. As of June 30, 2023, 13 nonbank financial institutions and 6 commercial banks were licensed to deal in foreign currency. The BOG grants licenses after consultation with the Minister of Finance. Nonbank foreign exchange dealers may sell specified CARICOM currencies to the CB; their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes and traveler's checks. These institutions may have accounts abroad. There is a cap on the bid-ask spread of G$1.50 for wires and G$3.00 for cash. This is applicable to all transactions conducted by both the bank and nonbank cambios with their customers.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BOG conducts its transactions on the basis of the foreign exchange rate obtained by periodically averaging quotes from the three largest dealers. In response to heightened pressure resulting from seasonal factors, the BOG on occasion intervenes in the foreign exchange market.

Allocation	Yes.	The BOG exercises discretion with regard to its purchases of foreign exchange from exports of sugar and gold by the Guyana Sugar Corporation (GuySuCo, the government-owned sugar company) and the Gold Board and uses a "hard currency budget" for official transactions.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks may trade with each other freely. There are six commercial banks, but the interbank market has not been very active. Direct BOG intervention in the market is rare. The BOG occasionally processes requests from commercial banks for the sale of foreign currency at the average market rate. Interbank trades are infrequent, and the volume is insignificant. The market does not operate on a commission basis nor does the cap on the bid-ask spread apply to interbank transactions. As of December 31, 2022, five commercial banks participated in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Interbank transactions take place over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	No.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Administration of control	No.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	As a consequence of ongoing negotiations, technical arrears are owed to the following bilateral creditors: Argentina, China, India, Italy, Kuwait, Libya, Serbia, Trinidad and Tobago, the United Arab Emirates, and Venezuela. Technical arrears are also owed to commercial creditors in the United States.
Private	Yes.	Arrears exist on certain dormant accounts holding domestic currency deposits equivalent in value to pending applications for foreign exchange.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents other than the monetary authorities, ADs, producers of gold, and authorized industrial users may not hold or acquire gold in any form, at home or abroad – except for numismatic purposes and jewelry – without special permission.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold in any form by, or on behalf of, the monetary authorities, ADs, producers of gold, and industrial users require permits endorsed by the Guyana Gold Board.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	No.	Travelers leaving Guyana must declare foreign currency in excess of the equivalent of US$10,000. This is only a declaration requirement, and there is no limit on the amount.
On imports	No.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	No.	Travelers entering Guyana must declare foreign currency in excess of the equivalent of US$10,000. This is only a declaration requirement, and there is no limit on the amount.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Exporters are allowed to maintain and operate foreign exchange accounts. These accounts are approved on merit but are generally granted to bona fide exporters who require imported inputs for production and/or have external loan obligations. These accounts may be credited with all or a portion of retained export proceeds and proceeds of foreign currency loans. They may be debited freely for payments at the discretion of the account holder.
Approval required	Yes.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	The Foreign Exchange (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act No. 8 of 1996 specifies that “Except with the permission of the Minister, no person resident in Guyana, other than an AD, shall, in Guyana operate a foreign currency account."

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	External accounts may be opened by commercial banks, without CB approval, for citizens of Guyana residing permanently abroad, citizens of other countries temporarily residing in Guyana, nonresidents attached to diplomatic missions or international organizations, branches of companies incorporated outside Guyana, and companies incorporated in Guyana but controlled by nonresidents abroad. These accounts may be maintained in US dollars, pounds sterling, Canadian dollars, or euros and may be credited with noncash instruments of convertible foreign currencies transferred through the banking system. These accounts may also be credited freely with all authorized payments by residents of Guyana to nonresidents; other credits require approval. They may be debited freely for payments for any purpose to residents of any country, transfers to other external accounts, withdrawals by the account holder in Guyana, and transfers to nonresident accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Domestic currency accounts can only be converted to foreign currency accounts with approval by the MOF through the CB. Applications for foreign currency accounts are determined on their merit but generally granted to: Bona fide exporters who require imported inputs for production, or with external loan obligations; certain service providers, including travel agents, hotels, shipping agents and airlines; large importers of essential goods and services.
Approval required	Yes.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The BOG prepares a statement of convertible currency receipts and payments to monitor projected flows.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Import transactions effected through the foreign exchange market are permitted without restriction. Most imports of consumer goods take place on this basis.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Documentation requirements are for all official imports – petroleum, machinery and equipment, goods, etc.
Domiciliation requirements	No.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	There are no licensing requirements for permissible imports, except for petroleum products and some 20 items affecting national security, public health and safety, and the environment.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of unprocessed meat, poultry, fruit, and processed fruit items from non-CARICOM sources are restricted and subject to import-licensing controls.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Guyana maintains a CET rate that ranges from 5% to 20%. A tariff rate of 40% applies only to agricultural products. A duty rate of 100% applies to imports of chicken from non-CARICOM sources, but those from CARICOM countries are exempt. The duty on evaporated milk is 20%. Guyana maintains the CARICOM CET rate that ranges from 5% to 20%. A tariff rate of 40% applies only to agricultural products. All duties are value-added. The Customs Act allows for the National Assembly to impose import or export duties on any goods. Additionally, the Government of Guyana levies a value-added tax at a rate of 14%, applied equally to imports and locally produced goods and services.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The reference rate is officially used by banks to convert US dollar amounts to gourdes on their books and in their financial statements and other reports. The CB does this to prevent banks from using different rates for the same date. As a result, financial and nonfinancial institutions have used this rate for their exchange transactions. The reference rate is published daily on the BRH website.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Although base money is an indicative target for monetary policy, the CB looks at exchange rate movements (given the high pass-through to inflation), liquidity conditions, and growth.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The Haitian foreign exchange market is divided into a formal and an informal sector. According to an estimate by the CB, the global volume of transactions is divided up as follows: 60% is traded in the formal sector and 40% in the informal sector. Thus, the average rate used in the banking system and the average rate in the informal market are weighted by their sector weights to calculate the reference rate. ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their customers.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The BRH operates a US dollar clearinghouse mainly for checks drawn on local banks. Commercial banks quote buying and selling rates for certain other currencies based on the buying and selling rates of the US dollar for those currencies in exchange markets abroad. The market is dominated by banks, followed by money changers. According to the monetary authorities, all banks and certain nonbank financial institutions may conduct foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus must obtain licenses, following a process coordinated by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry (MCI), CB, and the Ministry of Economy and Finance. Authorized foreign exchange bureaus may conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB. These bureaus may not hold accounts abroad and may not make foreign currency payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CB buys and sells foreign exchange. Interventions are made in an effort to contain exchange rate fluctuations, to supply the market and build up reserves.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.
Allocation	No.	The CB does not allocate foreign exchange to finance-specific transactions. However, the CB pays oil bills on behalf of the MOF.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks trade among themselves on a small scale; the interbank market is not well developed. The CB may intervene directly with banks. In case of sales or purchases of foreign currency, the CB does not intervene via market makers. The CB has issued licenses to eight commercial banks, all of which are active in the foreign exchange market. In case of sales of foreign currency, the CB proposes its own quotes, and there are limits on the bid-ask spreads. For procurement operations, however, the CB negotiates the quotes with banks.

On external trade	Yes.	The BRH has the exclusive right to purchase gold domestically and to export gold in the form of coins, mineral dust, or bars. Exports of gold require authorization from the MCI and the Ministry of Economy and Finance, as well as MCI endorsement, before customs clearance. However, commercial imports of articles containing small amounts of gold, such as gold watches, are freely permitted and do not require an import license or other authorization.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with export proceeds, transfers from abroad received by money transfer operators, or receipts from maritime agencies and nongovernmental organizations. However, for any deposit of or above 1,100,000 gourdes or the equivalent in foreign currency, a certificate of origin of funds is required.
Held domestically	Yes.	Foreign currency accounts must be held in US dollars. Clients may hold various types of foreign currency accounts (for example, checking, savings, time deposit). Clients may make deposits and withdrawals, including through wire transfers. There are no restrictions on the transfer of balances abroad.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Any type of account (for example, checking, savings, time deposit) may be held abroad. There are no restrictions on the transfer of balances to the home country.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	An account in local currency can be converted to foreign currency deposit.

Negative list	Yes.	Licenses are only required for import of firearms, pharmaceutical and chemical products, petroleum products, alcoholic products, arms, and meat products. These are issued by the MCI. The approval of the MCI is required for the imports of ethanol. Imported goods are subject to verification of compliance with standards before shipment to Haiti.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The four standard tariff rates are 0%, 5%, 10%, and 15%. Some goods have special tariff rates gasoline, 57.8%, and cement, rice, sugar, dried onions, dried mushrooms, dried truffles, and vegetables with a dry hull, 3%. There is a domestic turnover tax on the c.i.f. value plus import duties. There are two specific rates: (1) G 0.82 a kilogram for grated, powdered, or melted cheese and (2) G 0.71 a kilogram for dried garlic. Imports, except inputs for certain export industries, are subject to a 5% verification fee: whisky (12%), beer (12%), wine (12%), cars of 2200 CC and more (10%), cigarettes and tobacco (12%), red sugar (0.075 gourdes/lbs), refined sugar (0.20 gourde/lbs), malt drinks (2 gourdes/the box), and milk-based drinks (5%). Haiti is a member of CARICOM. Articles 11, 25, 26, 27, and 28 of the 2022–2023 General Budget point out specific tariff rate for some goods.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Fourth Reviews under the Stand-by Arrangement and the Arrangement under the Standby Credit Facility, Requests for Augmentation of Access, Extension and Rephasing of the Arrangements, and Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria with Honduras states that, as of August 30, 2021, Honduras maintained two MCPs. The MCPs relate to the use of the previous days' official exchange rates in certain foreign exchange transactions (which could differ by more than 2% from the official rate in force and the interbank rate on a given day), and the fact that there is no mechanism to prevent a spread of more than 2% between the official exchange rate and the exchange rates resulting from a CB foreign exchange auction. 		auction. As of April 13, 2023, the foreign exchange auction was reactivated as a foreign exchange allocation mechanism. The prices of the offers for the purchase and sale of foreign currency presented in the Mercado Interbancario de Divisas (MID) must be comprised in an exchange band of 1% above and below the center of the exchange band, which is the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID weighted at 80% and the average of the weighted average exchange rate of the MID (TCPP MID) resulting from the last seven MID events, weighted at 20%, meaning that purchase requests from currencies whose prices are above the ceiling or below the band floor will not be accepted. The base price will be calculated every five MID events taking into consideration: (1) the differential between the domestic and external inflation rate; the external inflation rate is defined as the weighted average estimated inflation rates of Honduras's key trading partners; and domestic inflation will be measured with the CPI. The inflation differential will be determined by comparing the year-on-year change in the CPI recorded during the past month with external inflation weighted to reflect the external trade structure, to be subject to periodic review; (2) the nominal effective exchange rate index, that is, changes in the exchange rate of the key trading partners against the US dollar; and (3) international reserve coverage, number of months of imports covered by the official reserve assets of the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH). The base price will be calculated every five trading events carried out by the BCH, taking into consideration the variables: Internal and external inflation differential, nominal effective exchange rate index and international reserve coverage. It will be calculated every five trading events carried out by the BCH. The BCH publishes the results of the foreign exchange trading carried out on the MID on a daily basis at its website. Since February 2022, the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange arrangement was reclassified from crawling peg to stabilized, effective February 4, 2022.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Effective April 13, 2023, the calculation of the TCR has been modified, so it corresponds to the weighted average exchange rate of the current day's currency auction. It will be effective for the following business day or for non-business days between the auction day and the subsequent business day after the auction. The purchase price of currencies will be the TCR of the day, while the selling price will be the TCR plus the corresponding exchange commission. Previously, effective March 7, 2022, the calculation of the TCR was modified, such that the result of the TCPP MID becomes the TCR of the following day. The way of calculating the base price was maintained. Prior to that, the BCH through Agreement No. 06/2021 established that the TCR corresponds to the weighted average by price amounts that result from the event of the day in the MID and the TCR of the day of the currencies withheld by the exchange agents for the payment of their own expenses and direct sale to the clients of the private sector. The TCR applies to foreign currency purchase and sale operations carried out by foreign exchange agents authorized by the BCH, as well as those carried out by public sector institutions. The purchase and sale commissions will be those stipulated by the BCH Board of Directors.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Effective August 1, 2022, authorized agents can determine foreign exchange commissions within the limits stipulated in Numeral 6.2 of Agreement No. 11/2022 of the BCH, which complements the Regulations for Trading in the Organized Foreign Currency Market: foreign exchange agents (1) will charge their private sector clients an exchange commission for the sale of foreign currency, which may not exceed 0.5% (previously 0.7%); (2) will charge an exchange fee of 0.3% for currencies sold in the MID; and (3) will not charge a commission for the purchase of foreign currency made from their private sector clients. Effective August 28, 2023, as stipulated in Section 4.2 of Agreement No. 10-2023 of the BCH, removed the 0.3% fee for currencies sold in the MID.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Any individual or legal entity that is not a foreign exchange dealer may hold foreign exchange assets but may sell them only to the BCH or ADs. The BCH and ADs must buy foreign exchange at the TCR. The only institutions authorized to negotiate currencies as foreign exchange agents authorized by the BCH are banks in the financial system (15), savings and loan associations (none), and exchange bureaus (1); this number of exchange agents remains accurate. Under the law and regulations, exchange bureaus may purchase the foreign exchange received by the private sector from any source, except what by law or resolution of the BCH Board of Directors must be traded in the domestic financial system. Exchange bureaus may sell foreign exchange for outward payments. To that end, they may manage deposit accounts abroad with first-class institutions. The BCH may establish maximum and minimum limits on their foreign exchange holdings. There is also one state bank. Under the Regulations, all banks can trade foreign currencies, including state-owned banks, as long as they meet the operational requirements to act as an exchange

Auction	Yes.	Effective April 13, 2023, through Agreement No. 05-2023, the BCH reactivated the auction of foreign currency as a mechanism for allocating foreign currency. Only the BCH and the institutions authorized by its Board of Directors to act as foreign exchange agents may negotiate foreign currency. The BCH uses an exchange band of 1% above and below the center of the exchange band, which will be made up of the average of seven previous days of the 80% weighted Base Price + Average of seven previous days of the Weighted Average Exchange Rate of the Auction Currencies weighted by 20%; meaning that purchase requests from currencies whose prices are above the ceiling or below the band floor will not be accepted. The TCR corresponds to the weighted average exchange rate of the current day's currency auction. It will be effective for the following business day or for non-business days between the auction day and the subsequent business day after the auction. Both national and foreign individuals and legal entities, as well as residents in the country, can participate in the foreign exchange auction through a currency exchange agent. They are required to present: (1) national identification document for national individuals, (2) National Tax Registry for legal entities, and (3) a valid resident card for foreign participants. Clients of currency exchange agents operating with mixed resources, that is, public and private funds, are ineligible to participate in the currency auction and must submit their request to the BCH. Currency exchange agents may submit one bid in the currency auction to cover their own expenses up to US$1.50 million daily. This bid should be supported by duly justified documentation and submitted within the specified timeframe in the operational circular issued by the Management of the BCH. Private sector individuals and legal entities can only participate in the currency auction through currency exchange agents and can submit their bids for currency demand to the BCH. For individuals, the limit is up to US$100,000 and a maximum of three bids, which should not exceed the indicated demand to the BCH. For legal entities, the limit is up to US$1.2 million daily and a maximum of three bids, which should not exceed the indicated maximum limit. Previously, through Agreements No. 06-2021 and No. 07-2021, the BCH suspended currency auctions for the sale of currencies to individuals and legal entities.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	No.	Effective April 13, 2023, through Agreement No. 05-2023, the BCH reactivated the auction of foreign currency as a mechanism for allocating foreign currency instead of the Foreign Exchange Market (MID). Prior to that, the MID did not operate according to a system of dealers; the banks participated directly using a price for the offers to buy and sell foreign currency comprised in an exchange band of 1% above and below the center of the exchange bank, which was made up of the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID plus the average of the absolute variation of the current TCR of the day with respect to that of the previous business day of the seven previous business days. The TCPP of the bids registered in the MID was part of the calculations to determine the TCR, and the maximum commission charged for the purchase was, 0.3% of the price offered by the banks in the MID (0.3% for the selling bank). Only the BCH authorized exchange agents.

The exchange market operated directly between individuals and legal entities and the exchange agents; there were no intermediary companies between the participants, and the market maker role was not entirely identified, although some banks, because of their trading volume in the market, became highly prominent.
The purchase price of foreign currency was established by the TCR in force for the day and the sale price for the TCR of the day plus an exchange commission of up to 0.7%.

Effective March 7, 2022, the calculation of the center of the exchange band of the MID was modified, such that it is the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID weighted at 80% and the average of the TCPP MID resulting from the last seven MID events, weighted at 20%; the exchange rate band continues to be 1.0% above or below the center of the exchange rate band. Previously, as of December 15, 2021, the center of the exchange band of the MID was the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID weighted at 50% and the average of the TCPP MID resulting from the last seven MID events, weighted at 50%.

Effective March 7, 2022, the calculation of the TCR was modified, so that the result of the TCPP MID becomes the TCR of the following day. The exchange commissions charged in the MID and the calculation of the base price are maintained.

Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	All payment obligations to be made in Honduras must be settled in lempiras, except payments that fall within the category of cross-border payments from or to Honduras because they relate to international transactions (Articles 3 and 4 of the Monetary Law). Remittances can be paid in US dollars, on behalf of the beneficiary in an authorized institution only by crediting a foreign currency deposit account (or in lempiras at the choice of those who receive the funds). If the remittances' original contract in the source country does not specify the currency in which the funds should be paid, they are paid out in the equivalent of the amount of the remittance sent multiplied by the TCR of the day the remittance is collected by the beneficiary; in cases where the contract stipulates the exchange rate, the remittance must be paid out in lempiras for the equivalent of the remittance sent multiplied by the TCR of the day the sender posted the remittance.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Article 8 of the Law on Entry of Foreign Exchange Derived from Exports states that exporters are required to repatriate all of the foreign exchange generated by their exports and must comply with the time periods set out in Article 5, which vary between 20 and 85 business days. Exports of goods originating in free trade zones or EPZs, as well as low-volume exports and exports by offshore processing enterprises, are exempt.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Pursuant to the provisions of Articles 1, 8, and 10 of the Law on the Entry of Foreign Exchange derived from Exports, individuals and legal entities that export goods must declare to the BCH, before exportation for each export operation, the quality, value, and destination of the goods to be exported, as well as the probable date of exportation and the currency in which payment will be received. Under Resolution No. 406-7/94, the BCH board may allow exporters to retain up to 30% of their foreign exchange proceeds for priority purchases abroad of inputs, machinery, and parts used in production of their exports and to pay authorized external debt obligations. Exporters have the obligation to sell 100% of the foreign currency from exports to foreign exchange agents, except for those who have been authorized by the BCH Board of Directors up to 30% as priority foreign currency. Effective April 13, 2023, the Board of Directors of the BCH determined that foreign currency exchange agents must transfer 100% of foreign exchange income to the BCH no later than the following business day after the purchase, as stipulated in Agreement No. 05/2023, which contains the Regulations for Foreign Exchange Trading. Furthermore, in the supplementary regulations to the mentioned rules in Section 3, in accordance with Article 3, Sections 3.19, 10,12, and 13 of the regulations, it establishes that the Foreign Exchange Auction trading events will be conducted exclusively for the sale of US dollars and will be held on days designated by the BCH. Private sector individuals or legal entities can participate in the Foreign Exchange Auction solely through currency exchange agents for a minimum amount of US$10,000 and multiples of US$10.00. They can submit bids for currency demand to the BCH as follows: individuals up to US$100,000 and up to three bids, which must not exceed the maximum limit indicated; legal entities up to US$1.2 million and up to three bids, which must not exceed the maximum limit indicated. Previously, pursuant to Agreement No. 03/2021, this requirement had been eliminated. As established in Decree No. 278-2013, Article 28, states that the BCH will not process requests to purchase foreign exchange currency for exporters after they incur in a recurrence of non-repatriation of foreign Exchange currency.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Under Article 5 of the Regulation of the Law on Foreign Exchange from Exports, deadlines ranging from 20 to 85 business days have been set for the surrender of foreign exchange, depending on the product.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	There are no controls on these payments, but all buyers of foreign exchange are required to fill out a form under the anti-money-laundering law for amounts exceeding US$10,000. In addition, enterprises remitting cash to or from Honduras must register and report to the National Banking and Insurance Commission (CNBS) the amounts transferred. Remittances in cash to or from Honduras are limited to US$2,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currency or in lempiras. To define the scope of the Special Anti-Money-Laundering Law, covered entities (institutions supervised by the CNBS) must generate the corresponding records and reports in the following instances: (1) cash transactions in foreign currency performed by their clients in the amount of US$4,000 or equivalent in foreign currency; (2) cash transactions in national currency by their clients in the amount of L 2,00,000; (3) non-cash transactions with their clients in the amount of L 2,00,000 or equivalent in foreign currency; and (4) remittance transactions of US$2,000 in foreign currency or national currency; multiple cash transactions in legal tender or foreign currency made on behalf of a single individual or legal entity during one calendar month must be considered as a single transaction. Moreover, the maximum amount receivable from non-clients during one calendar month is US$4,000.

They are required to present: (1) national identification document for national individuals, (2) National Tax Registry for legal entities, and (3) a valid resident card for foreign participants. Clients of currency exchange agents operating with mixed resources, that is, public and private funds, are ineligible to participate in the currency auction and must submit their request to the BCH. Currency exchange agents may submit one bid in the currency auction to cover their own expenses up to US$1.509 million daily. This bid should be supported by duly justified documentation and submitted within the specified timeframe in the operational circular issued by the Management of the BCH. Private sector individuals and legal entities can only participate in the currency auction through currency exchange agents and can submit their bids for currency demand to the BCH. Previously, nonresidents could not participate in the BCH's foreign exchange auctions and could only buy foreign exchange directly from ADs, having a residence card issued by the Ministry of Governance and Justice.

Repatriation requirements	No.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Through Agreement No. 05/2023, the BCH reactivated the auction of foreign currency as a mechanism for allocating foreign currency. Effective August 28, 2023, in accordance with the provisions of section 1.2 of Agreement No. 10/2023, exchange agents must transfer 100% of foreign exchange income to the BCH no later than the next business day of their purchase, at the time established in the operational circular issued by the BCH Management. Section 1.3 of the aforementioned agreement establishes that the amounts not transferred in accordance with Paragraph 1.2 must be sold to the BCH no later than the next business day of non-compliance with the TCR on the day of the purchase of foreign currency by the exchange agent and without the payment of the exchange commission. Previously, as of June 14, 2021, the requirement to deliver foreign currency to the BCH by foreign exchange agents had been eliminated (Agreement No. 7-2021). Before that, pursuant to Agreement No. 03/2021, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers, including from capital transactions, must transfer 20% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 80% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to US$1,000,000; and (3) sale in the MID.

		the next business day of their purchase, at the time established in the operational circular issued by the BCH Management. The trading events in the foreign exchange sector are carried out on the days indicated by the BCH, the amount of which will be constituted by 80% of the foreign exchange agents' foreign exchange income. The Management of the BCH, in consultation with the Presidency, may increase the amount of foreign currency to be auctioned as required by exchange conditions. Participants in the foreign exchange auction must submit bids for a minimum amount of US$10,000.00, exchange agents may submit 1 offer to meet the demand of private sector clients requesting amounts less than US$10,00.00 up to an amount of US$2,000,000.00. Likewise, they can submit an offer to cover the payment of their own expenses up to US$1,500,000.00 daily. Individuals may demand up to US$100,000.00 daily and up to 3 offers that must not exceed the maximum limit indicated and legal entities up to US$1,200,000.00. Previously, as of June 14, 2021, the surrender requirement of foreign currency to the BCH by exchange agents had been eliminated, so that exchange agents will be able to retain the foreign currency purchased from their private sector clients, which can be used for the following purposes: (1) own expenditures, (2) daily sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to US$1,500,000, and (3) sale in the MID, in the case of banks (subsequently, as of December 15, 2021, the exchange dealers were integrated to participate in the MID). The currencies not used in the previous concepts will form part of the currency holding, without exceeding the limit authorized by the Board of the BCH. When there are no trading events in the MID, banks may accumulate foreign exchange earnings in the amounts of currency holding, without being considered for the calculation thereof; currencies to be traded in the immediate aftermath of the MID. Before that, pursuant to Agreement No. 03/2021, Paragraph 1, Numerals 1.2 and 1.3, exchange agents that purchase foreign exchange from their private sector customers must transfer 20% of it to the BCH no later than the business day following their purchase, and that 80% of the foreign currency purchased and not transferred to the BCH by foreign exchange agents must be used for (1) payment of their own expenses; (2) sales to private sector clients for amounts less than or equal to US$1,000,000; and (3) sale in the MID.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The BCH board of directors determines the currencies (US dollars, yen, euros, Swiss francs, yuan, sterling, Canadian dollars) in which institutions in the domestic financial system may accept deposits from the public; the supranational institutions in which they may invest; and the minimum requirements for the first-class foreign financial instruments and institutions in which national institutions may invest their resources in foreign currency deposit accounts. The interest rate for permanent investment facilities is, as of August 28, 2023, the monetary policy rate minus 3.00 percentage points (previously 5.25 percentage points); the interest rate for permanent credit facilities is the monetary policy rate plus 1 percentage point (Resolution No. 337-8/2023).
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Article 46 of the Law on the Financial System stipulates that financial institutions may contract loans and obligations with institutions in financial systems abroad.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	The Regulation on management of foreign exchange deposit accounts stipulates that, to meet any additional reserve requirements that the BCH may establish, or to make investments with surplus resources from deposit accounts, depository institutions may open special accounts or make investments with first-tier foreign banks.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	BCH authorization is required for lending to individuals or legal entities domiciled abroad, except in the case of loans granted to Honduran citizens for the purchase of land, construction, and the purchase or improvement of housing in Honduras.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Prudential norms are applied by financial system institutions when lending in foreign currency. To that end, they classify borrowers in the following categories: generators and nongenerators of foreign exchange. Institutions authorized to grant foreign currency loans must have policies and procedures in place for evaluating the credit and liquidity risk of borrowers classified in the aforementioned categories.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	The Regulation on Trading in Government Securities authorized the BCH to issue foreign-currency-denominated securities (foreign-currency-denominated paper), which may be purchased by financial system institutions.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	For authorized financial institutions, the reserve requirement, which must be held in demand deposits in the BCH, for foreign currency and mandatory investment of all their foreign currency liabilities is 12%. Resources that financial system institutions obtain through international loans or in the form of loans or deposits from other institutions subject to the reserve requirement are exempt from this requirement. Financial system institutions may also issue foreign currency treasury bills, which are subject to the reserve requirement. Institutions in the financial system may not offset deficits in their reserve requirements, as established by the BCH board of directors. Likewise, no offsetting is allowed in case of noncompliance with the mandatory investment requirement. Both the domestic and foreign currency reserve requirement is composed entirely of demand deposits at the BCH and must be maintained at a minimum daily amount equivalent to 80%.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	The additional reserve requirement for liquid investments in first-class foreign financial institutions is set at 0%. Similarly, domestic depository institutions that are Bladex shareholders may maintain investments there up to 5% of their total foreign currency investments.
Interest rate controls	No.	The interest rates applied by financial system institutions in their transactions are determined on the basis of prevailing market conditions. However, the BCH may regulate them if necessary. Mandatory foreign currency investments must be deposited in the BCH; the balances on these investment accounts are remunerated at the annual equivalent of the fortnightly (catorcenal) average of the one-month LIBID. In accordance with the Law on Credit Cards, credit card interest rates are established and regulated by the BCH, if there is no guarantee of free competition in the sector, on the basis of a report issued by the Commission for the Defense and Promotion of Competition.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Investments abroad by depository institutions pursuant to the Regulation on the management of deposit accounts in foreign exchange may only be held only in (1) demand, overnight, and term deposits; CDs; bankers' acceptances; and other instruments issued by foreign first-tier foreign banks or financial institutions; (2) bills, notes, and bonds and other instruments issued and guaranteed by a government; (3) negotiable instruments of government agencies and other public entities or financial institutions guaranteed by governments or government institutions; (4) deposits, notes, and fixed-income bonds issued by supranational financial institutions; and (5) money market MFs, having maturities not exceeding one year. Specified investments must meet the requirements and exposure limits authorized by the BCH. Investments in the "other instruments" mentioned in Item (1) may not exceed 5% of the depository institution's total foreign currency deposits.

In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Financial system institutions are subject to an asymmetric open position limit. The net open foreign exchange position for banks is up to 5% of their own funds for the short position and up to 20% of their own funds for the long position.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Financial system institutions are subject to an asymmetric open position limit. The net open foreign exchange position for banks is up to 5% of their own funds for the short position and up to 20% of their own funds for the long position.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The BCH board of directors regulates the types of investments for insurance companies, the limits for each issuer, and the classification of asset categories.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Investment in mutual or investment funds established outside Honduras and in mutual or investment funds constituted in Honduras, whose assets are invested in foreign securities and in financial instruments that meet the minimum qualification, may not in total exceed 15% of total investment resources. Reserves corresponding to contracts or policies issued in foreign currency may be invested in their entirety in foreign first-class financial institutions. Investments abroad may not in total exceed 25% of investment resources, except as provided for in Article 88 of the Law on Insurance and Reinsurance Institutions.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Investments held abroad may not in total exceed 25% of investment resources.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	Investments in domestic instruments are governed by Article 3 of the Regulation on Investments by Insurance Companies.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pursuant to Article 42(e) of Decree No. 17-2017, investments in securities issued by foreign enterprises, institutions, and governments are allowed up to 10% of the fund resources with the possibility of increasing up to an additional 10% with the prior approval of the CNBS. Regarding private Pension Funds, the Investment Regulation of Funds managed by Pension Fund Administrators establishes that the limit for investing in securities issued by foreign companies and institutions and governments is 35% of the own resources of the Administrator or the Managed Fund.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio	Yes.	Pension funds may not invest more than 5% of their resources in held abroad		assets abroad, pursuant to the Regulation on the Investment of Government Pension Funds by Provident Institutions.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Investments in instruments issued by domestic institutions are governed by the provisions of Articles 42 and 43 of Decree No. 17-2017 of the Regulation on the Investment of Government Pension Funds by Provident Institutions. As regards private Pension Funds, the Investment Regulations for Funds managed by the Pension Fund Administrators establish that the limit for investing in personal loans granted to members to finance the acquisition of consumer goods or the payment of services is up to 10% of the resources of the Managed Fund.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	There are no collective investment funds in Honduras. However, the Law on the Stock Market and the Regulation on Fund Management Companies regulate the functioning and operations of MFs, investment funds, and fund management companies.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	Article 128 of the Law on the Stock Market states that these investment funds may hold deposits in banks abroad as well as in self-issued instruments of such banks issued abroad, in keeping with the provisions established by the CNBS.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Investment funds must hold at least 50% of their investments in securities guaranteed by the government, the BCH, or authorized financial system institutions and must not hold more than 15% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of any one company or more than 25% of the issued securities guaranteed by the same economic grouping (Article 106 of the Law on the Stock Market).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	The Law on the Stock Market and the Regulation on Fund Management Companies do not contain any articles on this issue.

Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange Arrangement

Classification
Stabilized arrangement	02/04/2022	Since February 2022, the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange arrangement was reclassified from crawling peg to stabilized.
Official exchange rate	03/07/2022	The Central Bank of Honduras modified the calculation of the reference exchange rate (TCR) such that the result of the weighted average exchange rate of Mercado Interbancario de Divisas (MID) is the TCR of the following day. The way of calculating the base price is maintained. Previously, the TCR was the weighted average by price amounts that result from the event of the day in the MID and the TCR of the day of the currencies withheld by the exchange agents for the payment of their own expenses and direct sale to the clients of the private sector.
	04/13/2023	The Central Bank of Honduras modified the calculation of the reference exchange rate (TCR), so it corresponds to the weighted average exchange rate of the current day's currency auction. It will be effective for the following business day or for non-business days between the auction day and the subsequent business day after the auction. The purchase price of currencies will be the TCR of the day, while the selling price will be the TCR plus the corresponding exchange commission. Previously, the result of the weighted average exchange rate of Mercado Interbancario de Divisas of a given day was the TCR of the following day.
Foreign exchange market	08/01/2022	The Central Bank of Honduras through Agreement No. 11/2022, Numeral 6.2 of July 28, 2022, established that foreign exchange agents may charge their private sector clients an exchange commission for the sale of foreign currency, which may not exceed 0.5% (previously 0.7%).
	08/28/2023	The Central Bank of Honduras through Agreement No. 10-2023, removed the 0.3% fee for currencies sold in the Mercado Interbancario de Divisas.

Operated by the central bank

Auction	04/13/2023	The Central Bank of Honduras (BCH), through Agreement No. 05-2023, reactivated the auction of foreign currency as a mechanism for allocating foreign currency. Only the BCH and the institutions authorized by its Board of Directors to act as foreign exchange agents may negotiate foreign currency.
Interbank market	03/07/2022	The calculation of the reference exchange rate (TCR) was modified. Now, the result of the weighted average exchange rate of the Mercado Interbancario de Divisas (MID) becomes the TCR of the following day. The way of calculating the base price is maintained. Previously, the TCR was the weighted average by price amounts that result from the event of the day in the MID and the TCR of the day of the currencies withheld by the exchange agents for the payment of their own expenses and direct sale to the clients of the private sector.
	03/07/2022	The calculation of the center of the exchange band of the Mercado Interbancario de Divisas (MID) was modified, such that it is the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID weighted at 80% and the average of the weighted average exchange rate of the MID (TCPP MID) resulting from the last seven MID events, weighted at 20%. Previously, it was made up of the average of the base price used in the last seven events of the MID weighted at 50% and the average of the TCPP MID resulting from the last seven MID events, weighted at 50%. The exchange rate band continues to be 1.0% above or below the center of the exchange rate band.
	04/13/2023	The Central Bank of Honduras, through Agreement No. 05-2023, reactivated the auction of foreign currency as a mechanism for allocating foreign currency instead of the Foreign Exchange Market (Mercado Interbancario de Divisas).

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank	04/13/2023	The Board of Directors of the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) determined that foreign currency exchange agents must transfer 100% of foreign exchange income to the BCH no later than the following business day after the purchase, as stipulated in Agreement No. 05/2023. Furthermore, it establishes that the Foreign Exchange Auction trading events will be conducted exclusively for the sale of US dollars and will be held on days designated by the BCH. Private sector individuals or legal entities can participate in the Foreign Exchange Auction solely through currency exchange agents for a minimum amount of US$10,000 and multiples of US$10.00. They can submit bids for currency demand to the BCH as follows: individuals up to US$100,000 and up to three bids, which must not exceed the maximum limit indicated; legal entities up to US$1.2 million and up to three (3) bids, which must not exceed the maximum limit indicated. Previously, pursuant to Agreement No. 03/2021, this requirement had been eliminated.

legal entities, as well as residents in the country, can participate in the foreign exchange auction through a currency exchange agent. They are required to present: (1) national identification document for national individuals, (2) National Tax Registry for legal entities, and (3) a valid resident card for foreign participants.
Clients of currency exchange agents operating with mixed resources, that is, public and private funds, are ineligible to participate in the currency auction and must submit their request to the BCH.
Currency exchange agents may submit one bid in the currency auction to cover their own expenses up to US$1.59 million daily. This bid should be supported by duly justified documentation and submitted within the specified timeframe in the operational circular issued by the Management of the BCH. Private sector individuals and legal entities can only participate in the currency auction through currency exchange agents and can submit their bids for currency demand to the BCH. For individuals, the limit is up to US$100,000 and a maximum of three bids, which should not exceed the indicated demand to the BCH. For legal entities, the limit is up to US$1.2 million daily and a maximum of three bids, which should not exceed the indicated maximum limit.
Previously, nonresidents could not participate in the BCH's foreign exchange auctions and could only buy foreign exchange directly from ADs.

Currency board	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The currency board system in Hong Kong SAR, adopted October 17, 1983, requires that the monetary base be backed at least 100% by, and that changes in it be matched 100% by corresponding changes in, the reserve currency (US dollar) at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 a US dollar. A symmetric convertibility zone of HK$7.75–HK $7.85—within which the Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA) may choose to conduct market operations consistent with currency board principles—has been in place since May 18, 2005. The monetary base includes issued notes and coins, sum of clearing account balances kept with the HKMA (that is, the aggregate balance) and outstanding Exchange Fund Bills and Notes. Consistent with currency board principles, the HKMA may adjust the issuance sizes of Exchange Fund paper, and the program may expand along with the interest payments on such paper. The issuance and redemption of certificates of indebtedness, which back banknotes issued by note-issuing banks (NIBs), must be made against US dollars at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 a US dollar. The issuance and withdrawal of government-issued notes and coins are settled against US dollars at the same fixed rate. The legal documents that establish the currency board include the Basic Law (Chapter V, Section 1, Articles 110 and 111); the Exchange Fund Ordinance (Chapter 66); and an exchange of letters between the Financial Secretary and the Monetary Authority specifying the monetary policy objective and the structure of the monetary system under the Exchange Fund Ordinance. The letters specify that the Financial Secretary is responsible for determining the monetary policy objective and the structure of the monetary system, including the linked exchange rate. Section 3(1) of the ordinance, as amended, specifies that the Exchange Fund "must be under the control of the Financial Secretary and must be used primarily for such purposes as the financial secretary thinks fit affecting, either directly or indirectly, the exchange value of the currency of Hong Kong SAR and for other purposes incidental thereto." The HKMA is responsible for achieving the monetary policy objective, including determining the strategy, instruments, and operational means for doing so, and for maintaining the stability and integrity of the monetary system. The HKMA makes prompt announcements of the impact on the aggregate balance arising from purchases or sales of US dollars by the currency board via various information vendors, including Reuters and Bloomberg. The information is also available on the HKMA website.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks are free to set their exchange rates, including bid-ask spreads, and commissions in transactions with their clients. Apart from commercial banks, money service operators (MSOs) (namely remittance agents and money changers) may also conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized institutions (AIs) are not required to obtain a separate license to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. They may enter into foreign exchange transactions in the interbank market on their own account or on behalf of their clients. AIs, which maintain a Hong Kong dollar clearing account within the real-time gross settlement system, are eligible for transactions with the HKMA under the currency board arrangement. MSOs (formerly known as remittance agents and money changers) must obtain a license from the commissioner of customs and excise. As of December 31, 2022, there were 712 licensed MSOs in Hong Kong SAR. They are subject to regulatory requirements under the Anti-Money-Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Ordinance.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The HKMA redeems certificates of indebtedness acquired by NIBs in compensation for banknotes on demand and at a fixed exchange rate of HK$7.80 a US dollar. The spot exchange rate has fluctuated within the convertibility zone of HK$7.75–HK$7.85 since May 18, 2005. The HKMA operates convertibility commitments on both the strong side and the weak side of the linked rate of HK$7.80. Under the strong-side convertibility commitment, the HKMA buys US dollars from licensed banks at HK$7.75; under the weak-side convertibility commitment, it sells US dollars at HK$7.85.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no official limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. No separate licenses are required for AIs to participate in the foreign exchange market. In addition to AIs, other financial institutions operating in Hong Kong SAR or overseas may participate in the interbank market. As of December 31, 2022, there were 182 AIs in Hong Kong SAR, comprising 155 licensed banks, 15 restricted license banks, and 12 deposit-taking companies. The HKMA may conduct discretionary foreign exchange operations consistent with currency board principles within the convertibility zone. These are normal foreign exchange transactions consistent with the currency board principles. The HKMA makes prompt announcements of the impact on the aggregate balance arising from these transactions via various information vendors, including Reuters and Bloomberg. The information is also available on the HKMA website. The interbank foreign exchange market operates on an OTC basis as

Over the counter	Yes.	AIs enter into foreign exchange transactions in the interbank market by phone or some other electronic trading means. They deal with each other based on credit lines that these AIs extend among themselves. Such deals may be done on their own account or on behalf of their clients, such as major corporations, hedge funds, CBs, and high net worth individuals. There is no centralized system to regulate such trades.
Brokerage	Yes.	The brokerage systems in Hong Kong SAR operate on private sector initiatives. Deals are done via phone or electronic networks (such as Electronic Broking Services, Reuters Matching). Money brokers operating in Hong Kong SAR must acquire approval from the HKMA. As of December 31, 2022, there were 37 approved money brokers in Hong Kong SAR.

The disclosure and position limits are also stipulated in the subsidiary legislation. The position limits for Hang Seng Index and Hang Seng China Enterprises Index futures and options contracts are determined at a combined delta limit of 10,000 and 12,000 contracts, respectively. Market participants may apply for an excess position limit for Hang Seng Index and Hang Seng China Enterprises Index futures and options contracts. The excess limit was increased to 300%, bringing more flexibility into the existing position limit regime by enabling the Securities and Futures Commission to authorize exchange participants or their affiliates, as well as asset managers to exceed the statutory position limits for Hang Seng Index and Hang Seng China Enterprises Index futures and options contracts to meet their specific business needs as set out in the subsidiary legislation.

Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance (Cap 117), residential properties acquired on or after October 27, 2012, by any person except a Hong Kong Permanent Resident (HKPR) acting on his or her own behalf are subject to Buyer's Stamp Duty at a flat rate of 15%. Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance, residential properties acquired from February 23, 2013, to November 4, 2016, are subject to Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty (that is, ad valorem stamp duty at the then Scale 1 (which was later rearranged as Part 2 of Scale 1 following the introduction of New Residential Stamp Duty) of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance), except for those residential properties acquired by a HKPR acting on his or her own behalf and does not own any other residential property in Hong Kong SAR at the time of acquisition. For the latter scenario, ad valorem stamp duty at Scale 2 of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance (that is, the original stamp duty rate before the introduction of Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty) will apply. Unless otherwise specified in the Stamp Duty Ordinance, residential properties acquired on or after November 5, 2016, are subject to the New Residential Stamp Duty at a flat rate of 15%, except for those residential properties acquired by a HKPR acting on his or her own behalf and does not own any other residential property in Hong Kong SAR at the time of acquisition. For the latter scenario, ad valorem stamp duty at Scale 2 of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance will continue to apply.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Since November 26, 2020, the government introduced amendments to the Stamp Duty Ordinance to abolish the Doubled Ad Valorem Stamp Duty on non-residential property transactions. Unless provided otherwise, any instrument executed on or after November 26, 2020, for the sale and purchase or transfer of non-residential property will be subject to ad valorem stamp duty at the rates under Scale 2 of the First Schedule to the Stamp Duty Ordinance. Non-HKPRs may continue to purchase residential properties in Hong Kong SAR without restriction on payment of the Buyer's Stamp Duty and the New Residential Stamp Duty. Effective October 19, 2022, to attract talent from around the world to stay in Hong Kong for long-term development, the Government has introduced a refund mechanism under the Buyer's Stamp Duty and the New Residential Stamp Duty for non-HKPRs who have entered Hong Kong under designated talent admission schemes, acquired a residential property in Hong Kong on or after October 19, 2022, and subsequently become HKPR. The refund mechanism brings the overall stamp duty charged on eligible incoming talents on par with that charged on first-time home buyers who are HKPRs, hence reducing the cost of home purchase for those incoming talents who are able and wish to buy residential properties in Hong Kong.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The limits and restrictions stated below are set by the HKMA for prudential reasons only.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	The HKMA may prohibit AIs from maintaining accounts (including for the purpose of granting loans and credits) with foreign banks if transactions conducted through these accounts are not made in the interest of the depositors of these institutions.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		This restriction is only intended to be applied under an extreme situation and is not a general restriction.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	AIs incorporated in Hong Kong SAR may extend loans and credit facilities to a single customer group up to 25% of their Tier 1 capital. This limit also governs other financial exposures, including securities issued by the company. This is a general large exposure limit which is not designed as a special restriction for nonresidents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	AIs incorporated in Hong Kong SAR may extend loans and other credit facilities to a single customer group (irrespective of the currency) up to 25% of their Tier 1 capital. This limit also governs other financial exposures, including securities issued by the company. This is a general large exposure limit which is not designed as a special restriction on lending locally in foreign exchange.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	AIs incorporated in Hong Kong SAR may hold the securities of one company up to 25% of their Tier 1 capital. This limit also governs other financial exposures, including loans and other credit facilities extended to the company, irrespective of the currency. This is a general large exposure limit which is not designed as a special restriction on purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	AIs incorporated in Hong Kong SAR must not (1) establish or acquire an overseas banking subsidiary without the HKMA approval; (2) acquire share capital in a company worth more than 5% of the Tier 1 capital of the institution (whether by one acquisition or a series of acquisition) without the HKMA's prior consent; (3) incur equity exposures in aggregate more than 25% of the Tier 1 capital of the institution (this restriction does not apply if the equity exposure (a) is held as security for facilities granted; (b) was acquired through an underwriting or a sub-underwriting contract for a period not exceeding seven working days; or (c) was acquired through debt satisfaction, in which case the share capital must be disposed of as soon as possible but no later than 18 months after its acquisition); or

		(4) purchase or hold an interest in foreign or domestic land of an aggregate value exceeding 50% of the adjusted Tier 1 capital of the institution and purchase or hold interest in foreign or domestic land, other than for self-use, of an aggregate value exceeding 25% of the Tier 1 capital of the institution (these restrictions do not apply to (a) interest in land that was mortgaged to the institution to secure a debt or (b) interest in land acquired by the institution in the course of satisfaction of debts due to it, provided the interest is disposed of as soon as possible, but no later than 18 months after acquisition).
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	No person may become a majority shareholder controller, minority shareholder controller, or indirect controller of an AI incorporated in Hong Kong SAR without the HKMA approval. Any person who becomes such a controller must notify the HKMA within 14 days. Note-issuing activity is subject to review, and the license may be withdrawn if a foreign government or foreign-government-controlled entity holds 20% or more of the shares in a bank. This requirement is intended to prevent close association between NIBs and foreign sovereign controllers, which is a unique concern, because in Hong Kong SAR notes are issued by commercial banks rather than the CB. In most other countries, foreign investment is not allowed in this activity because the issuance of banknotes is the responsibility of the monetary authority. This condition affects only the issuance of notes and does not affect banks' other activities.
Open foreign exchange position limits	No.	AIs are expected to set internal limits on their open position in each foreign currency and their aggregate open position in all foreign currencies. No regulatory foreign exchange position limits have been set by the HKMA. However, the HKMA will review AIs' internal limits as part of its ongoing supervision. Locally incorporated AIs must provide justification to the HKMA if their aggregate open foreign exchange position limits are very large (for example, higher than 25% of their capital base). Foreign exchange limits of foreign banks' branches in Hong Kong SAR are monitored by their head offices centrally and home supervisory authorities centrally. However, a foreign bank's branches in Hong Kong SAR may be required to demonstrate the effectiveness of its risk management systems if its aggregate open foreign exchange position limit is higher than 5% of the bank's capital base. All AIs are required to report their foreign exchange positions as well as any breach of relevant internal limits to the HKMA on a monthly basis. The above benchmark thresholds are intended to facilitate the HKMA supervisory monitoring of AIs' foreign exchange risk and are not a general restriction.

		Kong SAR to match their liabilities from such insurance business. The eligible assets are not limited to local securities and may be in the form of cash, bank deposits, or landed properties.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Insurers carrying on long-term business (life insurers) are required to have their assets matched with the insurance liabilities as regards currency. Where there is currency mismatch in the assets and liabilities, life insurers are required to set aside prudent provision against the effects of changes in exchange rates on the adequacy of assets. Furthermore, under the Risk-based Capital Regime set to be implemented in 2024, insurers (both life insurers and general business insurers) with currency mismatch are subject to capital requirements in currency risk module.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	For Mandatory Provident Fund (MPF) plans, at least 30% of the assets of a constituent fund must be held in Hong-Kong-dollar-denominated currency investments, as measured by effective currency exposure.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.

Hong Kong regulates virtual assets that are classified as "security tokens" under the Securities and Futures Ordinance ("SFO") while regulating the virtual asset activity of operating a centralized virtual asset trading platform under the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorist Financing Ordinance. Virtual asset activities conducted by SFC-licensed or registered intermediaries (for example, virtual asset fund management, virtual asset dealing and advisory services, and distribution of virtual asset related products) are regulated under the SFO irrespective of whether the virtual asset is a "security token" or not. Effective June 1, 2023, subject to the applicability of the transitional arrangement, centralized virtual asset trading platforms operating in Hong Kong or actively marketing their services in Hong Kong have to be licensed by the SFC. The SFC has in place holistic and comprehensive frameworks for regulating virtual asset activities from an investor protection perspective and not just from a payments or AML perspective covering key investor protection concerns (such as safe custody of assets, segregation of client assets, avoidance of conflicts of interest, market manipulation surveillance, cybersecurity standards and requirements, accounting and auditing, and risk management requirements).
Acquisition by residents	Yes.	The SFC has imposed token admission requirements on SFC-licensed virtual asset trading platforms. There are additional requirements on the types of virtual assets which could be made available to retail Hong Kong investors by SFC-licensed virtual asset trading platforms.

Controls on stablecoins	n.r.	The HKMA will adopt a risk-based approach in scoping in stablecoin structures for regulation under the proposed regime. As a priority, the HKMA will start with regulating stablecoins that purport to reference to one or more fiat currencies, given the higher and more imminent monetary and financial stability risks that they may pose. Flexibility will be built in to enable the authority to scope in other stablecoin structure(s) for regulation under the proposed regime in the future. Key activities to be regulated under the proposed regime include: (i) governance; (ii) issuance; and (iii) stabilization of in-scope stablecoins. Other stablecoin-related activities may not be captured in the proposed regulatory scope in the initial stage.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Hungary maintains certain exchange restrictions related to the freezing of funds and economic resources of the following: (1) certain officials of Belarus; (2) certain individuals and entities in the Democratic Republic of the Congo; (3) certain individuals and entities in Lebanon, Myanmar, Sudan, and Syria; (4) certain individuals and entities in the Islamic Republic of Iran and Libya; (5) certain individuals, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Ukraine; and (6) certain individuals undermining or threatening the territorial integrity, sovereignty, and independence of Ukraine.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Within the framework of the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP), the EU applies restrictive measures either autonomously or implementing binding resolutions of the UNSC with regard to the Treaty on EU (in particular, Article 29) and the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU (in particular, Article 75 or 215). Restrictive measures imposed by the EU may target governments of third countries, entities, and individuals. They may comprise specific or general trade restrictions (import and export bans), financial restrictions, restrictions on admission (visa or travel bans), and other measures. EU Council regulations imposing sanctions and related Council decisions and Commission regulations are part of the EU law and take precedence over conflicting legislation of Hungary as a member of the EU. Such regulations are directly applicable and have direct effect in all member states. Restrictive measures are in place in accordance with EU regulations with respect to Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Libya, Mali, Myanmar/Burma, Moldova, Nicaragua, Serbia, Somalia, Sudan, South Sudan, Syria, groups associated with terrorism (Al-Qaida, Taliban, ISIL), Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine/Russia (concerning restrictive measures following Russia's actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine), Ukraine (concerning restrictive measures in respect of actions undermining the territorial integrity and independence of Ukraine, as well as the misappropriation of state funds), Yemen, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe. An EU sanctions regime against cyber-attacks, against chemical weapons, and on human rights violations has been implemented. According to Act No. LII of 2017 on the implementation of financial and asset-related restrictive measures ordered by the EU and the UNSC, the Hungarian authorities implement directly, completely, and without delay the UNSC Resolution decisions about targeted financial sanctions. The method does not require the transposition of UNSC Resolution decisions at the EU level; at the same time, it includes the implementing rules for the relevant EU regulations as well,

Export, trade, and entry restrictions are implemented on the basis of the following acts:

Act No. LII of 2017 on the implementation of financial and asset-related restrictive measures ordered by the EU and the UNSC:
Covers freezing of assets and the prohibition to make funds available.
Act No. LIII of 2017 on preventing and combating money laundering and terrorism financing:
Regulates competences of supervising authorities in case of financial restrictions.
Government Decree No. 13/2011 (II.22.) on the foreign trade authorization of dual-use items:
Covers the procedure for authorization of dual-use items.
Government Decree No. 52/2012 (III.28.) on the cross-border sale of certain goods, services, and rights of a financial value:
Covers the procedure for authorization in the case of trade restrictions and certain financial restrictions.
Act No. II of 2007. on the residence and entry of third-country nationals:
Contains the conditions of entry and travel of third-country nationals.
Government Decree No. 365/2016 (XI. 29.) on the designation of the Government Office of the Capital City Budapest as an authority acting in certain industrial and commercial affairs, as well as regional metrology authorities and technical safety authorities:
Covers the competences of the government office.

Act No. CLII of 2017 on the implementation of Union customs legislation covers the customs procedure.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating because of discretionary intervention by the Magyar Nemzeti Bank (MNB) in the foreign exchange market. The general aim is to avoid disruptive market fluctuations and exchange rate overshooting. However, the MNB emphasizes that the Bank generally refrains from intervening in the foreign exchange market. The MNB converts foreign currency for the government and net current and capital transfers from the EU at market rates. These transactions change the foreign exchange reserve position of the MNB. If the resulting reserve dynamics are not in line with the MNB's reserve management objectives, the Bank will take the necessary measures. The MNB does not publish intervention data.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	In some cases, the law (for example, Accountancy Act, Act on the Implementation of Community Customs Law) requires or allows companies to use the official exchange rate when evaluating assets/liabilities or revenues/expenditures or transferring funds denominated in foreign currency. Official MNB foreign exchange rates are fixed each weekday, except national holidays. These rates are valid until publication of the next day's rates and are fixed at 11:00 a.m. The official euro–forint fixing rate is the simple arithmetic average of the euro–forint quotes of the 10 most active domestic banks in the forint foreign exchange market, after the two highest and two lowest quotes are eliminated. The US dollar–forint fixing rate is calculated using the euro–forint fixing rate and the euro–US dollar market rate at 11:00 a.m. The forint exchange rates against other currencies are derived from the US dollar–forint fixing and the foreign exchange cross-rates at 11:00 a.m.

Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The current medium-term target for inflation is 3% increase (±1 percentage point (pp)) in consumer prices as measured by the CPI regularly published by the Hungarian Central Statistical Office. The tolerance band was introduced in 2015.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	In August 2005, the Bank adopted an explicit medium-term ("continuous") inflation target for the period starting in 2007, after year-end targets between 2001 and 2006. The time horizon relevant for the Monetary Council is 1.5–2 years.
CPI	Yes.	The CPI is the measure of the price changes of goods and services intended for household consumption and is calculated on the basis of the same month of the previous year. It is published monthly by the Hungarian Central Statistical Office. Core inflation is used by the MNB to identify the medium-term inflation developments. It is, however, not directly part of the inflation targeting policy; therefore, there is no declared target or tolerance band for this measure. Core inflation measures the price development of the more persistent product groups and it is computed from the original CPI by excluding unprocessed food, alcohol and tobacco, energy products and the products and services with regulated price. Conversely, core inflation includes processed food, non-energy industrial goods and market services.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The time horizon relevant for the Monetary Council is 5–8 quarters ahead.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The MNB's base rate (rate on the interest-bearing part of the reserve account) is the policy rate. Effective October 1, 2023, the MNB remunerates balances in excess of required reserves on reserve accounts (excess reserves) at the base rate.
Target corridor band	Yes.	Effective September 27, 2023, according to the Council's decision in September 2023, the interest rate corridor became symmetric, with a band of +/− 100 basis points around the base rate (the interest rate paid on overnight deposits equals the base rate minus 100 basis points, and the interest to be paid on overnight collateralized loans equals the base rate plus 100 basis points). Previously, MNB maintained asymmetric overnight interest rate corridor to prevent extreme fluctuations in interbank rates, the interest rate paid on overnight CB deposits equals the base rate minus 50 basis points, and the interest to be paid on overnight collateralized loans equals the base rate (plus 250 basis points).
Other	Yes.	In September 2022, the Monetary Council indicated that monetary tightening would continue by reducing interbank liquidity. Effective October 1, 2022, the CB enhanced the disinflationary impact of interest rate increases through three measures: raising the required reserve ratio, holding CB discount bill auctions and launching a longer-term deposit instrument. At its meeting in January 2023, the Council decided to raise further the required reserve ratio to 10%, effective April 1, 2023. By raising the reserve requirement ratio and restructuring interest rates, the Monetary Council has tightened further the impact of the required reserves on liquidity. Effective October 1, 2023, the reserve account is available to banks without an upper limit and the Bank remunerates the part bearing interest at the base rate. The Bank announces its longer-term instruments to absorb interbank forint liquidity, that is, the long-term deposit facility and the CB discount bill, at the base rate. Effective October 14, 2022, in response to the sharp deterioration in financial and capital markets sentiment, the MNB responded with a set of targeted measures to preserve financial stability. The use of the overnight deposit quick tender with an interest rate of 18% and the one-day foreign exchange-swap instrument on a daily basis, coupled with an increase of 950 basis points in the interest rate corridor's upper bound, effectively increased short-term rates. From spring 2023, the MNB has started the normalization of the extraordinary interest rate environment with the gradual decrease of the interest rate of O/N deposit quick tenders. Effective September 27, 2023, following the decision in September 2023, the gap between the interest conditions of overnight deposit quick tenders and the base rate closed. According to the decision, the overnight deposit quick tender was phased out from October 2023. From October 1, 2023, MNB remunerates the interest-bearing part of the reserve accounts at the base rate, including balances in excess of required reserves (excess reserves). In the Council's assessment, one-day foreign exchange-swap quick tenders remain an important element of strengthening the monetary transmission. The lower bound of the interest rate corridor serves as a guidance regarding the interest paid on foreign exchange-swap quick tenders.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	The Act on Credit Institutions and Financial Enterprises states that currency exchange activities are subject to authorization by the MNB. According to the law, authorization to engage in currency exchange activities is granted to credit institutions and their agents. On December 31, 2022, there were 577 foreign exchange bureaus in Hungary and 40 credit institutions. Licensing requires the fulfillment of several technical and personnel criteria. The MNB website provides more detailed information, including a list of authorized agents. Agents may only purchase and sell banknotes, but credit institutions may also make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the MNB.

Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. Also, the sender or the addressee has to make the similar declaration if cash is transferred via mail or a parcel service. Based on the provisions of Act No. XLI of 2021, on detection of the unaccompanied cash, the customs authority will require the declaration from either the sender or the addressee. (including their representatives). The authorities must keep a record of such information and in case of suspicion of money laundering report it to their national FIU. The Hungarian FIU maintains statistics of suspicious transaction reports by Customs, including all relevant information. According to the EU regulation, an incorrect or incomplete declaration does not fulfill the obligation. If the cash is not made available for control, the obligation is not fulfilled either. To check compliance with the regulation, national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transport. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EU regulation. To comply with the new EU legislation, Act No. XLI of 2021 on the Execution of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and of the Council on Controls of Cash Entering or Leaving the Union and Repealing Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 replaced the former Act No. XLVIII. of 2007 on the Execution of Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. The new "Cash Control Act" keeps the effective, proportionate, and dissuasive sanctions for failure to declare or false declaration of cash set out in the former act. It includes an administrative fine of up to 50% of the undeclared amount. The customs authority may retain the object of the procedure (the amount of cash equal to the fine) if there is a risk of nonpayment of the fine. In case of non- or false declaration, on request the fine may be reduced by 50%, if the delinquent presents substantive proof of the origin of the cash in question (equity).

In accordance with EU regulations, no import licenses are required, except for certain products that are subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import surveillance. For agricultural products, the import licensing system is automatic and used only for statistical purposes. Imports of certain products are subject to licensing (for example, some industrial products, explosives and firearms; ammunition; military equipment; dual-use goods; certain goods that could be used for capital punishment, torture, or other cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment; and certain drugs). Import restrictions covering certain products (for example, arms or steel products) have been put in place against Russia and Belarus following the Russian invasion of Ukraine. Restrictive measures against Russia are contained in Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 of July 31, 2014, concerning restrictive measures in view of Russia's actions destabilizing the situation in Ukraine. The restrictive measures were extended, and the regulation was amended 15 times in 2022 and 6 times in 2023, last on December 18, 2023. All measures are effective December 19, 2023. Restrictive measures against Belarus are contained in Council Regulation (EC) No. 765/2006 of May 18, 2006, concerning restrictive measures in view of the situation in Belarus and the involvement of Belarus in the Russian aggression against Ukraine. The restrictive measures were extended, and the regulation was amended since the beginning of Russia's aggression against Ukraine covering several new export and import and trade restrictions. The regulation was amended 8 times in 2022 and 3 times in 2023, last on August 3, 2023. All measures are effective August 5, 2023. Besides the existing import restrictions, export and import affected by targeted restrictive measures are in effect. They are contained in Council Regulation (EU) No. 269/2014 of March 17, 2014, concerning restrictive measures in respect of actions undermining or threatening the territorial integrity, sovereignty, and independence of Ukraine. The restrictive measures were extended, and the regulation was amended 16 times in 2023. All measures are effective December 18, 2023.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	With respect to nonresidents, controls apply to (1) airlines established in the country that must be majority owned and effectively controlled by EU countries and/or nationals of EU countries, unless otherwise provided for through an international agreement to which the EU is a signatory; (2) acquisition of a shipping license to operate in international waters, which is reserved for companies established in Hungary and operating shipping vessels registered in EU member countries (however, there are no restrictions preventing the establishment by nonresidents of a company in Hungary through which a shipping license is available); (3) asset management services by branches of nonresident investors located outside the EU for domestic mandatory and voluntary private pension funds; (4) the extent that under EU Directive No. 2009/65/EC, a depositary of a UCITS must either have its registered office or be established in the UCITS home member state; and (5) nonresident investors located outside the EU through acquiring or establishing directly or indirectly more than 25% of the shares of companies (or more than 10% of shares of publicly listed company) established in Hungary which engaged in activities described by the Act No. LVII of 2018. The provisions of Act No. LVII of 2018 were modified to ensure the practical implementation of Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452. The Act. No. CXXI of 2020 on amending certain laws relating to records and electronic administration contains the details as follows. A foreign investor may acquire (or establish) directly or indirectly more than 25% of the shares of a company (or more than 10% of shares of public limited company) or according to the Civil Code may acquire a controlling influence in a company established in Hungary carrying out the activities specified in the Act only after the notification to the Minister responsible for the direction of civilian national security services (hereinafter referred to as “Minister”) and confirmation of acknowledgment of such notification. A foreign investor may commence the activity specified in the law after notification to the Minister and confirmation of acknowledgment of the notification. The foreign investor is obliged to provide information to the Minister on the change of the data subject to the notification obligation within the term specified in the Government decree. The detailed rules of the procedure of the Minister, in particular the procedural deadlines, must be established by a Government decree. On the basis of the notification, the Minister examines whether the acquisition of ownership or the right of operation by the foreign investor or the continuation of the newly acquired activity violates the security interests of Hungary. On receipt of the notification, the Minister must immediately verify that the notification complies with the legal requirements and, in light of the Member State’s comments under Article 6 of the FDI or the European Commission's opinion under Article 6 or 8 of the FDI, examines whether there is a violation of Hungary's security interests. If so, it will issue a prohibition decision; if not, it will acknowledge receipt of the notification in writing. In particularly justified cases, or if it is necessary to fulfill the obligations specified in the FDI, the Minister may extend the duration of the inspection by a maximum of 60 days, of which the foreign investor must be notified in writing before the expiry of the 60-day period. The Minister notifies the foreign investor in writing of the prohibition decision containing the simplified justification, and the foreign investor may challenge it in an administrative lawsuit. The Metropolitan Court has exclusive jurisdiction over the lawsuit. Anyone who violates his or her obligation under the Act in connection with the notification or the provision of data must be examined, after examining all the circumstances of the case, the Minister orders the payment of the fine set out as follows: in case of a natural person foreign investor from HUF 100,000 to HUF 1,000,000 and in case of legal person foreign investor from HUF 1,000,000 to HUF 10,000,000. The scope of its addressees to be notified as a foreign investor in accordance with Act No. LVII of 2018 has been extended to nationals of the EU, another state belonging to the EEA and the Swiss Confederation, or to legal persons or other entities registered in such a state (Act. No. XCIX of 2021 on transitional emergency rules, Section 114; the modification was effective for 12 months from the end of the emergency until May 31, 2023 – Government Decree No. 27/2021 (I. 29.).

The Act No. LVII of 2018 has been extended with insurance and reinsurance activities and activities directly related to insurance activities (Act No. XCIX of 2021 on transitional emergency rules, Section 299).

The following controls apply to investments by foreign investors (1) acquire (directly or indirectly) a majority influence in a strategic company, (2) acquire at least 10% of all shares, provided the overall value of the investment reaches or exceeds HUF 350 million, and (3) acquire 15%, 20%, or 50% in a strategic company or if the joint shareholding of all the foreign investors would exceed 25% in a strategic company, require the approval. If the transaction involves a Hungarian strategic company, but that Hungarian strategic company was already foreign-owned, then the indirect change of that foreign ownership falls outside of the Interim Measures Act (Interim Measures Act, Section 277). This is according to Article 277 of Act No. LVIII of 2020. Previously, the above control was in effect until June 30, 2021, but the reference to the part "to be applied for actions taken until June 30, 2021," has been removed from Paragraph (1) of Article 277 of Act No. LVIII of 2020. As a result, the measure was extended and is currently in force without any limitation in time set by the provisions.
During the emergency, the procedure is carried out in accordance with Government Decree No. 561/2022 (XII. 23.) on the different application of certain provisions necessary for the protection of Hungarian companies for economic purposes during an emergency.

A limited liability company, private limited company, public limited company, or higher education institution established in Hungary qualifies as a strategic company, in case the main or additional field of its activity defined in the Government Decree belongs to a sector of strategic importance, in particular in the energy, transport, communications sectors, or in the sectors defined in Article 4 (1) (a) to (e) of FDI, (Act No. XCIX of 2021 on transitional emergency rules, Section 160 (2)). Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments Government Decree No. 27/2021 (I.29.), which is referred to in Article 114 of Act No. XCIX of 2021, has been repealed by Government Decree No. 181/2022 (V.24.) (which declared the end of the emergency situation as of June 1, 2022). As Article 114 of Act No. XCIX of 2021 states that the amendments it made to point 1 of Article 1 of Act LVII of 2018, must remain valid for twelve months after declaring the end of the emergency situation, which happened effective June 1, 2022; therefore, the amendments should stay in force until May 31, 2023. The scope of "foreign investors" under Act No. LVII of 2018 will remain to be extended to nationals of the EU, another state belonging to the EEA and the Swiss Confederation, or to legal persons or other entities registered in such a state until May 31, 2023.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The foreign exchange funding adequacy ratio (FFAR) is calculated as the ratio of the available amount of stable foreign currency funding divided by weighted foreign-currency-denominated assets outstanding. The FFAR regulation based on the NSFR methodology is in force since July 1, 2012, and has been amended 5 times to comply with evolving international standards and market developments. The measure aims to reduce the maturity mismatch of the banking sector's foreign exchange position. The required level of the FFAR is 100%. To further reduce denomination mismatches in the balance sheet of credit institutions and to assist the regulatory objectives of the FFAR, the MNB as macroprudential authority also introduced the foreign exchange coverage ratio (FECR), which limits the on-balance-sheet denomination mismatch of credit institutions relative to the balance sheet total. Since December 10, 2021, it operates with an asymmetric minimum and maximum limit of −30% and +15%. On July 1, 2018, the interbank funding ratio (IFR) was introduced to prevent excessive reliance on funding originated from financial corporations. Wholesale funding from financial corporations—weighted according to currency and maturity with some exemptions not to hamper normal banking operations—must not exceed 30% of total liabilities excluding own funds. It was revised once by the exemption of balance-sheet liabilities arising from derivative transactions with financial corporations and from the revaluation of such transactions. The Mortgage Funding Adequacy Ratio (MFAR), announced by the MNB in June 2015 and required from April 1, 2017, ensures the long-term financing of residential mortgage loans with mortgage-based funds in the banking system. According to the MFAR regulation, the outstanding forint residential mortgage loan portfolio with a remaining maturity of more than 1 year must be financed in a specified proportion with long-term mortgage-based funds. Currently, this minimum requirement is 25%. Effective July 1, 2022, in addition to forint financing, foreign currency mortgage-based funds are also accepted under certain conditions. Since the latest reporting, the MFAR was modified twice, mainly to postpone certain requirements that had been announced earlier to ensure soft accommodation of banks to the current complex macro and financial environment also taking into consideration the unfavorable funding conditions.

		type and the currency of loans: (1) real-estate-backed mortgage loans: 50% for loans in euros, 35% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 80% for loans in Hungarian forint (HUF); (2) financial real estate leasing: 55% for loans in euros, 40% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 85% for loans in HUF; (3) vehicle financing: 45% for loans in euros, 30% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 75% for loans in HUF; and (4) vehicle leasing: 50% for loans in euros, 35% for loans in other foreign currencies, and 80% for loans in HUF. These restrictions do not affect loan conversions in the same foreign currency (for example, a Swiss franc loan may be converted to another Swiss franc loan). The MNB Decree differentiates the DSTI limits for new mortgage loans by denomination interest rate fixation period, and net monthly income of borrowers, as follows For borrowers with net income below HUF 600,000, the limit for (1) floating or fixed interest rates for less than 5 years is 25%; (2) for interest rates fixed for at least 5 years but less than 10 years, the limit is 35%; and (3) for interest rates fixed for at least 10 years or for the whole term, it is 50%. For borrowers with net income of HUF 600,000 or above, the limit for (1) floating or fixed interest rates for less than 5 years is 30%; (2) for interest rates fixed for at least 5 years but less than 10 years, the limit is 40%; and (3) for interest rates fixed for at least 10 years or for the whole term, it is 60%. EUR limits for the relevant income categories: for below 5 years interest fixation period 15/20% and for 5 years or longer interest fixation period 25/30%. Limits for mortgage loans denominated in other foreign currencies for below 5 years interest fixation period 5/10% and for 5 years or longer interest fixation period 10/15%. The applicable DSTI limits for uncovered loans or mortgage loans with a maturity of up to 5 years depend on the verified net monthly income of the borrower and the currency of the loan: (1) 50% for net income less than HUF 600,000, 25% for loans in euros, and 10% for loans in other foreign currencies and (2) 60% for net income higher than HUF 600,000, 30% for loans in euros, and 15% for loans in other foreign currencies.

Target corridor band	09/27/2023	According to the Council's decision in September 2023, the interest rate corridor became symmetric, with a band of +/− 100 basis points around the base rate (the interest rate paid on overnight deposits equals the base rate minus 100 basis points, and the interest to be paid on overnight collateralized loans equals the base rate plus 100 basis points). Previously, Magyar Nemzeti Bank maintained asymmetric overnight interest rate corridor to prevent extreme fluctuations in interbank rates, the interest rate paid on overnight CB deposits equals the base rate minus 50 basis points, and the interest to be paid on overnight collateralized loans equals the base rate (plus 250 basis points).
Other	10/01/2022	The CB enhanced the disinflationary impact of interest rate increases through three measures: raising the required reserve ratio, holding CB discount bill auctions and launching a longer-term deposit instrument.
	10/14/2022	In response to the sharp deterioration in financial and capital markets sentiment, the Magyar Nemzeti Bank responded with a set of targeted measures to preserve financial stability. The use of the overnight deposit quick tender with an interest rate of 18% and the one-day foreign-exchange-swap instrument on a daily basis, coupled with an increase of 950 basis points in the interest rate corridor's upper bound, effectively increased short-term rates.
	04/01/2023	The Council decided to raise further the required reserve ratio to 10%. By raising the reserve requirement ratio and restructuring interest rates, the Monetary Council has tightened further the impact of the required reserves on liquidity.

On money market instruments
Purchase locally by nonresidents	03/23/2022	Until December 31, 2023, certain institutions may not purchase a Hungarian forint-denominated debt instrument issued by the CB of a member state of the EU. The institutions covered by this prohibition are voluntary mutual insurance funds, home savings and loan associations, private pensions and private pension funds, insurance institutions, entities regulated by the Acts on investment firms, commodity dealers, collective investment firms and their managers. The same prohibition applies to natural persons if their investment exceeds HUF 20,000,000. Since the bills are freely negotiable it impacts the ability of nonresidents to purchase these bills.
Controls on direct investment
Inward direct investment	06/01/2022	Government Decree No. 27/2021 (I.29.), which is referred to in Article 114 of Act No. XCIX of 2021, has been repealed by Government Decree No. 181/2022 (V.24.) (which declared the end of the emergency situation as of June 1, 2022). As Article 114 of Act No. XCIX of 2021 states that the amendments it made to point 1 of Article 1 of Act No. LVII of 2018, must remain valid for twelve months after declaring the end of the emergency situation, which happened as of June 1, 2022; therefore, the amendments should stay in force until May 31, 2023. The scope of "foreign investors" under Act No. LVII of 2018 will remain to be extended to nationals of the EU, another state belonging to the EEA and the Swiss Confederation, or to legal persons or other entities registered in such a state until May 31, 2023.

		mitigate exchange rate volatility as it deemed warranted. Although the Bank both bought and sold currency in 2022, its net foreign currency purchases for the year totaled 13.2billion króna. Public health restrictions because of the COVID-19 pandemic were lifted at the end of February, which had a positive impact on the tourism sector. Tourism-generated export revenues increased over the course of the year and were back to the pre-pandemic level by early summer. Russia's invasion of Ukraine and the ensuing uncertainty in global markets strongly affected developments in the domestic foreign exchange market in 2022. The pension funds continued buying significant amounts of foreign currency, and there were several large capital transactions by domestic and foreign entities during the year. In 2023, the Central Bank sold foreign currency in January but had not participated further in the market by the end of September. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a floating arrangement.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Every trading day at 14:15 hrs. Central European Time (CET), the CBI determines the official exchange rate of the króna against other currencies, which is used as the rate for official agreements, court cases, and other agreements between parties when no other rate is specified (Article 19 of Central Bank Act No. 36/2001). The reference exchange rate is published on the CBI's website each business day at 4:00 p.m. Icelandic time. The official rate is based on the price of the euro against the króna, as quoted in the domestic foreign exchange market, and price developments in the market. The fixing is a snapshot of the position in the foreign exchange market.

		and foreign exchange market transactions aimed at affecting the exchange rate of the króna. Members of the MPC are the Governor, the Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy, the Deputy Governor for Financial Stability, and two external experts in the fields of economics and monetary policy who are appointed by the prime minister for a term of five years. The Act on the CBI requires that the Bank's MPC meet at least six times a year, make public the minutes of its meetings, and explain its decisions and the rationale behind them. Each monetary policy decision is published in a statement released by the MPC before the market opens on the day the decision is announced. The MPC publishes the minutes of its meetings two weeks after each interest rate decision. The minutes contain the Committee's assessment of economic and monetary developments and prospects, votes of individual MPC members and key points of view expressed by members at the meeting and, if applicable, the range in which members considered it appropriate to keep interest rates. Further information can be found in the MPC Rules of Procedure which are approved by the CBI's Supervisory Board. By law, the CBI may declare a quantitative target for inflation, with the approval of the minister. According to the joint declaration made by the CBI and the government in 2001, Iceland's inflation target is defined as an inflation rate of 2½%. If inflation deviates by more than ±1½ percentage points from the target, the CBI is obliged to submit a report to the government explaining the reasons for the deviations from the target, how the CBI intends to react, and how long it will take to reach the inflation target again in the CBI's assessment. The report must be made public.

CPI	Yes.	The CPI measures changes in the price of private consumption. Statistics Iceland measures the CPI each month, after having surveyed the price of all goods and services in a defined consumption basket. The consumption basket is based on the results of regularly conducted Statistics Iceland expenditure surveys, which determine the goods and services consumers buy, and in what amounts. The survey findings determine the weight assigned to individual goods and services in the CPI. The expenditure survey has been carried out continuously since 2000, and the results are used in the annual revision of the CPI base.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents and legal entities, domiciled outside EEA or EFTA, are subject to restrictions on real property purchases in Iceland, as explained below. Large-scale investment projects are generally exempted from these restrictions via standard clauses in an investment agreement with the Ministry of Industries and Innovation. The Minister of Justice can also grant exemptions, to those that are permitted to run a business in Iceland (EEA and OECD entities and those having received a permission as described in the chapter on Business Enterprises), when the property is to be used as business premises or a permanent residence, or when other reasons apply. For others, the basic restrictions are that private individuals may purchase real property if they are either Icelandic citizens or have their legal residence in Iceland. Partners of legal entities or businesses, who have unlimited liability for the debts of the entity or business concerned, must be Icelandic citizens, or individuals domiciled in Iceland for at least five years, to purchase a real property. In the case of a limited liability company or an institution, the company, or the institution, must be domiciled and have its venue in Iceland. Furthermore, the members of the board and directors must be Icelandic citizens or domiciled in Iceland for at least five years. In the case of corporations, 4/5th of the share capital must be owned by Icelandic citizens and Icelandic citizens must exercise the majority of the votes at shareholder meetings. Before disposing of farmland, either indefinitely or for longer than seven years, nonresident persons must acquire permission from the relevant Minister.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The requirement on open foreign exchange position limits does not distinguish between resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The CBI regulates the net foreign exchange positions of banks. A bank's open position in individual currencies may not exceed 10% of the financial enterprise's capital base according to the most recently published financial statements when it comes to systemically important supervised entities. This limit is 15% regarding credit enterprises that are not systemically important supervised entities. On June 30, 2021, the CBI introduced limits on the derivative positions of Icelandic banks, by issuing rules No. 765/2021. These rules were amended and reissued as Rules No. 412/2022 effective April 8, 2022. The limits are twofold: (1) Commercial banks' forward foreign currency position vis-à-vis each individual counterparty (long or short) may not exceed 10% of their capital base and (2) commercial banks' gross forward foreign currency position may not exceed 50% of their capital base. These limits apply only to derivatives in which the Icelandic króna is specified in a contract against a foreign currency and do not apply to derivatives positions between Icelandic commercial banks. Derivative contracts that do not involve the Icelandic króna are unaffected by these rules.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Foreign currency exposure is limited to 50% of assets, as pension funds must ensure that 50% of its assets are in the same currency as its liabilities. This limit will rise by 1.5% annually between 2024 and 2027, starting on January 1, 2024, and by 1% annually in the years following until it reaches 65% in 2036. In addition, the pension funds do not need to respond if their foreign currency risk exceeds permissible levels because of movements in the exchange rate of the Icelandic króna or asset price movements. However, while such conditions prevail, the funds are prohibited to increasing their foreign currency risk by purchasing foreign-denominated assets. Lastly, pension funds must maintain assets in the same currency as liabilities equivalent to the expected pension payments of its mutual pension divisions for the next three years.

Other managed arrangement
Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate of the rupee is largely market determined, but the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) intervenes in the domestic foreign exchange market to manage excessive volatility and maintain orderly conditions without any fixed target or band for the exchange rate. The RBI publishes monthly data on its interventions (foreign exchange purchases and sales) in its monthly bulletin with a six-week lag.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	Financial Benchmarks India Private Limited (FBIL) has the responsibility of computation and dissemination of reference rate for USD/INR and exchange rate of other major currencies. The USD/INR Reference Rate has been notified as a "significant benchmark" under the RBI Financial Benchmark Administrators (Reserve Bank) Directions, 2019 which mandates FBIL to ensure suitable processes are in place in compliance with the directions to ensure appropriate governance of the benchmark processes. The FBIL reference rate for spot US dollar against the Indian rupee is computed on the basis of the volume-weighted average of the actual market transactions that have taken place during a randomly selected 15-minute window between 1130 hours and 1230 hours every weekday. A ±3 standard deviation rule is applied to the transaction data, as above, to remove outliers. For calculation of EURO/INR, GBP/INR, and JPY/INR reference rates, the closing prices of each cross-currency pair, that is, EURO/USD, GBP/USD, and USD/JPY as depicted in the 1-minute charts over the 15-minute time period, are obtained from any electronic platform. All the cross-currency rates are taken from the same randomly selected time period of 15 minutes between 1130 hours and 1230 hours that is used for the calculation of USD/INR reference rate. The mean of the closing prices (closing price of each minute during the 15-minute window), so obtained, is crossed with the USD/INR reference rate to calculate the EURO/INR, GBP/INR, and JPY/INR reference rates. The reference rates are used for the settlement of exchange-traded currency futures and options. The foreign exchange transactions of the Government of India (GOI) undertaken through RBI take place at the reference rate. The RBI's foreign currency assets and liabilities are revalued at weekly and monthly intervals using the reference rate. The IMF also uses the rate for revaluation of SDRs. As stated by the Notification RBI/2018-19/34 of August 2, 2018, banks are advised to use the conversion rate announced by FBIL for the purpose of converting foreign assets/liabilities for reporting in Form "A" return and Form VIII return. As regards conversion of assets/liabilities in other currencies, for which reference rate is not available from FBIL, banks may use New York closing rate pertaining to the day end of the Reporting Friday, for converting such currencies to USD. Banks may use the reference rate of FBIL for USD/INR of the same day for conversion to INR.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The RBI Act provides for the inflation target to be set by the GOI, in consultation with the RBI, once in every five years. The RBI Act, 1934, also provides for a six-member MPC to determine the policy interest rate required to achieve the inflation target. The MPC was constituted on September 29, 2016, and it held its first meeting on October 3 and 4, 2016. On expiry of the term of the three non-ex-officio members in 2020, the Central Government reconstituted the MPC with appointment of three external members for a period of four years or until further orders, whichever is earlier.
